RFC Furnishes Cash

Post Staff Writer

War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson yesterday disclosed that completion in about six months of a new pipeline from the Texas oil fields to Illinois will make it possible to relieve East Coast petroleum shortages by lifting current deliveries to the area by 250,000 barrels a day.

A WPB spokesman, however, made it clear that unless other relief measures are taken between now and December 1, when the pipeline is scheduled to be completed, operation of the line may not necessarily mean the end of gasoline rationing in this area.

Construction of a 24-inch steel pipeline is to be started immediately under financing arrangements to be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Nelson disclosed. He said the pipeline will run 580 miles from Longview, Tex., to the Salem, Ill., area where fuel will be transhipped in railroad tank cars for delivery in the East.

Oil Industry to Help

The next move in a series of swift developments bearing on the gasoline-rubber problem is due to come today from the White House where President Roosevelt is scheduled to call upon the Nation to contribute its old boots and inner tubes in a whirlwind, two-week campaign for collection of scrap rubber.

Last night phases of the plan remained in the tentative stage, but most reliable sources believed that Mr. Roosevelt would ask the citizenry to bring in all its old rubber to neighborhood gasoline service stations.

It was believed the President would like the campaign to start next Monday and may so state in his collection proclamation. Payment to citizen scrap haulers at the rate of a penny a pound also may be a part of the plan.

The petroleum industry, it was learned, stands ready to assign its trucks and other facilities for hauling the scrap away from collection

'Fowl' Play Shows Up WPB Red Tape Routine

War Production Board orders must be passed around for approval of some 15 to 20 officials before they are issued.

A young WPB lawyer, irritated at the red tape and more than a little doubtful as to whether the signatories actually read the orders they approved, decided to test them in a proposed regulation on conservation of cotton duck cloth.

He inserted an entire paragraph having to do with the life and loves of Donald Duck.

Fourteen WPB officials initialed the document before the fifteenth discovered the insertion.

Oden Is Convicted Of Manslaughter

Guy E. Oden, 20-year-old slayer of his 15-year-old sweetheart last July 19, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury yesterday in District Court. The verdict carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison. The jury deliberated three and a half hours.

The verdict spared the life of the youth who had been convicted last September of first degree murder, automatically punishable by death. He had been granted a new trial last October 29 on basis of conflicting testimony.

Monarch Asks Direct Aid

Roosevelt Greets Greek King Under White House Tree

By Edward T. Folliard

King George II of Greece, who barely missed being captured by Nazi parachutists in Crete a year ago, arrived in Washington yesterday afternoon, and got something new in the way of an official welcome.

President Roosevelt greeted the exiled monarch of a brave people on the south lawn of the White House, under a maple tree.

"I'm awfully glad to see you. How are you?" the Chief Executive said as he grasped King George's hand.

King George, who is 51, came here to seek lend-lease supplies for the Greek soldiers, sailors and airmen who are fighting alongside the British in the Middle East. Because of the war, his visit was in sharp contrast to that of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of England on another sweltering June day in 1939.

The State Department had withheld all news about the time of the Greek King's arrival, or about the manner of his arrival. Actually, the King, Prime Minister Emmanuel Tsouderos and other members of the entourage landed in Baltimore on a Pan American Clipper after a flight from Africa, and then came to Washington by motor.

There were no crowds except for about 250 men, women and children of Greek blood who gathered at Fifteenth and E Streets and took a chance on seeing the soldier-king. They waited for more than two hours, but were rewarded when the motorcade from Baltimore passed them on the way into the White House grounds. They waved their American and Greek flags and sent up a cheer.

All the honors due the chief of a sovereign state awaited King George on the south lawn of the White House.

As he stepped from his limousine, reporters saw a lean-jawed man of medium height wearing the khaki uniform of a Greek field marshal and commander in chief. His breast was covered with ribbons and decorations acquired in five wars. Under his arm, he carried a hefty

Sugar Stocks Exceed Needs, Survey Shows

Rationing Quotas Expected to Be Relaxed in August

By Cecil B. Dickson
Washington Bureau of Chicago Sun

Sugar stock piles in the United States have become so large they are embarrassing Government officials responsible for the drastic rationing of the housewives' sugar bowls.

A confidential Government survey of the supply situation given the Chicago Sun yesterday shows that sugar on hand, available from domestic cane and beet crops, Cuba and other nearby sources, is more than a million tons above the normal consumption of 6,800,000 tons a year.

This is after taking into account the sugar needs of Great Britain, Canada and Russia under lend-lease and otherwise.

Rationing to Be Relaxed

Already overtures have been made to the War Production Board by Eastern sugar interests seeking construction of warehouses to store the unexpected surplus sugar.

So many boats have been hauling sugar from the West Indies recently that a number are slated to be diverted to import bananas from Latin-American countries.

Shipments of sugar from Hawaii also have been larger than expected. Ships taking supplies into the Pacific war ports have been dropping by Hawaii to pick up pay loads of sugar on their return trips.

Another factor is the recent conversion of distilleries to the production of industrial alcohol out of wheat and other grain for the manufacture of munitions, particularly smokeless powder.

This has reduced to about half the amount of sugar originally estimated by experts to be needed for the manufacture of industrial alcohol.

Reports Don't Coincide

The situation now confronting the rationing advocates is one of "face saving." They plan to relax rationing quotas in August, but are afraid to do it now because of fear of destroying rationing control.

At the office of William A. Nielander, assistant OPA director, an official conceded that "due to the institution of rationing" the sugar

OPA Relaxes Women's Wear Price Ceilings

Children's Clothing Also Affected, Consumer Will Bear Increased Costs

By the Associated Press

The Office of Price Administration yesterday abandoned its effort to hold prices on women's, girls' and children's fall and winter clothing to the levels of last fall's selling season.

The order, rewritten almost section by section, now permits manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers to charge actual cost, plus the same percentage mark-up, or margin, as they charged last fall on the same classes of coats, suits and dresses.

In other words, increased costs of labor and materials will be passed on to the ultimate consumer instead of being absorbed by the manufacturer or dealer.

Order Held Unworkable

Price Administrator Leon Henderson said, however, that the consumer would be protected by certain restrictions on the costs which the manufacturer is allowed to use in calculating his ceiling price.

Apparel trade circles claimed the original order, issued last month, was unworkable, because it insisted that 1942 fall garments be "substantially equal" in workmanship and quality, and identical in price, to last year's. Cost increases during the past year, they contended, would have to be offset because they were too large to be absorbed.

Becomes Effective Monday

OPA's new price formula gave tacit assent to this view, but in a significant clause provided that labor costs must be computed on the wage rates paid on March 31, of this year.

Increased labor costs since that date could be added to the price, the price agency said, only if the wage agreement was signed on or before April 27. Any wage contracts providing for periodic, automatic increases after that date or for "sliding scale" contracts based on the cost of living, cannot be taken into consideration for pricing purposes. This clause, in effect, rules out future wage increases in the clothing industry unless the manufacturer wishes to absorb the added payroll cost in his fixed profit margin.

The revised order retains the original prohibition against any seller handling a higher priced line

Ideal Father at Large, Help The Post Discover Him

Who and where is Washington's ideal father?

Once again The Post is on the hunt for him and its readers will have to help, just as they did last year and in 1940.

We want Washington's Ideal Father of 1942. He is your dad, and yours and yours, of course, but you're going to have to say so. You're going to have to take his light from under a bushel and write the Father's Day Editor. You're going to have to tell why your dad's the best of all.

The Capital's population growth being what it is, competition should be hotter this year. Washington has more fathers than it ever had before!

Sponsoring the Father's Day program in Washington as part of a national observance, are The Post and the following department stores: Hecht Co., Kann's, Lansburgh's, Palais Royal, Raleigh Haberdasher and Woodward & Lothrop.

June 21 is Father's Day. Are you going to sit back and think you have done your duty after sending a greeting card or buying him a necktie? Or are you going to take a few minutes to put down on paper just why you think your is the ideal dad?

Match for Germans

By J. Wes Gallagher

London (Thursday), June 11. A strong United States Navy task force has joined the British home fleet for a share in the job of keeping Hitler's high seas fleet from smashing at Allied shipping lanes.

The first announcement of the presence of the United States warships came today with the disclosure that King George VI had inspected a United States battleship, cruiser and destroyers.

On Job for Some Time

The presence of the big ships was taken as an indication that the task force, commanded by Rear Admiral Robert Griffin, was powerful enough to offset or deal single-handedly if necessary with Germany's mighty battleship Tirpitz and cruiser Admiral Hipper if they attempted to sally out of their base at Trondheim, Norway.

It was obvious that the American force had been in British waters for some time. The announcement said it was greeted far out at sea by the British cruiser Edinburgh and escorted into port.

Answer to Nazi Threat

That historic duty was one of the Edinburgh's last. She was sunk May 2 during an attack by German submarines, destroyers and bombers on a convoy in the Arctic Sea lane to Russia.

An officer who was on the Edinburgh was quoted as saying the first indication the British had that the American force actually was near came when a United States Navy

Reds Continue To Repulse Foe With Heavy Toll At Sevastapol

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Thursday), June 11. German troops have started another offensive on the Kharkov front after last month's heavy fighting in which the Nazis had claimed the "annihilation" of three entire Red armies there, the Soviets announced early today.

A communique which told of a further firm Russian defense of Sevastopol throughout yesterday said:

"On the Kharkov sector of the front a battle took place against the German Fascist troops which had taken the offensive."

Outcome Not Indicated

The communique did not indicate the outcome of the fighting in this area, where the Russians recently said they had thwarted Nazi plans for a big spring drive on Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus.

More heavy losses were inflicted on the Nazis in their repeated charges against Sevastopol, but the Kharkov action may be the beginning of another large-scale Nazi drive to reach the Caucasus oil fields.

300 German Trucks Knocked Out

Red airmen were credited in a supplementary communique with destroying or damaging 300 German trucks with troops and war materials, two railway trains, a hangar and patrol boat Tuesday on various sectors of the front.

Elsewhere, the Russians said, no important changes had occurred.

From all available reports the major fight still centered around Sevastopol, and at the end of six days of increasingly savage warfare the Russians were reported holding their main lines.

Battering-Ram Tactics Used

The German besiegers at Sevastopol won some local successes at the price of many casualties, Soviet military dispatches said, but the bulk of the Nazi forces was being held to original positions.

"Not a single line held by the defenders of the city has been seized by the enemy," front-line correspondent wirelessed to the army organ, Red Star, although it was

Heydrich Reprisals Continue

Community Razed; Women, Children Sent to Other Areas

By the Associated Press

London, June 10.—German vengeance squads utterly wiped out Lidice, a Czech village of 1200 persons today, killing all the men and deporting the women and children, on the ground that the population harbored the two assassins of Reinhard Heydrich, the late German ruler of Bohemia-Moravia.

Completing this most savage single act of repression in the history of German occupation of continental Europe, Gestapo and German soldiery razed the village, leaving nothing but rubble, the German-controlled radio announced from Prague. Then the Nazis removed the name of the village from their records.

Lidice is—or was—a village of coal miners and woodworkers a few miles west of the Czech capital and not far from where Heydrich "the hangman" was fatally wounded by two patriots while driving along a winding road two weeks ago.

The Berlin radio announced tonight that Lidice's population had numbered 483, but Czech sources in London gave the 1200 figure.

The assassins, who leaped upon Heydrich's car with automatic pistol and bomb, have not been caught.

Shortly after Prague and Berlin radios had announced the fate of Lidice "as the hiding place of the Heydrich murderers," German authorities in Prague disclosed that 25 more Czechs had been executed today in the capital and 6 in Brunn for a total of 306—exclusive of the Lidice dead—to be slain since the attack on Heydrich.

In London, authorities of the Allied and exiled governments of the continent estimated that nearly 500,000 persons had been shot or

British Attack Eases Siege Of Bir Hacheim

Armored Unit Clashes With Axis Forces to Aid Free French Defenders

By Edward Kennedy
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the British Army on the Bir Hacheim Front in the Libyan Desert, June 10.—A British armored column with artillery and infantry collided with Axis forces east of Bir Hacheim at dawn today to relieve pressure on that besieged Free French fortress which has withstood a steady two-week battering.

Axis land and air forces smashed against the stronghold yesterday with redoubled fury—on direct orders from Berlin and Rome, it was reported by prisoners taken by the British.

Women With Defenders

Hitler and Mussolini, apparently annoyed by the brilliant defense of the inland anchor of the British desert line by soldiers of a country they thought they had made impotent, sent orders that the post must be taken at any cost.

Right now I'm with a British tank unit ranging ahead of the 25-pounders of an artillery detachment. Several miles across a no-man's-land ahead are German tanks and German 88's. Still farther in the haze is Bir Hacheim and its gallant Free French who have been almost encircled several times but still are holding out grimly.

Marry-Go-Round Continues

Two women are in the oasis stronghold, which is surrounded by a perimeter of land mines. One is the wife of a French army doctor who is herself a physician. The other is an Australian nurse married to a French officer.

The only newspaperman with the defenders is Jean Pierre Benard, former Havas correspondent in Washington from 1935 to 1937, who now represents the official Free

Japs Bypass Chuhsien, Gain At Great Cost

Chinese Hit Hard At Flanks of Foe As Battle Spreads

By the Associated Press

Chungking, June 10.—Japanese forces which have lost thousands of men in attempts to capture the key Chekiang Province rail center of Chuhsien were reported tonight to have bypassed the city and pushed nearly 12 miles beyond it.

This Japanese army pushing westward along the important Nanchang-Hangchow Railway thus moved to within approximaely 170 miles of a sister force moving eastward along the railway through Kiangsi Province.

However, as these spearheads approached each other like the points of calipers, the Chinese fell in behind the advancing invaders and cut at their flanks in heavy fighting spread over a vast area. Japanese gains apparently were being made only at great cost.

The high command, without stating whether Chuhsien had fallen, said that fierce fighting was raging east of the town of Chengshan, which is 12 miles west of Chuhsien. Previously the Chinese had told of inflicting casualties totaling 18,000 on the Japanese as the invaders failed to take the walled city, virtually surrounded now for more than a week.

The Japanese force in Kiangsi, pushing eastward along the railway, meanwhile remained in the vicinity of Tungsiang, 75 miles southeast of Nanchang.

The Chinese command told of heavy fighting on the flank of this Western column, centering about Linchwan, south of the Nanchang-Hangchow Railway. From that point Japanese columns were reported pushing both east and southwest but meeting with bitter resistance.

Fierce fighting was reported in other Kiangsi areas, nearly all the

Thousands Die West of Midway; Half Foe's Main Force Shattered

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Thousands of Japanese lost their lives and about half of the attacking enemy fleet was sunk or crippled in the great naval and air battle off Midway Island, it was disclosed last night.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the United States Pacific Fleet, announced at Pearl Harbor that the Japs, falling back in hasty retreat with some 15 to 18 vessels sunk or damaged, were so "hard-pressed" by American bombers that they were "unable to pick up survivors" from the warships lost.

Thus thousands of highly trained Jap officers, naval technicians and pilots must have perished in the debacle. They will be as difficult to replace as the war vessels which went to the bottom.

Nimitz also said that "probably half of the main Japanese force" of more than 30 warships launched against Midway became casualties during the first 72 hours of the historic battle.

Japs Admit Some Losses

As these additional details of the epic sea and air engagement were disclosed, Japan gave its people the first word of the battle and acknowledged the loss of some of the warships sunk.

Announcing the actions in the mid-Pacific, the Imperial Command at Tokio declared Japan's losses at Midway were one aircraft carrier sunk, another heavily damaged, a cruiser damaged and 35 planes missing.

But the Japs claimed that two American aircraft carriers were sunk in the battle, 136 United States planes lost, and "heavy" damage done to American bases at Midway and in the Aleutians. Later a Japanese naval spokesman followed up the imperial communique with a claim that their troops had occupied "western Aleutian islands."

Claims Quickly Spiked

The communique and spokesman made vague claims that Japanese troops had landed in the Aleutians and destroyed "strong United States positions," and declared that operations were continuing there.

The Japanese high command's purpose apparently was to admit

Justice Murphy Gets Court Leave To Join Army

By the Associated Press

Associate Justice Frank Murphy took a leave of absence from the Supreme Court bench yesterday to take the oath of a lieutenant colonel in the United States Army and said he planned to report at once for at least four months of duty.

The 49-year-old bachelor jurist explained his unprecedented action by disclosing that he had obtained a four-month leave from the Supreme Court now in summer recess. His present plans—which he said might be changed—were to return to the bench at the expiration of that period.

The justice was sworn in by Maj. Gen. James A. Ulio, the adjutant general, in the office of Gen. George C. Marshall.

Murphy told reporters that he had wanted to get into the Army ever since the outbreak of the Pacific war, last December 7, and disclosed he would leave immediately for Fort Benning, Ga. There, he said, he would take an intensive six-week training course following which he would be assigned to an armored force.

Three More Ships Sunk

Senators, Sure U-Boat Menace Will Be Whipped, Hear Knox

Sinking by submarines of three more ships in the Atlantic was announced by the Navy yesterday, but on Capitol Hill Senators, after a secret talk by Secretary of Navy Knox, confidently forecast that the submarine menace would be whipped.

The Navy announced that a medium-sized British merchantman and two small United States fishing vessels had been sent to the bottom, but all 85 crewmen of the ships were saved. An Associated Press compilation showed the three sinkings brought to 258 the number of ships lost through submarine action in the Western Hemisphere waters since Pearl Harbor.

Secretary Knox told a subcommittee of the Truman war investigating committee of steps being taken to drive the submarines away from the coastal shipping lanes.

"There haven't been any ships sunk within 50 miles of the coast for two weeks now," said Senator Harley M. Kilgore (Democrat) of West Virginia, chairman of the subcommittee, after the meeting.

And Chairman Truman, of the full committee, confidently voiced the opinion that the situation is clearing up.

"It isn't possible to patrol five oceans," Truman said, "and we have to put our equipment where it will do the most good. When our equipment is increased, I am confident that the situation will be met."

Knox, who appeared before the committee with Rear Admiral Richard F. Edwards, deputy chief of Ukraine Cupboard Bare, Hitler Finds

War Sidelights

Jap Sailors Live Like Galley Slaves

Chungking, June 10 (AP).—The Communist newspaper, New China Daily News, published today an article said to have been written by a Japanese prisoner of war declaring that "poor nutrition and sleeping quarters more than counter-balance the heavier guns and higher speed of Japanese warships."

"Most Japanese sailors are crowded on lower decks," the article said. "Japanese naval officers scoff at American and British warships as tourist boats but the Japanese seamen have no love for their own slave runners.

"For example, more than 1000 out of 1500 members of the crew of the Japanese battleship Hyuga (completed in 1918) were housed on lower decks in bunks which take up even the passages. The sailors sleep rubbing shoulders with each other. The foul air causes a number of diseases, mostly pleurisy and weak lungs."

A number of collisions, groundings and explosions aboard Japanese warships resulted from decreased efficiency caused by the poor living conditions, the article stated. It said known instances included a collision of the Hyuga and a submarine off western Japan and an explosion aboard a cruiser of the Myoko class.

The Japanese navy has a dread of air attacks, the article added, because most of the deck armor has been sacrificed for more guns and higher speed.

Nazis Honor Dead Briton

Vichy, June 10 (AP).—Three thousand persons (presumably French) were reported today to have attended funeral services for an R. A. F. flier who was shot down along the French coast and buried with military honors by the Germans at St. Malo Monday.

British List Casualties

London, June 10 (AP).—The British Empire's armed forces suffered a total of 183,550 casualties, including natural deaths, during the first two years of war ending September 2, 1941, Clement R. Attlee, Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, told the House of Commons today.

The casualties included 14,687 officers.

He said the total killed was 48,973; wounded, 46,363; prisoners, 58,458, missing, 29,156.

The United Kingdom lost 144,982; the dominions, 23,824; India and Burma, 8591; the colonies, 6153.

'Scorched Earth' Policy Leaves Nazis Holding the Sack

By Alvin J. Steinkopf
Wide World Staff Writer

New York, June 10.—The Ukraine is not the rich prize many Germans expected it to be.

The Ukraine was to provide a limitless food supply, was to neutralize the effect of the British blockade. In fact, many Germans suspected Hitler's decision to attack Russia was as much a foraging expedition as it was a blow against "world Bolshevism."

Then came a blitz campaign culminating in the fall of Kiev. But more slowly came the realization that, whereas the Ukraine was a land rich in resources, Germany could not exploit them easily or immediately.

The major difficulties shape up as follows:

Stalin's "scorched earth" policy was effective in the Ukraine. Retreating Russians carried off or destroyed agricultural machinery, cattle and horses.

Rumanian troops, eager for booty, grabbed all the horses they could get away with.

Farmers "Indisposed"

Tens of thousands of farmers were in the Russian army, and such as remained were largely indisposed to work efficiently for German masters.

In more than two decades of communistic administration the Ukraine had been divided into collective farms. The Ukraine peasant had forgotten how to till fields on the small-farm scale familiar to Germans. The new Ukrainian was a specialist who might know how to run a tractor but couldn't manage all the details of a whole farm by himself. This situation required the services of thousands of German agricultural experts, and even Germany doesn't have so many experts to spare.

The transportation problem is a lasting headache. It's one thing to drive a panzer division deep into the distant Ukraine, quite another to change thousands of miles of railway to European gauge, and to find the rolling stock in impoverished Europe to haul agricultural products to the hungry cities of Germany.

The Ukrainian mentality simply doesn't articulate with the German. The Ukranian couldn't be persuaded to accept German marks or the doubtful currencies Germany invents for its occupied regions on the mere promise that Hitler's grand new era ultimately would make everyone prosperous. The Ukrainian wanted to barter, a sack of potatoes for a pair of pants. And Germany's doesn't have that many pants.

No Milk and Honey Land

Finally, the Germans found, to the amazement of some of her editors and glib economic experts, that the Ukraine is a densely populated land. The needs of its own population are great. And it is a land of alternating plenty and famine. An unpredictable element, weather, might make the Ukraine a liability rather than an asset to be exploited immediately.

Even the omnipresent Gestapo can't cover the Ukraine effectively, and what unsuspected political speculations may be turning over in the minds of Ukrainians is another Germany worry. For years the Germans have been nurturing a Ukrainian independence movement, but whether they have made enough progress to be effective in a world torn by violent political storms remained another question.

Confusing the Ukrainian picture is the fact that Germany is bringing Russian workers into the Reich.

Wanted from the eastern territories especially were trained industrial workers and miners. Some of the latter, from the Krywoi Rog area of the southern Ukraine already have gone to work in the Ruhr mines of Germany.

Farm labor also was being recruited by the German labor council. Ukrainian and Ruthenian women were finding employment on small farms in Germany. Groups of male workers, imported from the same areas, were used in large-scale farm operations in Germany.

Food is scarce in many parts of the Ukraine. A German war correspondent, Werner Thieke, said that in a certain Russian town of 50,000 population, military authorities had issued 10,000 passes to refugees who wished to return to their home town.

But the food situation was so bad, according to Thieke, that many of the refugees came home, took one look around, and then wandered off into nearby villages in hopes of finding sustenance.

conceded that the Germans had effected a penetration of the hilly sector at a point where they still were trying to take two heights.

The battle had developed into a series of German battering-ram attacks against the solid Russian fortifications. In previous battles the Germans have been able to maintain such assaults for a period of only two or three weeks, after which they were forced to pause for rest and reorganization. How long they are capable of continuing the present attack remains to be seen.

Enemy planes broke through at some points today to bomb the fortifications, the Sevastopol dispatches said, and the German infantry attacks maintained their ferocity.

Along the rim of low, rolling hills which surrounds the city the approaches to the Red Army fortifications were described as littered with thousands of bodies, over which the Germans were rushing forward.

After taking the Kerch Peninsula at the eastern end of the Crimea last month, the German command aimed apparently at the conquest of Sevastopol, naval base at the western extremity, in order to complete the occupation of the Crimea at any cost.

Supply Problem Favors Nazis

The Germans held the advantage in land lines for bringing up supplies and reinforcements on three sides of Sevastopol; the Russians' only access to the city is from the sea, under continuous aerial attack.

But so far the defenders, who prepared for this battle during seven months of siege, stubbornly have held most of their original positions.

Red Star dispatches said the Germans struggled for three days to approach two heights over Sevastopol, bombing the front line from the air and charging the positions from the ground.

With pressure increasing steadily, Nazi infantrymen penetrated this sector at night and tried to press their advance, but were checked. The battle was reported continuing on this terrain, with the Russians so far pinning the Germans down.

This appeared to be the most important sector of the battle, although fighting was raging in virtually every part of the Sevastopol front.

Savage Air Attack Fails

In the air, the Germans pursued their favorite tactics—massing a powerful force above a narrow sector in an effort to obtain full mastery of the skies and pound the ground forces into submission. But the Red air force stayed in the fight, and at the points where the enemy bombers broke through, the Russian ground defenders took shelter under rocks and clung to their positions.

Red Star described one engagement for which a unit commanded by an officer named Novikov was cited in Tuesday night's communique.

The Germans attacked the unit on Monday morning, first bombing and shelling its position and then launching a ground assault. From well-equipped shelters, Novikov's troops then mowed down enemy forces with fierce fire and chased them away at bayonet point.

Reinforced, the Germans renewed the assault with the same result, the dispatches said. When the struggle reached a climax, other Red Army detachments launched simultaneous counterattacks, routing the enemy.

The Germans were estimated to have lost 800 dead at this point.

staff, and Capt. Frank Beatty, Knox's aide, declined to reveal the information he gave the committee but warned reporters "don't quote me as saying that the submarine menace is over."

Two Gloucester Fishing Boats Sunk

A New England Port, June 10 (AP).—The sinking of two Gloucester fishing draggers by a single submarine, whose gunners were "very lousy shots," was reported today following the safe arrival on the New England coast of 14 men, who rowed 65 miles in four dories.

The draggers, not traveling together, were sunk within an hour of each other on June 3 and the two crews landed on the New England coast 36 hours later—also within an hour of each other.

Despite extensive shell fire and machine-gunning, sometimes from a distance of only 200 feet, there was only one casualty—Spooks, a white Spitz owned by Capt. John O. Johnson. The animal was so frightened by shell bursts that he crawled under a berth in the forecastle and had to be abandoned.

Kansas Doubles Up On Hitler-Hating

Topeka, Kas. (AP).—If any detours are necessary on Kansas roads this summer, because contractors' equipment has been diverted to war work, Gov. Payne Ratner says they should be marked: "This detour is Hitler's fault."

Northern part of the province having become a battlefield. Chinese operating in the rear of the Japanese were said to have pushed to within 12 miles of their Nanchang base on the West, while to the southeast of Nanchang Japanese attempts to land on the East shore of Lake Poyang were reported stopped.

The communique said the Japanese were using six "cruisers" and more than 30 launches in this operation.

(Lake Poyang can be entered from the Yangtze River by small war vessels, possibly destroyers, but it is unlikely that real cruisers could have reached it.)

French Facist Shot, Assailants Escape

Vichy, June 10 (INS).—Joseph Louer, a member of Jacques Doriot's Fascist Party, was shot and wounded today at his home in Nantes by two assailants who fled on bicycles.

Albert Clement, editor of Doriot's collaborationist newspaper, Le Cri de Peuple, was slain in Paris June 2.

that the Japs had suffered heavy losses, but to dress up their bad defeat as a victory.

An official United States Navy spokesman, however, quickly spiked the Jap claims as to the "capture" of American positions in the Aleutians, and operations there.

"Certainly none of our inhabited areas, islands or rocks are troubled with uninvited visitors up to this time," he said.

The Japanese communique claimed that one United States aircraft carrier of the Enterprise type and one of the Hornet type, each of 19,900 tons, were sunk near Midway.

No mention was made by the Japs of the presence of troopships in their force attacking Midway. They contended that it was a successful naval attack rather than an unsuccessful attempt to land troops and capture the island. Mention of the transports would have indicated to their homeland that an invasion was repelled.

"Best News We've Had"

These enemy claims are refuted by the official United States announcements of the battle. The latter reveal that two and possibly three Japanese aircraft carriers and a destroyer have been sunk, and three battleships and eight to 11 other ships damaged.

Our losses have been announced as one destroyer sunk, a carrier damaged and some planes shot down. Only slight damage was done in the attacks on Midway and Dutch Harbor.

Members of the Pacific War Council heard an account of the battle from President Roosevelt yesterday and left the White House highly elated over the happenings.

Walter Nash, New Zealand minister to the United States, declared: "It was as good news as we've had—perhaps the best we've had."

Four Americans Tell Of Missing Death

A North Atlantic Port, June 10 (AP).—Four American field service workers who missed death from a torpedo blast by a scant 15 feet, arrived safely at an Atlantic port in a damaged lifeboat after a medium-sized British freighter was torpedoed June 2.

The ship went down three minutes after a second torpedo crashed into the engine room.

Eight other passengers, all field service workers, and the British crew of 39 all reached port safely. Two lifeboats were picked up and the crews taken to an eastern Canadian port, and the other reached another American Atlantic port unassisted.

The first four Americans told how they rushed on deck when the first torpedo hit, scrambled into a lifeboat on the starboard side, and then were held helpless against the side of the sinking ship by jammed lines, as another torpedo struck the ship 15 feet away.

Charles Fagan, 28, of Seattle, one of the field service men in the lifeboat, said that "a sheet of flames spread out five feet below the surface of the water. It was the damndes' thing I ever saw.

"After the torpedo exploded 15 feet aft of the lifeboat, a wall of water crashed down on the men, smashed the rudder and pulled the stern away from the larger vessel. The freighter started sinking like an elevator. One of the men cut the tangled lines and we got away."

American field service men on the vessel included Nicholas Nageira, jr., Greenway, Va.

Two German fighters were destroyed and one of the Bostons lost. Earlier, a spitfire on patrol destroyed another German fighter, a communique said.

Father's Day Sidelights

Raleigh Gifts Go All Over The U. S. A.

Raleigh Father's Day gifts are covering the country, and for a very good reason. With the tremendous increase of newcomers to Washington, Raleigh Haberdasher, Washington's Finest Men's Wear Store, has recently completed a research into "What Makes Fathers Happy From Maine to California?"

Early in the study they called in the Saturday Evening Post to discuss the types of merchandise favored by its millions of readers. Characteristically they found the nationally famous labels, long recognized by native Washingtonians as sources of quality, comfort and pleasure, equally favored by Dads back home. Whether home was Rochester or San Francisco.

Famed Personality Quizzed

Still not satisfied, Raleigh asked Bob Hope, national chairman of Fathers in Defense, Radio and Screen Division, and one of America's radio and screen stars, what he thought. Dropping the comic for a minute, he said: "Remember Dad on Father's Day with nationally accepted merchandise. It's sure to be practical and desirable."

Bob Hope Talked To Thousands of Fathers Thruout The Country

In his all-out job for Uncle Sam, taking part in great numbers of war benefits . . . entertaining our boys at Army posts and naval stations, Bob has met thousands of fathers in camps—in war work. He knows the strain they're under. But he knows how to keep 'em smiling. He says: "Picture Dad in his daily role. Then give him the things he needs to heighten his efficiency. The things he hasn't the precious time to buy for himself. For instance:

"Suppose Dad is an air raid warden. How about a raincoat instead of that old sieve he's wearing? Why not a gift bond for a nice new hat? That trench helmet won't look so good on dates with Mother.

"Is he a white-collar executive? Give him the sleep-inducing comfort of a good pair of pajamas. Let him start the day with a smile, after using a real man's after-shave set.

"Suppose Dad is a volunteer salesman. Does he look successful? Or is he still wearing that tie with the appliqued egg yolk. And those worn-out shirts with the frazzeld edges? You'll find his size inside his collar.

Raleigh Has Your Gift Answer . . .

"So waste no time, my children; hie yourself down to Raleigh's and give the "Grand Gent" what he really wants. You're sure to find it among the scores of nationally famous products assembled at Raleigh. And you'll have the satisfaction of knowing he will be doubly pleased with your gift this year. If you just can't figure what to get him, you can always play safe with a U. S. War Savings Bond."

U. S. Ships Join British Fleet to Scourge Nazis

plane flew over the British cruiser. "The weather then was so bad that we were very surprised that any naval aircraft should be flying," he said.

To the Edinburgh the American fleet force signaled:

"We are more than glad to serve with the home fleet and are bending every effort to take our proper place in the battle line of that experienced and gallant fighting force."

While the American force is engaged in all naval activities of the home fleet, the main task of the British and American heavy ships has been to keep the Nazi superbattleship Tirpitz, the battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, the pocket battleship Admiral Scheer and the strong cruisers Admiral Hipper and Prinz Eugen bottled up.

The R. A. F. has so battered the Nazi fleet that the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen are in German ports for repairs, but it is not known how soon they may be ready for action again.

The 35,000-ton Tirpitz and the 10,000-ton Admiral Hipper also have been reported hit by bombs but not put out of action.

Even since spring reopened the Arctic route to Russia observers have been expecting the German warships to make a desparate effort to cut the supply line in what probably would be the biggest naval engagement of the war in European waters.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, commander of United States naval forces in European waters, personally welcomed the United States task force, which is under his direct command.

King Sends Message

Admiral Giffin, in an official statement after the colorful ceremony in which King George inspected the American ships, said the King had sent the following message

"It has given me great pleasure to have had this opportunity of visiting the United States ships and thus being enabled to meet some officers and men of the United States Navy task force of the home fleet.

"I have been deeply impressed by the smart and efficient appearance of the ships and ships' companies and I congratulate you and all those under your command upon the alert and cheerful spirit with which you are undertaking your duties in the common cause.

"The enjoyment of my visit has been much enhanced by the presence of Admiral Stark. I send you and your officers and men my best wishes for a safe return to your homes when victory is won."

The King chatted and joked with officers and men alike, and ranged the ships from officers' warrooms to seamen's messes and the sick bays. He poked into big gun turrets and watched the long naval rifles swung and elevated.

Inspecting the crew's quarters, the King expressed surprise and pleasure at the luxury of the fittings.

At a luncheon Admiral Giffin gave for the King and a staff of officers including Vice Admiral John C. Tovey, commander of the British home fleet, there were individual cakes decorated with the crossed ensigns of the United States and the Royal Navies.

Giffin presented the King with another cake, more than 2 feet high, which the ship's chef cooked for Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose.

"He talked to me as one sailor to another," Giffin said after the King's visit. "He liked our ships, liked the cut of our jibs, and liked the way they are kept shipshape and Bristol fashion."

There is an American atmosphere these days even in British warships now that the American task force has joined the home fleet. Every morning "The Star-Spangled Banner" is played after "God Save the King."

than the highest one offered for sale by him during the last fall season. The regulation becomes effective June 15.

New lines added by any seller after that date must be priced at the level charged for garments in the same category in the "last selling season." The "last selling season" was defined, for retailers, as the period from August 1 to December 31, 1941; for wholesalers, July 1 to October 31, and for manufacturers, July 1 to September 30.

Modification of this order does not represent abandonment by OPA of its flatly stated policy of refusing to permit any puncture of the universal price ceiling issued in April, which fixed maximum prices at the highest levels of March. The new regulation affects the only seasonal garments, which were not sold generally in March and which required special price treatment.

Australians Grateful to U. S., Says New Envoy

Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian foreign minister, yesterday presented to President Roosevelt the new Minister from Australia, Sir Owen Dixon, who succeeds Richard G. Casey, recently transferred to the Middle East as representative there of the British war cabinet.

"Australians are deeply grateful for the tangible interest in her welfare which has been shown by the Government of the United States," Sir Owen told the President. "In this connection I need refer only to the brilliant and successful naval action fought recently in the Coral Sea, the courageous exploits of American airmen operating from Australia and New Guinea and the presence in Australia of a substantial number of American forces whose bearing and efficiency has been an inspiration to all."

Mr. Roosevelt replied that Australia and the United States "now stand as comrades in arms defending our common liberty and our existence as free peoples."

"We have walked through dark days together," he said. "We share the awful sacrifices of war. American fighting forces now stand guard in Australia side by side with the gallant Anzacs."

Search Continues For Blimp Victims

Lakehurst, N. J., June 10 (AP).—Four Coast Guard picket boats and two Navy tugs returned to Point Pleasant tonight after a day of ruitless searching for bodies and wreckage of two Navy training blimps which crashed and plunged into the Atlantic Monday night. The search will be resumed at dawn, the Naval Air Station announced.

Eight of the 13 Navy men and civilian scientists aboard the blimps still are missing. Four bodies have been recovered.

WPB Orders New Pipeline To Serve East

depots to areas where it may be weighed and stored and made ready for eventual addition to the Nation's supplies of usable rubber.

In his press conference Tuesday when Mr. Roosevelt first revealed his determination to conduct a short, quick and snappy collection drive, the chief executive made it clear that his immediate objective is to obtain accurate knowledge on the total amount of old rubber lying around the cellars, attics and alleys of America.

If the President's rubber census discloses that those experts are right whose estimates of available scrap run into astronomical figures, the problem of getting enough rubber for military use may not be so serious. If this proves to be the case, it may not be necessary to extend gasoline rationing throughout the Nation as a means of preserving the rubber now on the country's approximately 30 million automobiles.

It is expected that the country will be told that the used rubber it collects will not be used right away. A WPB source said yesterday that factories where scrap rubber is reclaimed now have all the used rubber they need and enough in reserve to last for several months.

The issue that remained unsettled last night was determination of the agency to conduct the collection drive—WPB's Bureau of Industrial Conservation or the oil companies' Petroleum Industry War Council.

Board Maps Program

For more than eight months the conservation bureau has been working on a program for Nation-wide collection of all scrap materials, including rubber. The program is now about ready for launching, and its designers believe it to be a well-rounded, sound plan for scrap collection. They had expected to get it started the end of this month with a rather elaborate educational campaign.

The bureau had expected to depend heavily upon 1200 local salvage committees organized throughout the country, although it probably would have made use of filling stations as collection depots.

The bureau was putting the finishing touches to its program when the petroleum industry's scheme which its war council, it was learned, has been "sitting on" since Saturday, was introduced with the result that WPB officials began to fear that their plan might be junked.

Series of Huddles

A series of hurried conferences at WPB yesterday followed the President's call for a "quickie" scrap rubber collection. These were aimed at determining how rubber collection might be separated from the bureau's general salvage program, moved ahead several weeks and intensified to meet the President's call for a drive to end in two weeks.

In announcing WPB's decision to approve use of steel in constructing a pipeline, Nelson called attention of reporters to a formal announcement that said the board took this action "after considering the changed situation with respect to oil tankers and military requirements and after receiving assurances that prompt construction of the line will not interfere with delivery of steel or motor equipment orders for the War and Navy Departments or for the Maritime Commission's shipbuilding program."

Asked if the new pipeline was to be the first link in a longer line to provide the East with direct connection with the oilfields, a project long advocated by Petroleum Coordinator Ickes, Nelson replied that as far as WPB was concerned only the 550-mile line was considered.

Big Supply of Steel

The pipeline will require 125,000 tons of finished steel, but the steel is to be seamless tubing and not valuable plate steel, Nelson emphasized. Critical material consumption is to be minimized further, he stated, by substitution of cast iron for steel in some places.

WPB's appproval came after Wayne Jackson, chairman of a special pipeline investigating committee, reported to Nelson that the line could be built "with a minimum of disturbance to the war production program and would provide an increased supply of oil to the East Coast area within six months."

Nelson said the pipeline would have a capacity of 350,000 barrels a day, but that a portion of this capacity would be diverted to Midwest users at Chicago. The line could be used to carry either crude oil or gasoline, but primarily it is expected to carry crude oil for fuel inasmuch as the fuel shortage in the East threatens this area with a critical heating problem this winter.

With rationing, a WPB spokesman said, the minimum petroleum products requirements for the East Coast are 1,350,000 barrels daily. The area is now receiving from all sources, he said, 1,165,000 barrels. The new pipeline would give the area 65,000 barrels a day over minimum needs under the rationing program.

Milk Deliveries Imperiled

Meanwhile, the Office of Defense Transportation revealed, on the basis of a survey by the International Association of Milk Dealers, that most of the country's milk trucks will be off the streets in less than two years because of the rubber shortage unless "effective" conservation programs are "instituted without delay."

The survey covered 389 milk distributing industries throughout the country. A year, at most, was the length of time 286 dealers and dairymen said they could continue retail deliveries without conservation. Many, ODT stated, asserted they could operate no longer than six months.

Ideal Father Is at Large; Help Find Him

Jimmy and Sally.

Haybe he is a semi-invalid who keeps house and cares for the children while mother works. Or a widower who has had to fight to keep his orphaned children united.

Yes, he may just be an ordinary dad, who winces when mother calls, "All right, dear, the dishes are ready for drying" and grumbles a bit before putting down the Sunday newspaper to mow the lawn or mend the vacuum sweeper.

Let's hear about your dad, or your children's dad. Your letters don't have to be typewritten and you can use both sides of the paper. Ink, pencil or grapejuice—any are acceptable. As long as your letter is moderately legible and sincere, nothing else matters much.

State your nominee's name and address, of course, as well as your own. Also, if you do not wish any ecxerpts quoted from your letter, except anonymously, please say so. It is not necessary to enclose photographs.

Oh, yes, we almost forgot. The man selected as Washington's Ideal Father for 1942 will be treated to a dinner-and-theater night out for the family. He also will receive a plaque as a testimonial souvenir.

To repeat, address letters to the Father's Day Editor, Washington Post.

King George had only to take a few steps to reach President Roosevelt who, with Mrs. Roosevelt, was standing under the trees.

After the warm greeting, King George stood alongside the President and faced east. The Army Band sounded four ruffles and a flourish. A company of the 167th Infantry, a company of Marines and a company of Navy bluejackets came to "present arms." Then the Army Band played the Greek national anthem and the American national anthem.

Vice President Wallace and Speaker Rayburn and all the members of the Roosevelt Cabinet except Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox were on hand to welcome King George. The Chief Justice of the United States, Harlan Fiske Stone, was there, too, and also Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee; James V. Forrestal, Undersecretary of the Navy, and John J. McCloy, Assistant Secretary of War.

Not on Guest List

There were two young misses in the welcoming group who had not been on the list of George T. Summerlin, chief of the State Department's protocol. They were Diana Hopkins, little daughter of Harry Hopkins, and her playmate, Betty Fairfax Smith. They had been swimming in the President's White House pool when the big-wigs gathered on the lawn. They dressed hurriedly and ran out and joined them.

In King George's party were Emmanuel Tsouderos, Prime Minister of Greece; Col. Demetics Levidis, marshal of the Greek court; Capt. Petros Stathatos, aide-de-camp to the King, and Demetrios Nicolareizis, private secretary to the Prime Minister.

Also in the party were Col. Louis Fortier, U. S. A., military aide to the King, and Capt. Andrew S. Hickey, naval aide to the King.

The Greek Minister in Washington, Cimon P. Diamantopoulos, accompanied the party to the White House, and thrilled onlookers with his Old World jack-knife bows to President Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt.

After introductions had been made all around and pictures had been made by the still and movie men, King George accompanied the Roosevelts into the White House. He escorted the First Lady, who was wearing a white lace dress, white cotton stockings and white shoes.

King George was guest of honor at a state dinner at the White House last night, and spent the night at the mansion. Today he will move across the street to Blair House, official residence of the Nation's guests.

On his arrival in Baltimore yesterday, King George said that his country was "in the war to stay" and said that on his arrival in Washington he would try to arrange for lend-lease shipments of war supplies direct to Greek fighting forces.

"The Greek army, its air corps and more than half of its original navy are fighting today in many theaters of the war," King George said.

"My only mission here is to arrange for direct shipment of equipment by America to the Greek forces under the lease-lend system. We have been getting materials of war by way of the British, but we feel that the demands of our nation in the war and in the reconstruction period which will follow can be met better by direct American assistance."

Greeks in Egypt Enlist

He said his nation's war effort was being aided greatly by some one million Greeks in Egypt, where he fled after the German invasion of his homeland. Greek nationals in Egypt, he reported, were being conscripted for military service.

"Two weeks ago I was at Tobruk and saw some of these men in action alongside the British forces opposing Field Marshal Rommel. The Greeks were active in the aviation branch and also operated mine sweepers. The same is true of a dozen theaters of war. We are in the fight to stay."

This morning at 10 o'clock King George will leave the White House to visit the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and Mount Vernon. He will have luncheon at the Yugoslav Legation, and at 4 o'clock will visit Red Cross headquarters. At 5:30 p. m. he will visit Walsh House, 2020 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, to see 200 of his countrywomen who are working on surgical dressings for the District Red Cross.

The stairs of Walsh House, the mansion loaned by Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean to the Red Cross for the duration, will be lined with representatives of all the volunteer services of the District Red Cross, wearing the various gay uniforms of the different corps.

Tonight at 8 o'clock King George will be the guest of Secretary of State Cordell Hull at a dinner in the Carlton.

A crowded itinerary has been worked out for King George's visit, which will extend to Tuesday.

Greek King With President

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

THEY TALKED IN EARNEST—King George of Greece and President Roosevelt engaged in conversation as they sat together during ceremonies which welcomed the monarch to the White House yesterday

Greek Natives Roar Welcome To King George

Crises of "Erchetai o Vasilevs—Here comes the King," sprang spontaneously from many lips here yesterday as several hundred Washingtonians of Greek descent gathered at the corner of E and Fifteenth Streets Northwest to cheer welcome to visiting King George II of Greece.

There were some, old folks all, whose eyes filled with tears as the Greek monarch drove slowly past the assemblage on his way to the White House. Mostly, however, it was a cheering, happy crowd—school children in crisp white blouses and dresses, boys and girls in native costumes—all waving either a small American flag or the white and blue colors of Greece.

Famous Costumes Seen

Among the costumes was the traditional "fustanella," the national skirt and long-stocking garb of warriors, worn yesterday by 8-year-old Christina Stavraka of 423 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. Christina, like many others present of her age, appeared a little bewildered, but nonetheless happy about the occasion.

To others, the King's presence had special meaning. There was, for instance, Evangelos Nicholas, who runs a little flower business at 921 H Street Northeast.

Nicholas, now 55 years old, told a Post reporter that he knew the King when the royal visitor was a boy at the palace in Athens. At that time, Nicholas said he was in the Greek army and used to come to the palace to visit a cousin who was an attendant there.

"But that was in 1908," declared Nicholas. "Since then, I came here, served with the American Army in France and now I have a little business for me and my wife and my three children."

Ready to Fight for U. S.

Like his friends around him, who nodded vigorous agreement, Nicholas expressed high regard for the King, but emphasized that: "This is my country now—and if Uncle Sam wants me, I'll go quick." He said more, something about what he, personally, would like to do to the Japs and Nazis.

The crowd gathered early, nearly two hours before the King arrived on the scene at 4 p. m. There were representatives from many Greek-American societies and churches—Ahepa, Philoptoxos Society, Lakonia Society, Cretan Society, Naxians Society, St. Constantine and Helen Church, St. Sophia Church, Hellenic Students Society of George Washington University. There were many, too, who were just plain "folks from the old country."

Even a traffic accident—a collision between an Army truck and a taxicab—failed to dislodge those gathered from their vantage points. In fact, considerable annoyance was evident on many faces, so eager did every one appear to be to impress the King with the unscheduled welcome.

And even though the King passed by in less than a minute or two, everyone seemed satisfied — well pleased.

Steve Gets Excited

A few minutes later it was seen that Steve Vasilakos, 60, gray-haired peanut vender just outside the White House grounds since 1910, also was doing his bit. Now a naturalized citizen, he had the American Flag on one corner of his stand and the Greek on the other.

He was so excited he had trouble with his English and had to call on a by-stander, who could understand Greek to relate that he had a son who was a policeman in Athens and another with the Greek armed forces. He hasn't heard from either in some time.

Economist Keynes, Adm. Cunningham Raised to Barons

London, June 10 (AP).—John Maynard Keynes, the international economist and wartime advocate of "forced savings," tonight was made a baron—the sole peer on the annual king's birthday honors list.

Sharing interest on the list was Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, sailor hero of the Mediterranean Battle of Matapan. Admiral Cunningham was elevated to a baronetcy. He was named head of the British admiralty delegation in Washington May 18 and already has left his old post of commander of the British Mediterranean Fleet.

Acting Air Marshal Arthur Harris, chief of the R. A. F. bomber command and father of the 1000-plane raids on Germany, was made Knight Commander of the Bath and Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal, head of the R. A. F., was raised to Knight Grand Cross of the Bath.

New knights bachelors included the film producer, Alexander Korda; the airplane manufacturers, Charles Fairey and Frederick Handley Page, and the pioneer of radio-location, Robert Watson Watt. Sir Gerald Campbell, former director of the British information service in the United States, and Sir Frederick Phillips, treasury representative in the United States, were raised to Knight Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George.

Knitting Needles Made For Red Cross in Barage

Meredith, N. H. (U.P.)—About 70 per cent of the knitting needles used by American Red Cross volunteers are made in the back of William Story's garage.

Employing a four-man crew in the 25-40 foot building, Story has a daily output of about 2500 needles. Specifications demand that the needles be 10, 12 or 14 inches long, nickel-plated and lacquered.

Sugar Stocks Exceed Needs, Survey Shows

Nielander said in a speech in Chicago Tuesday night that sugar in warehouses in May was about 23 per cent below the average in the past five years and that reports of warehouses bulging with sugar were misleading.

The official in Nielander's office said that "there are some departments in the Government that do not believe sugar rationing is necessary and they are putting out reports on the sugar supply that don't coincide with ours." He did not give his figures, however.

This official conceded, however, that the beet sugar crop was unexpectedly large and that it was being moved into areas in Ohio, West Virginia, Upper New York and Western Pennsylvania "where the storage of such large quantities is not normal."

"Shipments of sugar from Hawaii to the West Coast have been heavy and warehouses there are overtaxed," the official said. "Formerly a lot of sugar from the Caribbean went to Boston, New York and Philadelphia. This is now going into Gulf ports, Louisiana and Texas, and warehouses in that area are overcrowded. But there is no oversupply in New England and the area around New York, where the population and industry is concentrated."

Questioned as to the accuracy of the figures in the confidential survey, the official said "you can get figures galore depending upon which department issues them."

Canning Threatened

Meantime, millions of dollars worth of food, fruit and berries, which housewives usually can for the winter, are threatened with total loss because the rationing boards are carrying out the strict orders of Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

The confidential sugar survey shows that after allowance for Britain and Canada, the Cuban crop alone, purchased in its entirety by Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, will provide the United States with 3,300,000 tons.

It also shows the domestic beet sugar crop will total 1,800,000 tons; that refiners and importers can contribute 100,000 tons off their stock on hand on January 1 last, and that domestic sugar mills will produce 490,000 tons.

In addition, Puerto Rico will have 1,800,000 tons available for the United States, much of which is now coming in; the Virgin Islands, 5000 tons; Hawaiian Islands, 800,000 tons; Peru and other Western Hemisphere sources, 300,000 tons. Some 400,000 tons will be released from so-called "invisible stocks."

Even after supplying Russia an amount which cannot be made public for military reasons, the total available supply for the United States is 7,995,000 tons, compared with an annual average consumption of 6,800,000 tons.

4 From D. C. Area Among 126 Naval Men on Jap Isle

Comdr. Giles In Group Listed by U. S.

Four Washington area men are among 126 Navy personnel now being held prisoners at Zentsuji, Shikoku Island, Japan, the War Department announced yesterday.

They are Comdr. Donald T. Giles, Annapolis, Md.; Lieut. Comdr. Samuel Arthur Newman, 2440 Sixteenth Street Northwest; Ensign Frank Wolfsheimer, 3700 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, and Walter J. Cook, aerographer, first class, 3204 Thirty-ninth Street Northwest.

Also listed as prisoners were Lieut. John L. Nestor Norfolk, Va.; Staff Sergt. Earnest G. Rogers, Saltville, Va.; Lieut. Ellwood C. Madsen, Baltimore, and First Class Seaman Harry G. Handy of Cambridge, Md.

Saw Wife April, 1941

Commander Giles, 42, last seen by his wife in April, 1941, in San Francisco, was believed captured by the Japanese at Guam December 12, 1941, the Navy reported last February.

Born and educated in Syracuse, N. Y., Commander Giles was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1921. He has a son, Donald T., jr., 17, an Annapolis High senior. Mrs. Giles, the former Virginia Basil of Annapolis, is now living with her mother, Mrs. John Basil, at 198 Prince George Street, Annapolis, Md.

A World War I veteran, Lieutenant Commander Newman was called back into active duty in February, 1941, and sent to Guam three months before that island fell.

Employed by Oil Company

Commander Newman was employed by the Gulf Oil Co in Pittsburgh at the time of his promotion and call into the service. He is a native of Texas City, Tex. His wife is now living at the Sixteenth Street address with her sister.

Ensign Frank A. Wolfsheimer was reported captured at Peiping, where he was sent last summer from his position as superintendent of industries at Guam.

He was born in Baltimore in 1906 and educated at the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute and Cornell University, graduating from the latter school with a degree in civil engineering. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wolfsheimer.

Aerographer Walter J. Cook was stationed at the Anacostia Naval Air Base a year and a half before being sent to Wake Island last October. He was taken prisoner in the defense of Wake.

Mrs. Cook, employed at the Bureau of Internal Revenue, received word from her husband April 6 through an amateur radio station which had picked up a message shortwaved from Tokio. The message said that Cook was well and safe. The Cooks came to Washington from Grand Rapids, Mich., and were married about three years ago.

Canada Opens Debate on New Army DraftBill

By the Associated Press

Ottawa, June 10.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King asked Parliament today for power to move military conscripts to various points outside Canada within the Western Hemisphere, including the United States, but he declared the government does not believe that it is necessary to draft men at the present time for service overseas.

"Moreover," he added, "it may never become necessary."

The Prime Minister was starting debate in the House of Commons on the government's conscription bill, which would leave the government free to conscript men by proclamation for service in any theater of war.

The bill was introduced following a plebiscite April 27 in which a great majority of Canadians voted to release the government from promises not to introduce unlimited conscription.

The Prime Minister was followed by the Conservative leader of the House, R. B. Hanson, who declared that King's address "left me cold and will send a chill of disillusionment down the spine of all Canadians."

Recalling his plebiscite campaign statement that an affirmative vote was "not a vote for conscription," King said the result of the plebiscite "did not commit the government for conscription overseas."

He added, however, that "it equally leaves no doubt as to the freedom of the government and Parliament to decide for or against conscription for service overseas either conditionally or unconditionally."

Hanson in his attack on the Prime Minister said King's speech had been an exhibition of skillful political strategy and "just such strategy as we might expect from the right honorable gentleman who, above everything, desires to maintain his political position."

Hanson urged that the government's bill incorporate detailed methods of procedure by which complete service would be obtained, without geographical or other limitations. He said he wanted compulsory selective service in the practical sense and did not want to have "only the theory on the statute books."

Col. Stevens' Death in Action Is Confirmed

The War Department has received notification from General MacArthur of the death of Lieut. Col. Francis R. Stevens General Staff Corps. Colonel Stevens, who for the last year had been one of the key members of the Operations Division of the War Department General Staff in Washington, D. C., was voluntarily participating in a flight mission when his plane was shot down in the sea.

General MacArthur has awarded the Distinguished Service Cross posthumously to Colonel Stevens.

Born in Clear Creek, Ala., January 31, 1903, Colonel Stevens was graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1924. He attended the Infantry Company Officers School, graduating in 1931, and the Command and General Staff School, from which he was graduated in 1939.

Colonel Stevens is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marguerite Dick Stevens, and two children, Marguerite, 3, and Francis R. jr., 6. They lived at 3183 North Seventeenth Street, Arlington, Va. Mrs. Stevens is the daughter of Col. William W. Dick, Army Air Forces, air adjutant, and Mrs. Dick.

The War Department has not yet received a list of names of the other occupants of the plane who were with Colonel Stevens.

Colonel Stevens was appointed to the Military Academy from Mississippi. He served after his graduation at Fort Benning, Ga.; Fort McPherson, Ga.; in Paris, France, with the American Pilgrimage of Gold Star Mothers and Widows; at West Point, N. Y., as an assistant adjutant of the Military Academy; at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii. He was an infantry officer.

29 D. C. Boys Head for Navy School in Ga.

Twenty-nine local boys posed for pictures, guffawed and kissed their families goodby yesterday at Union Station and left for the University of Georgia where they will receive preliminary training in the Navy's new flight plan.

Appearing decidedly more like a group of flowering summer camp expectants than a group of prospective pilots who may someday be matching slugs with the enemy, these youths are the first contingent to leave from this area.

They will remain at the University of Georgia for three months being acclimatized to the demands of the Naval Air Force. Following this priming period they will go to Naval Reserve Aviation Bases for three months, and then to Naval Air Stations for another three months for their finishing course. Successfully completing this last course, the boys will become ensigns in the Naval Reserve or second lieutenants in the Marine Corps Reserve and ordered to active duty.

Leaving with the group was David Fairfax Oyster, 18, who was inducted into the Navy as the first applicant for this new training course by Secretary of Navy Knox April 27 over a Nation-wide radio hookup. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. F. Larmour Oyster of 116 Inverness Road, Chevy Chase, Md. He was a freshman of George Washington University and a graduate of Woodrow Wilson High School.

The group was composed of James S. Chumbris, 20, of 1123 Fourth Street Northeast, McKinley High School graduate and employe in the highway division in the District Building.

George W. Cole, 19, of 1731 A Street Southeast, Eastern High School graduate, and formerly an apprentice at the Navy Yard.

Ernest H. Courtney, jr., 19, of 3931 W Street Northwest former honor graduate of Woodrow Wilson High School, scholarship student at the Wood College, and student at George Washington University.

Edward P. Davitt, 22, of 449 Mellon Street Southeast, graduate of the University of Scranton, Pa., and former employe of the British Purchasing Commission.

John W. Fitzgerald, 20, of 4405 Ord Street Northeast. Fitzgerald graduated from McKinley High School in 1940 and attended Maryland University. He was in the employ of the National Institute of Health.

Jules C. Flood, jr., 20, of 5329 Forty-second Street Northwest. Flood is a graduate of St. John's College here, and a football player at Manhattan College in New York City.

David L. Grim, 20, of 724 Hamlin Street Northeast, Devitt Prep School graduate, one-time student at George Washington University and former employe of the Pennsylvania Central Airlines.

Max Leder, 22, of 5215 Chevy Chase Parkway Northwest, Woodrow Wilson High and George Washington University graduate, employed in the National Selective Service offices at the time of his flight course enrollment.

O. Embry Moats, 25, of 829 Quincy Street Northwest, former student at University of South Carolina and salesman for a home equipment concern here.

Clarence J. Robey, 20, formerly employed by the War Department, graduate of Eastern High School.

Others were:

James Martin Evans of 3725 T Street Northwest, Lester Goldberg of 4112 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, Richard Hampton of 1616 Trinidad Avenue Northeast, Alfred P. Smith of 3304 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, Edward P. Van Hise, jr., of 624 Quincy Street Northwest, William M. Baskin of 3615 North Albemarle Street, Arlington, Va.; John E. Jap Sub Believed Sunk Off Australia

Allied Headquarters, Australia (Thursday), June 11 (AP).—An Allied plane seriously damaged and probably sank a Japanese submarine off the Australian coast, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The communique also announced a new Allied raid on Rabaul, New Britain, where a direct hit was scored on three grounded bombers, and explosives burst in the main building area amid a large number of other Japanese planes.

The announcement said the attack on the submarine brought the Japanese total of undersea losses to nine in recent days, including the four midget craft sunk in Sydney harbor.

Increased Traffic Law Violations Alarm Van Duzer

Washingtonians must re-learn the fundamental traffic rules, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer warned last night. The crowded conditions of a boom-town, and the mass influx of newcomers unfamiliar with the regulations are causing an alarming increase in traffic violations.

Double parking is the "most glaring and frequent infraction," Van Duzer said. Double parking is not permitted on any street in the District. The only time when one car may stop abreast of another is when passengers are getting in or out of the vehicles.

Many persons, he said, think that a car may double park so long as it is occupied. This is not permissible, and motorists who stop double for any other purpose than the immediate convenience of the passengers are liable to arrest, he pointed out.

In order that both new and long-time District residents may brush up on the traffic rules, Van Duzer announced that a printed handbook of the rules are available at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic in the Municipal Center Building, Third and C Streets Northwest.

Aussie Envoy Says Allies Must Carry Fight to Japan

Herbert V. Evatt, foreign minister of Australia, declared last night that the task of conquering Japan has only begun and there is "grave danger in attempting to hold the Japanese at bay while we turn our attention elsewhere."

He said the Japanese, already in possession of a new economic empire in the Southwest Pacific, cannot be held at bay, but must be placed upon the defensive by attacks of United Nations forces.

In a radio address, Evatt agreed that jubilation over American victories in the battle of the Coral Sea and the battle of Midway is "all to the good," but said he was startled to find that a few people interpreted the Midway success as deciding the war against Japan.

"That is dangerous doctrine," he declared. "Japan is still in full enjoyment of its new empire and is making itself stronger every day. We have no reason whatever to regard the Pacific war as a sideshow. The task of conquering Japan has only commenced."

U. S. Will Build Concrete Ships At Tampa, Fla.

By the Associated Press

The Maritime Commission turned yesterday to concrete ships to provide sorely needed tonnage for the war effort.

Representative Peterson (Democrat) of Florida, announced the commission had awarded a 30 million dollar contract for the construction of 24 self-propelled concrete freighters. They will be built near Tampa, Fla., Peterson said.

The contract went to McCloskey & Co. of Philadelphia. The cost does not include the cost of the shipyard in which to build the vessels.

The commission made no formal announcement of the contract, but officials indicated there would be a statement in the near future.

The contract was reported to be regarded by commission officials as an experiment to determine whether to expand concrete construction in view of the critical steel situation.

Bitten by Mule, Woman and Son Treated for Rabies

Aylett, Va., June 10 (AP).—Dr. A. W. Lewis disclosed today that a mother and her 12-year-old son, attacked and bitten by a mule suffering from hydrophobia, were being given antirabies treatments and said that they apparently were out of danger now as the result of a prompt start on a series of 14 daily serum injections.

Robert Green was knocked down and severely bitten about the face, neck and arms, the physician said, and his screams brought his mother, Mrs. Dennis Green to his aid. Mrs. Green, who lives near Beulahville, attempted to beat off the animal and she, too, was bitten about the face and hands.

The mule died the next day at the Green farm, Dr. Lewis said.

U. S. Hogs May Rescue Brush Manufacturers

Atlantic City, N. J.—Revival of American production of hog bristles, a profitable industry 35 years ago, may solve a 60 million dollar problem for the Nation's brush manufacturers.

Experiments at South St. Paul, Minn., slaughter houses have been promising, a member told the recent convention of the American Brush Manufacturers Association, and may result in American hog bristles replacing imports stopped by the war. The brush manufacturers stand to lose 60 million dollars unless they get the bristles.

Rubber Salvagers Seek 2 Million Lbs.

Two million pounds of rubber are expected to be collected from District homes in the next two weeks, the District salvage committee announced last night. This is based on the hope that each household will contribute 10 to 15 pounds of rubber to further the drive requested by the President yesterday.

The Commissioners decided yesterday to leave to the D. C. Salvage Committee the gathering of rubber for Washington's part in the campaign to forestall national gas rationing. There had been some talk of appointing a special committee to put the drive over, but the Commissioners said that the record of the permanent committee proved its ability to handle the job.

More than 900 "rubber depots" in filling stations and shoe repair shops will be set up to receive the rubber goods. James E. Colliflower, committee chairman, also asked the Commissioners for the use of police and fire stations and schoolhouses for this purpose. This request will probably be granted at today's board meeting.

Size Doesn't Matter

Every piece of rubber goods, no matter how large or small, that is not absolutely necessary for the running of the home is sought.

Suggested by the salvage board are such items as old rubber tires and tubes, rubber heels and soles, boots, shoes, sneakers, galoshes, bath mats, hot-water bottles, nipples, bathing caps, raincoats, garden hose, stair mats, baby carriage wheels, fly swatters, rubber toys and plumbers' suction pumps.

Plans are under way for Federal purchase of rubber salvage, Bernard L. Majewski, chairman of the gasoline industry national marketing committee, announced yesterday in offering the Nation's 200,000 gasoline stations as purchasing stations. A guaranteed price of $25 per ton for commercial rubber, set by Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, is expected to boost this source of rubber.

Mrs. Wing Proposes Plan

A plan designed to promote the collection of rubber and to raise funds for civilian defense warden posts was proposed yesterday by Mrs. Newton C. Wing, chairman of the women's division of the District Salvage Committee. Mrs. Wing proposed that the air-raid wardens collect and sell salvaged rubber to authorized dealers and turn the proceeds over to the warden service.

Washington rubber dealers are hopeful that the present drive, and the ceiling set by Jones will expedite the movement of scrap rubber to the mills.

Besides the plan for the wardens to market scrap rubber, Mrs. Wing has proposed that Washingtonians give "rubber parties," to which the admission price would be one piece of rubber goods.

"100 Pounds—100 Per Cent"

A slogan, "100 pounds—100 per cent," has been adopted for Washington as part of the educational program scheduled for the drive. Many women's organizations are reported to have put that into effect, with every member pledging to collect at least 100 pounds of scrap rubber.

This slogan was taken to New York by Mrs. Mary Brewster White, executive secretary for women of the General Salvage Bureau of the Bureau of Industrial Conservation, where it was given to the radio networks for inclusion in women's programs.

Colliflower said that although there would be a widespread educational and publicity program for rubber salvaging, this was in no way a special drive, as the Salvage Committee had begun rubber collection some weeks ago, and expected to continue it throughout the summer, or until "every piece of salvageable ruber has been put back to use."

Besides the regular committee, the salvage program is being promoted by the Washington Gasoline Dealers Association, the Shoe Repair Shop Owners, the National Independent Tire Dealers Association, the U. S. Rubber Co., the American Automobile Association, the Keystone Automobile Club, and the local charity collection agencies.

The program also has been given the "unqualified support" of the District Tire Rationing Board.

Rubber First

Nation-Wide Scrap Drive Is Projected

By William Needham
Associated Press Staff Writer

A Nation-wide scrap salvage campaign, involving collection of rubber, tin cans and fats and oil, will be undertaken soon by the War Production Board with the intensive two-week scrap rubber drive as its first phase, a WPB spokesman said yesterday.

Virtually all details of the general program have been decided it was understood. WPB officials emphasized that the two-week rubber drive represented only one phase of the over-all scrap collection plan, which contemplates a continuing drive for the duration of the war to gather in all materials important in the war effort.

When the salvage campaign would begin remained uncertain, but Archibald MacLeish, head of the Office of Facts and Figures, said that a formal statement probably would be issued today.

County salvage committees in Kansas were reported working on a plan by which scrap rubber would be sold by citizens to service stations for 1 cent a pound, but WPB sources said that such payments were not now contemplated in the Government program. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, however, has agreed to pay $25 a ton to the service stations for the scrap turned in to them.

There has been discussion, it was understood, of giving the oil companies a part in administering the rubber collections, since they would furnish many of their facilities as collection depots. WPB sources indicated, however, that the rubber phase of the scrap program would be directed by the WPB's Bureau of Industrial Conservation. This bureau will also have supervision over the collection of tin cans and fats and oils.

Under present plans for the fats and oil salvage, housewives would save their bacon grease and other fats and sell them to retail groceries at about 5 cents a pound. The stores in turn would be reimbursed by soap manufacturers, which need the oils for glycerin.

Extension of Gas Rationing to Midwest and Control of Transportation Facilities Urged to Assure Adequate Supply of Oil and Petroleum Products in East

By the Associated Press

Extension of gasoline rationing to the Midwest and rationing of transportation facilities were urged before a Senate committee yesterday to replenish the Northeast's dwindling supplies of petroleum products.

Headed by Mayor LaGuardia of New York, a group of Atlantic States mayors appeared before a Senate subcommittee and warned that unless means were found promptly to move adequate supplies of fuel oil and gasoline to the Northeast before winter, a serious situation would develop.

'Every tank car, every truck, every barge must be rationed if we are going to avoid catastrophe," said the New York mayor.

"We must provide for the safety and health of the people in the northeastern area and we cannot have a moratorium on time to do it. No cost is too great to avoid an outbreak of influenza or pneumonia or the breakdown of industry."

Urges Risks Be Taken

He said that only by rationing of all available transportation facilities could the movement of essential petroleum products be expedited into the area of acute shortage.

J. H. Ross, president of the Inland Water Petroleum Carriers' Association, told the committee that wooden barges, while having "possibilities," would be a menace to safety on inland waterways when loaded with gasoline.

LaGuardia, however, declared that was a risk that should be taken.

"We're at war and must take a chance," the mayor said.

Kenneth Huszagh, a New York oil dealer, blamed the growing crisis in the Northeast on price ceilings fixed on petroleum products by the Office of Price Administration.

Losing Million a Day

Because of these ceilings, he said, producers were unable to offset the higher cost of shipping by rail and were losing heavily on shipments into the Northeast. This, he contended, had a tendency to discourage shipments into the area.

"If you can show them they won't lose money, you'll get all the oil you want," he declared.

The witness estimated a pool set up by shippers to offset the losses due to higher freight costs was losing a million dollars a day and to date was "in the hole" to the tune of 38 millions.

"There are barges unused on the Great Lakes because you can't get anybody to buy the oil," he said.

"If you build ten times as many barges you won't get any greater movement of oil until you clear up this situation."

Walter P. Hedden, chief of the New York Port Authority's bureau of commerce, urged a "reasonable rationing" in the Midwest to provide a surplus of petroleum products in that area for movement over the Great Lakes and the New York State barge canal system to the Northeast.

He estimated the existing volume of petroleum products moving over this route could be stepped up 100,000 barrels a day if this plan were followed.

Guy W. Pinck, New York State canals commissioner, said the New York State barge canal was adequate to handle a large increase in traffic.

"You give us the stuff and we'll move it," he asserted.

Pinck said that although 23 tankers and 97 tank barges registered on the canal this year, only 51 barges and nine tankers have moved through the waterway so far.

"We don't know where the rest are," he said, "but we do know they haven't shown up in the canal."

Other witnesses included Mayor Jasper MacLevy of Bridgeport, Conn., who said it was "just foolish" to consider conversion of plants from oil to coal before winter, and Mayor C. H. Reeder of Miami, Fla., who told the committee oil could be brought from Texas to Jacksonville and distributed to northern points entirely by water.

Grocers Ask Congress to Deny Funds for OPA 'Snoopers'

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 10.—The National Association of Retail Grocers, serving notice that it did not want "an army of snoopers" in American stores, asked the Government today to trust retail merchants with enforcement of the restrictions on food prices.

The organization adopted a resolution calling upon Congress to refuse the Office of Price Administration's request for funds which it claimed would be used "to add more than 100,000 new employes—largely enforcement personnel—to the OPA payroll."

"It is implied in this proposal," the resolution said, "to turn loose an army of 'snoopers' on the retail merchants of the United States. These men and women proposed for OPA enforcement personnel can render more useful service in the prosecution of the war against the Axis powers, rather than as an army of harassment operating at public expense on the home front."

The resolution said that "the sincere efforts of this industry to police itself will be supplemented by the vigilance of millions of consumers."

Harry Walker, secretary of the Maryland Retail Grocers Organization, who led supporters, told the convention he was convinced that Washington was "the only insane asylum that is run by its own inmates."

Before the debate, A. C. Hoffman, OPA's price executive in the Food and Food Products Section, told the grocers:

"If this regulation doesn't hold, then frankly gentlemen, we're whipped on the economic front—and this war will end as all other wars have ended, and I don't think you gentlemen will have enough money to hold another convention."

Charles Sawyer Weds Countess in Ohio

New York, June 10 (AP).—Charles Sawyer, Democratic National Committeeman from Ohio, married Countess Elizabeth Lippelman de Veyrac at the Central Presbyterian Church today.

The groom's son, Charles, jr., was best man. The bride was unattended. Countess de Veyrac is the former Elizabeth Lippelman of Glendale, a Cincinnati suburb. Her marriage to Count Robert de Veyrac ended in divorce. Prior to that she was the wife of the late Louis Renner of Cincinnati.

U. S., British Arms Output To Be Unified

British and American munitions industries will be considered as one integrated war production enterprise by the newly created Combined Resources and Production Board, the two board members, Donald Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, and Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, British minister of production, declared yesterday.

There has been a "marriage" of the production of both countries, Lyttelton told a press conference he had jointly with Nelson.

One objective of the new board, he disclosed, will be to work toward rationalization of war output so that production of more and more of certain items would be concentrated in one country, and other items would be turned out in the other partner nation.

No Monopoly in Arms

In allocating production between the United Kingdom and the United States, Lyttelton indicated the board would work "toward" exclusiveness of production, but would probably never arrive at a condition where all of any one weapon would be made in one country alone.

Nelson and Lyttelton declined to give specific examples of what weapons would be made here and what in England, because "that's what Hitler would like to know." Lyttelton, however, pointed to the "obvious fact" that pursuit planes could not be flown to the European battlefronts from America, whereas bombers could. He also pointed out that the "styles" in pursuit aircraft changed more rapidly than those of bombers, and the retooling for changed production was easier in England, since its production was traditionally in "batches" as distinguished from American mass production.

Further Utilization

A major function of the board, Nelson said, would be the more efficient utilization of shipping space. Many vessels, Lyttelton pointed out, returned to America from the British Isles empty or loaded only with rubble of bombed cities for ballast. Attempts will be made, he indicated, to send America raw materials and other British produce for American industries.

Speaking later last night in a radio address, Lyttelton acknowledged that the rate of American war production has already exceeded that of Great Britain and "will soon be far ahead."

He gave these figures on British munitions output:

"We are producing tanks, jeeps and other mechanical vehicles at a rate of 257,000 a year. This is an increase of 350 per cent over the rate in the last quarter of 1940

40,000 Big Guns Yearly

"We are producing 40,000 big guns a year and supplying them with 25 million rounds of ammunition.

"We are producing millions of small arms each year and supplying them with 2000 million rounds of ammunition.

"We have increased our production of aircraft 100 per cent over the rate achieved during the last quarter of 1940.

"We have increased our production of merchant ships by 57 per cent over the last quarter of 1940 . . .

"We have increased our production of all weapons of war as a whole by 100 per cent during the last 12 months alone."

He said that British women in industry numbering 5,500,000 work up to 55 hours a week; 77½ per cent of the boys and 67½ per cent of the girls between the ages of 14 and 17 are engaged in war work; food, clothing and gasoline are rationed and "we can still laugh although one home out of every five—and there are 13 million of them—has been damaged or destroyed by bombs."

"We are producing up to the hilt," the minister declared. "We are pouring approximately 60 per cent of our national income into the war. There is no business as usual in Britain. There is no production as usual in Britain. There is no profit as usual in Britain. We have thrown everything we have into this war and we will never quit."

Giles Teachers Get $50 Bonds as Bonus

Richmond, Va., June 10 (AP).—Teachers of Giles County received $50 war bonds as bonuses, Robert F. Nelson, State war savings staff administrator, was advised today.

The county school board awarded them in view of increased living costs since the teacher contracts were signed last year and in "appreciation of the service rendered by the teachers," Nelson said. The war bonds were given with the approval of the State board of education.

WPB Strives To Speed Up Labor Cases

By the Associated Press

A majority of the War Labor Board, irked at delays in its own machinery, is ready to turn the heat on mediation and fact-finding panels to achieve speedier decisions in industrial disputes.

The subject, discussed informally for weeks, came to a head at an executive session of the board Tuesday when, it was authoritatively reported, Dean Wayne L. Morse declared his impatience with delays in resolving such major cases as "Little Steel" and General Motors Corporation.

These cases involve wage demands which affect the general wage stabilization picture.

Called Pattern Cases

Morse, who is dean of the University of Oregon law school and is a public member of the 12-man board, was reliably quoted as saying both those disputes were regarded as "pattern" or "key" cases and his investigation showed at least 13 other cases were being stalled until those two were decided. Robert J. Watt, A. F. L. member of the board, was reported to have supported Morse's expressions.

General agreement with these views was reported, although there was no extensive discussion by other members. Morse, it was understood, said he did not know who was responsible for delays, and was not interested in responsibility but in results. He served notice, it was said, that he would offer an amendment to board procedure to require that panels submit their reports or recommendations to the board not more than 30 days after assignment.

The "Little Steel" case, which includes four companies, was certified to the board between February 6 and 10. The G. M. C. case was certified on April 28. Arthur S. Meyer, who is panel chairman in "Little Steel," also is chairman of the New York State Board of Mediation. It was reported Tuesday the panel planned a final meeting with the disputing parties next week and would have its report ready for the board the following week.

Panel chairman in the General Motors case is Fowler V. Harper, who is a deputy of Paul V. McNutt, Man Power Commission chairman. The G. M. C. panel has been meeting four days and three evenings a week for a month.

War Board Sets Up New Priorities System To Limit Quantities of Materials Purchased

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

The War Production Board yesterday revamped a broken down priorities system which had allowed from one-third to one-half of all scarce metals to leak into non-war uses while military factories slowed down for lack of supplies.

The new system establishes for the first time a quantitative control on the amount of raw materials and parts which any factory may order. It is designed to end a condition of issuing more checks than there were deposits in the new materials bank account.

The device, known as the Production Requirements Plan, has the incidental effect of removing control of the flow of war materials from the armed services and restoring the function to the WPB.

In the past, officials explained, under dual control, "blanket priorities" were issued to individual manufacturers by thousands of Army and Navy officers in the field, often without regard to the basic policy on ratings set by WPB for particular items of manufacture. These ratings could then be extended to the manufacturers' supplies.

Sort of Priority Inflation

Results of this system were that in a period of scarce supplies, rating officers kept raising the levels, "inflating the priority currency" until a large proportion were A-1-a, and since there was no ceiling on the amount of materials which could be bought under a given rating, all manufacturers sought to obtain as much as they could.

Thus, claims for scarce metals like copper, tin and nickel greatly exceeded the supply. Large and immobile inventories were accumulated in certain instances, while in other cases a manufacturer might obtain all the copper he needed, but none of the tin, with the result that unbalanced and useless stockpiles were withdrawn from productive channels.

To remedy this situation, the PRP contemplates the greatest census of materials ever assembled in this country. With certain exceptions, every person or company using more than $5000 worth of metals in a calendar quarter must file with WPB a statement showing its consumption of materials in the previous quarter, its expected requirements for the following quarter, and its complete inventory of supplies.

The WPB's job will then be to total all requirements, match them against anticipated supplies of metal and materials for the whole nation, and grant each company a priority rating entitling it to a specific ration of the total of materials and supplies.

Balances Supply, Demand

This is the process which for the first time will enable the WPB "to keep books" and to balance demand against supply, according to William L. Batt, chairman of the WPB requirements committee, and J. S. Knowlson, director of WPB industry operations, who outlined the new plan to reporters yesterday.

The old priorities system was practicable, Knowlson indicated, as long as the military economy was able to be superimposed on the civilian economy. In that period, with plenty of materials for military production, priority ratings had the effect of meeting defense requirements first and generally, in full. Civilian non-essential, industries could then compete for the remainder.

Now, however, Knowlson said, all the economy was military, since even such things as minimum amounts of clothing for civilians, and railroad supplies, were properly "military" items necessary for prosecution of the war. And, he implied, there is not only no residue for civilian industry, but not even enough materials for all military demands.

Thus, Batt and Knowlson said, "The huge material requirements . . . make it necessary to institute much stricter controls over the use of metals and other scarce materials."

Limit to Be Applied

For the first time, they said, a ceiling will be placed on the number of pounds of materials a manufacturer can obtain. The objective, they added, will be to get a balanced supply of different materials to each manufacturer, so that shortages of one item would not mean that adequate deliveries of other materials would be useless, gathering dust in inventories.

Other officials revealed that under the old blanket priority system, with competing fabricators all extending ratings for unlimited quantities of scarce materials, about 45 per cent of all metals delivered in the last quarter of 1941 had been used in "unrated," i.e. nonessential, products. This was presumed to be the result of manufacturers who were making some civilian goods along with war orders and who were extending their military priority rating to obtain materials for civilian goods as well.

In the first quarter of this year, 32 per cent of all metals went to unrated products.

To correct this, WPB officials will examine the actual military requirements of each applicant for materials, and will also study his inventory statement. Thus, if third quarter munitions-making requirements of a company call for 100 tons of copper, and it already has 300 tons in inventory, it will get no rating at all for additional copper, and may even face the prospect of immediate requisitioning of the 200 tons excess supply.

Really NEED a New Car?
Liberalized rules may let you get one

Who is Eligible to Buy a New Car?
There are seven major classifications for persons eligible to buy new cars under basic rationing rules.
These include persons engaged in the production of war materials or in the prosecution of the war, directly or indirectly, physicians, nurses, clergymen, veterinarians; car-owners engaged in public service, such as fire departments, public health, highway maintenance, etc.; owners of taxicabs and other means of transportation; farmers; newspaper wholesalers; and traveling salesmen in certain fields.
Your Buick dealer will be very glad to help you determine whether you come under the rules of eligibility. He also will be glad to help you fill the proper applications.
Don't guess about your eligibility—see your Buick dealer now and make sure.
IF your work is connected directly or indirectly with the prosecution of the war, you may be eligible to buy a new car—right now.
Under newly liberalized rationing rules it is easier than most people think to replace cars now in use with brand-new, long-lived, gas-thrifty 1942 Buicks.
Maybe you can wash out worries about tire-life by starting afresh with a complete new set—tires that will last longer, if they're on a Buick, because new Broadrim wheels both ease the ride and lengthen tire-life.
Remember, the 1942 models your Buick dealer now has ready for immediate delivery were built to serve you through the duration and beyond.
They are wartime tough, durable beauties built to last, built to go a long, long way with a minimum of upkeep.
So if you're eligible, you may be money ahead getting a new Buick now rather than trying to make an old car "do."
Why not drop in, talk it over and see if the new liberalized rules do not entitle you to a new automobile now?
If you're eligible for a new car—
Better Buy Buick!

House Unit at Odds Over Cigarette Tax

Vote Slated Today

House G. O. P. Begins Drive To Kill WPA

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

House Republicans, with some Democratic support, yesterday launched a drive to completely erase the Works Projects Administration by defeating the already sharply-cut 280 million-dollar WPA bill recommended by the President.

Representative John Taber of New York, ranking Republican member of the Appropriations Committee, told the House that war demands on labor have cut unemployment to a point where any man or woman able to work can find work."

Mr. Taber demanded abolition of the agency as the House concluded general debate on the 1943 relief appropriation and prepared to vote on amendments today.

Chairman Cannon and his Democratic colleagues on the Appropriations Committee disputed the New Yorker's assertion that the relief problem is vanishing and pointed to the 68 per cent WPA cut under current expenditures, recommended by the President and approved by the committee. Mr. Cannon argued that war industries have not relieved unemployment in many States and that a large portion of the $280,000,000 outlay will be on projects related to the war effort.

Together with unexpented balances from 1942, the appropriation would give WPA a total of $336,900,000 to employ an average of 400,000 persons in the net fiscal year, against an average of 975,000 currently on the rolls.

"Farmers are crying for help," Taber told the House. "Factory demands for labor are growing. Thousands of our boys are going into the armed services. Every dollar of national credit that we can muster is needed to carry the country to victory. The only reason for voting more funds for this agency is to continue on the payroll the misfits who have made such a mess of WPA."

Taking issue with Taber, Representative Rabaut (Democrat) of Michigan, cited Labor Department figures that total employment declined from 52,414,000 in September, 1941, to 50,913,000 in April, 1942.

Representative Voorhis (Democrat) of California, pleaded with members to support the greatly reduced estimate to provide "a modicum of justice to the older people and to those partially physically handicapped by giving them a small part in the war effort."

Proposed Levy Favoring 'Economy' Brands Stirs Debate

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday battled all day over Treasury recommendations for an increase in cigarette taxes with a differential in favor of so-called "economy" brands.

Final decisions were put over until today after the committee's two tobacco state members split on Treasury proposals.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton (Democrat) of North Carolina, opposed any differential in the cigarette tax but Representative A. Willis Robertson (Democrat) of Virginia, went to bat for lighter rates on the 10-cent brands.

After a series of tentative votes, the committee is understood to have decided to reconsider the issue today. Test votes on motions for no tax at all, and for increases of 25 cents, 50 cents and 75 cents respectively (per thousand cigarettes) failed to muster a majority, it was reported. Earlier a differential motion failed to carry, but members said the whole question was "wide open" when the committee adjourned.

The Treasury recommended an increase in the present rate of $3.25 cent a thousand on all cigarettes to $3.50 on economy brands and to $4 on standard or 15-cent brands. The proposal divided cigarette interests, formerly united in their common front against any increase in tobacco taxes.

Producers of the 10-cent brands contend that many of these were forced up to 11 cents by the horizontal increase two years ago and that the trend in economy brand sales has been downward ever since. They argue the differential would produce a wider market, more productive of revenue and beneficial alike to the farmer and consumer.

Standard brand manufacturers, notably the so-called "big-four" tobacco companies, were represented as uniformly opposed to the differential on the grounds that it might force them into the economy brand field, deprive the Treasury of more revenue, and reduce prices to the farmer.

Once the differential controversy is settled, the committee is expected to vote only moderate increases in cigarette, cigar and smoking tobacco taxes, probably short of raises recommended by the Treasury.

First Day Sales Indicate Rush On Auto Tax Stamps

Approximately 65 early birds had applied for the new $5 Federal automobile tax stamps by 4:30 p. m. yesterday, the first day they went on sale, in Benjamin Franklin Station and similar numbers were reported in other post offices.

Because the tax stamp will be necessary before new gasoline rationing cards are issued, motorists responded to the first-day sale with alacrity to avoid any last-minute rush that may take place before the July 1 deadline.

The stamp will cover the fiscal year beginning July 1 and will replace the green variety, issued on February 1, for which motorists paid $2.09.

Telephone Row Ending in Fight Causes $25 Fine

A heated telephone conversation between an apartment house tenant and the switchboard operator downstairs, resulting in hair-pulling and face-slapping, brought a fine of $25 in Police Court yesterday for Mrs. Ethel Frasco of 4105 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest.

Following an argument over a telephone call to Baltimore, Mrs. Frasco descended to the lobby and assaulted Mrs. June Moxley, it was testified.

The two women had disagreed before over telephone service, witnesses said. Mrs. Josie L. Wolls, sister of the defendant, said Mrs. Moxley had once slapped Mrs. Frasco, but Judge Walter J. Casey ruled there was little doubt as to who had struck first in the most recent altercation.

Union Slows War Output In Wage Row

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 10.—Within a few minutes after the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) announced it would demand a $1-a-day wage increase for 75,000 Chrysler Corporation workers today, the automotive company charged the union with staging two work stoppages in war plants "to build up steam" for contract negotiations opening Friday.

Morris Field, director of the union's Chrysler department, denied there had been any work stoppages.

"Some employes at the tank arsenal took a grievance to their foreman and were off work about 20 minutes," he said. "At DeSoto, there was a lot of dissatisfaction over wage rates but the men were off work only a few minutes."

Each of the work stoppages, at the Detroit (Chrysler) tank arsenal and the DeSoto antiaircraft gun plant, lasted less than an hour, a Chrysler spokesman said.

"The union members are trying to build up steam for their wage negotiations," the spokesman said. "They are guilty of unpatriotic acts in striking against the President's wishes and contrary to their own international union's pledges. Important war production was lost by the stoppages."

In addition to the $1-a-day wage increase, the U. A. W.-C. I. O. made 12 other demands on the corporation. All related to wages, since other contract provisions cannot be reopened because the basic agreement has been "frozen" until November 29.

The other demands included:

Establishment of a $1-an-hour minimum rate in all plants.

Increase in pay of maintenance workers to $1.50 an hour.

Increase of all classification rates to those paid by competing plants in the Detroit area.

Abolition of a 9-cent hourly differential which the union said exists between Chrysler plants here and elsewhere.

Increase in rates for skilled trades.

Women workers to receive the same pay as men employes.

The company to give each employe with seniority rating a $100 war bond in December in lieu of a vacation.

AFL Accuses CIO 'Rebels' of 'Stab in Back'

By Joseph A. Loftus
Associated Press Staff Writer

The A. F. of L. took the position yesterday that the C. I. O. had rejected its peace offer. It not only termed the latter's counter proposals "fantastic," but said the C. I. O. "rebel movement" wanted A. F. of L. protection while stabbing A. F. of L. unions in the back with organizational raids.

This sharp comment on the action of the C. I. O. executive board last week appeared in the American Federation of Labor Weekly News Service, an official publication. Although generally regarded as authoritative, the statements were not credited to any individuals. High A. F. of L. officials have kept silent on the C. I. O. suggestion for a joint meeting of the two executive councils.

"Torn by internal strife and division," said the A. F. of L. article, "the C. I. O. has rejected the American Federation of Labor's invitation for immediate resumption of labor peace negotiations. This shortsighted decision came after a week of turmoil during which C. I. O. President Philip Murray and his former chief, John L. Lewis, came to a final parting of the ways with a bitter exchange of acrimonious insults.

"Faced by the loss of its largest affiliate, the United Mine Workers, the C. I. O. made it clear that it does not dare enter into discussions looking toward unity in the labor movement.

"The C. I. O. tried to cover up its rejection of the A. F. of L. peace bid by making public two fantastic counter proposals which were wholly unworthy of serious consideration. The executive board of the rebel movement adopted a resolution declaring that organic unity now was a 'false' issue. The resolution suggested a joint meeting of the executive councils of the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., or a joint conference of the international officers of both organizations, to work out a program for 'functional' unity.

"In other words, the C. I. O. is asking for the protection afforded by the power of the A. F. of L. while it continues to try to stab A. F. of L. unions in the back by organizational raids."

The article said there was no satisfactory substitute for organic unity and that a standing committee of three was the only body empowered by the A. F. of L. convention to negotiate labor peace. The United Mine Workers' policy committee took precisely the same position a week ago in demanding peace negotiations on the part of the C. I. O. John L. Lewis, president of the miners, was chairman of the C. I. O. peace committee of three, but C. I. O. President Murray declared Lewis no longer is chairman of any C. I. O. committee.

14 Regional Air Priority Posts Set Up in U. S.

By Francis J. Connor
Washington Bureau of Chicago Sun

Civilians in essential war work yesterday were put on an equal footing with military men in obtaining priorities on the Nation's airlines by action of the War Department.

The department established 14 regional air priority control offices to begin operations August 1. Each will be manned by a small staff of Army officers and will maintain service on a 24-hour basis.

These offices, the War Department said, will furnish "on the scene" authority on priorities which previously had to be obtained in Washington. They will acquaint local war plant officials how to obtain essential priorities quickly. They will prevent unauthorized persons obtaining right-of-way travel status.

Fewer Planes Available

The War Department in announcing a complete revision of its priorities machinery said it is designed to meet problems caused by decreased number of available airplanes.

Under the program, reservation for seat or cargo space, if priority is granted, will be made directly with the air carriers. Compliance is mandatory.

Four new classifications established by the Army and effective June 20 are:

1. White House personnel, or others for whom air transportation is directed for accomplishment of a particular mission by the President, and the Secretaries of War and Navy.

2. Airplane pilots of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps ferrying command specifically ordered to travel by military or the fastest available commercial aircraft.

Service Personnel

3. Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard and Allied government military personnel or others whose air travel specifically is ordered and civilians whose air travel is essential to expedite war production, construction, or other similar activities.

4. Army and Navy equipment and munitions' supplies and materials essential to the war effort when specifically ordered moved by priority air transportation by the War Department.

Priorities, the War Department stressed, will be issued only for passenger and cargo transportation, major inspection trips by the highest officials in the war effort, and missions which cannot be accomplished by train travel.

Special approval for priority will be required on trips requiring less than two hours and if the desired destination can be reached by rail in six hours.

German-American Bund Chief, Four Others Indicted as Spies

By International News Service

Hartford, Conn., June 10.—Gerhard Wilhelm Kunze, national leader of the German-American Bund, and four other men were indicted by a Federal grand jury today on charges of conspiracy to violate the 1917 Espionage Act by transmitting military information to Germany and Japan.

Indicted with Kunze, reportedly in Mexico, were:

Count Anastase Vonsiatsky, head of the All-Russia Fascist Party;

Dr. Otto Willumeit, head of the Chicago section of the German-American Bund;

Dr. Wolfgang Ebell, an El Paso, Tex., physician.

Vonsiatsky and Willumeit, arraigned before Judge Smith later in the day, both pleaded innocent to the charge. Bail for both was set at $25,000.

(In Philadelphia, the Rev. Mr. Molzahn told reporters the charges were "all news" to him. "I am merely pastor of my church and don't know anything about these charges," he said. He admitted to a slight acquaintance with Kunze, saying he had met him "two or three times in my life." He did not know the other men, he said.)

The indictments returned in Hartford alleged the five men conspired between January 1, 1941, and December 6, 1941, to collect and deliver to Germany and Japan information relating to national defense, "particularly information relating to numbers, personnel, disposition, equipment, arms and morale of the Army of the United States."

Washington, D. C., was among the cities in which the group are alleged to have held meetings.

The five also were accused of gathering for the Axis powers "the location, size, capacity . . . and other features of the United States Fleet; size, equipment and other features of military establishments, naval establishments, airports, aircraft, shipping and other establishments . . . Essential to the national defense of the United States."

Kunze, the indictment alleged, was the emissary for transmission of the information, and Vonsiatsky financed Kunze's trips.

Meetings were held among the accused men, it was charged, at Philadelphia, New York, St. Joseph, Mich.; San Francisco and Juarez, Mexico.

The Rev. Mr. Molzahn was alleged to have permitted use of his Philadelphia address for Kunze's return mail.

Detroit, June 10 (AP).—Wearing the uniform of an ober-lieutenant of the German Air Corps, Peter Krug jauntily walked into a Federal grand jury room here today to testify in the case of the Government against Max Stephen, German-born Detroit restaurateur accused of aiding him here after his escape from the Bowmanville, Ontario, prison camp.

Krug's appearance here in the custody of Maj. F. J. Chapple of the Canadian Army, revealed his promotion from a lieutenant to an ober-lieutenant. He had been shot down by the British and confined at Bowmanville.

Krug was captured in San Antonio, Tex., after a trip from Detroit to Chicago, thence through various Eastern cities to the Southwest. He had intended fleeing into Mexico but was captured through the alertness of a woman hotel keeper, who notified the FBI of his presence.

Someone wondered where Krug got his natty uniform, and Chapple said:

"We shot him down with the bally thing, I guess."

Sedition Suspect Is Jailed in Indiana

Indianapolis, June 10 (INS).—Lawrence A. Brown, secretary of the Fellowship Press, Inc., Noblesville, Ind., and editor of the Gallilean, alleged William Dudley Pelley Publication, surrendered today and was in jail in default of $5000 tonight.

He will be arraigned June 17.

Slippery Fellow

Nazi Agitator In Near East Skips Again

By the Associated Press

Cairo, June 10.—Germany's "Lawrence of Arabia," Dr. Fritz Grobba, was reliably reported today to have escaped from Yemen, in Arabia, where he had been tracked down after a hectic year in which he tried to stir up Arab tribesmen in Syria and Iran against the British.

Grobba, who formerly was German minister in Saudi, Arabia, was known as the "gold purse agitator" because of his lavish distribution of gold in an effort to win over the tribesmen to Germany's side. He has been known under the aliases, Hermann Graub and Arthur Borg.

As Hitler's chief agent in the Arab world, he worked in Syria until the British won control there and then fled to Iran. The British-Soviet occupation of that country soon had him on the run again. With a number of other Germans and Italians he escaped to Yemen under a false name.

Grobba's identity finally was discovered and British pressure exerted on the aged Imam of Yemen for his expulsion. Grobba remained, however, on the pretext he would return to Germany via Turkey. He was kept under close guard at San'a, capital of Yemen, but recently managed to make a getaway. His present whereabouts is not known.

UNION PACIFIC is doing its share to meet the nation's vital need for dependable transportation. It's a job we're proud to do. Over "the strategic middle route" connecting East with West, our gigantic locomotives are hauling not only war materials but also thousands of Uncle Sam's men in uniform.

Thus, it is apparent that travelers may not always find it possible to obtain their preferred accommodations. Perhaps only coach seats or upper berths will be available. To Union Pacific patrons, whom we have had the pleasure of serving and will continue to serve to the best of our ability, we would like to say "he who steps up also serves" and express our thanks for their cooperation.

D. C. Welfare Peace Parley Suggested

Legislator Asserts Board, Commission Iron Out Conflict

The District Commissioners and Board of Public Welfare were asked yesterday by Representative Hunter (Democrat) of Ohio to try to settle their current fight for control of Washington welfare activities around a conference table, as hearings opened on a bill to transfer the board's authority to the Commissioners.

Hunter, head of the House District Subcommittee taking testimony on the measure, asked Commissioner Mason to arrange such a conference after members of the board had admitted that there was need for reorganization of the welfare set-up.

They strongly opposed, however, the legislation advocated by the Commissioners which would strip the board down to a mere advisory body and create a Department of Public Welfare under the direct control of the Commissioners.

Commissioners Mason and Young urged passage of the bill on the grounds that the present system makes them responsible for welfare administration yet gives them no authority over it. Mason asserted that the measure was aimed at coordinating welfare activities and remedying present inefficiencies.

Declaring that there was "nothing personal" in his advocacy of the bill, Mason declared that a group of unpaid citizens could not properly administer the department and that a paid director should be placed in charge under the policy-directing supervision of the Commissioners.

Young echoed Mason's contention that the Commissioners were held responsible for the inadequacy of welfare institutions, but were now powerless to do anything about the situation. He also declared that there was a lack of cooperation on the part of the board, though suggesting that it would still be needed in an advisory capacity.

Members of the board, headed by Dr. H. J. Crosson, vice chairman, denied that they had been lax in cooperating with the Commissioners.

Doctor Crosson declared, on the other hand, that he and his colleagues had a hard time getting action out of the Commissioners or even getting to see them.

"The Commissioners are very busy men," he asserted. "They have a hundred and one things to do. I don't see how they are qualified to handle welfare problems."

Need for Personnel Told

He said that a member had to serve on the board for at least three years before he could really familiarize himself with the problems of public welfare, adding that "the Commissioners are not on the job long enough to grasp the problem."

A compromise conference was first suggested by Mrs. Frank A. Linzel, chairman of the child welfare section of the board. She said that reorganization was needed to adapt the public welfare system to current demands, but asserted that the pending bill was far from satisfactory.

Another member of the board, John R. Pinkett, also urged that both sides seek to get together, citing a need for more personnel as one of the principal handicaps to satisfactory operation of the welfare system.

Hunter then proposed that the conference be held with the Commissioners, the board and the Social Security Board in attendance, and asked that the results be reported back to the subcommittee. Decision on the measure is to be withheld pending the outcome of the settlement effort.

Short Shots
Late News Flashes Off The Wires

The telegraph news wires carried these briefs yesterday:

Columbus (Ohio) police and Federal agents were investigating the income of a one-legged beggar who began singing for alms to raise money to buy a chicken farm and made so much money he couldn't afford to quit.

Police found $373 in cash in his pockets and a diary which recorded these evidences of "good business":

Providence, R. I., $120 in ten days.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., $04.50 in ten hours.

Cleveland, $262 in three weeks.

New Haven, Conn., $360 in less than three weeks.

In San Rafael, Calif., Mrs. James Mead frantically telephoned police:

"There's a man under my bed."

A policeman, arriving on the double quick, pulled at the protruding boot and sprawled across the room as 4-year-old Jimmy Mead emerged from under the bed, saying:

"I knew I'd fool mommy, but I didn't think I'd fool the police, too."

Six out of seven youths who appeared at the Navy recruiting station in Topeka, Kans., were named Eugene. The seventh lived on Eugene Street.

In Coldwater, Mich., history failed to repeat for Oral J. Holderbaum. Holderbaum, 42, asked Irving L. Stansell, advisory draft board member, to help him fill out his questionnaire, reminding him:

"You did the same for me in 1918, but we never got it filed—it was half done when the armistice came."

The 1942 questionnaire was filed.

A Springfield (Ill.) taxicab driver who found a wallet containing $2700 in currency in his cab, turned it in to the police and told them he did not want his name published because some persons would consider him a "chump."

Members of the Espling family of Brooklyn are very happy but they're not on speaking terms. The paradox involves George Espling and his two sons, Bengt, 10, and Holger, 9.

As the lads dashed down the gangplank and greeted their father, George found they spoke only Swedish, which he has forgotten.

Negro Musician Quits $200-a-Week Job, Joins Navy

Atlanta, June 10 (AP).—Graham Jackson, Negro musician whose facile fingers ripple off Boogie-Woogie or Brahms with equal ease, has chucked a $200-a-week income to join the Navy and whoop it up at recruiting rallies.

President Roosevelt, says Graham proudly, "calls me his favorite musician, and I've played for him 23 times, in the White House in Washington and the Little White House at Warm Springs."

On one occasion at Warm Springs, the pianist-conductor related, the President was humming a tune "he had made up" and asked Graham if he could play it.

"I played it all out for him and am using it now as the basis for a patriotic symphony I want to dedicate to all the armed forces."

The 39-year-old musician, who plays any instrument in the bands he is training for the Navy, has been made a Chief Specialist, highest rank an enlisted man can hold in the Navy.

Caution Urged In Selection Of Farmerettes

Only women who are able to make a substantial contribution to production should be selected for farm work in the labor shortage areas, Mary Anderson, director of the Women's bureau of the Department of Labor, declared yesterday.

"Physical fitness for the job, training, and experience should be the determining factors in selecting prospective workers," she said.

Under no circumstances, Miss Anderson urged, should "women be permitted to lower existing standards of wages and working conditions."

"Because we believe that women are eager to make a practical contribution to the Nation's food-for-victory program," she said, "the Women's Bureau has examined carefully the wartime problems involved in the effective use of women on farms.

"Confusion and waste resulting from misdirected enthusiasm will be reduced to a minimum if individuals and local women's groups cooperate fully with the Federal agencies responsible for farm labor supply."

Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson has made his first solo airplane flight.

The No. 2 civilian of the War Department has been taking private flying lessons in the early morning hours before going to his desk.

"The word 'successfully' seems a bit superfluous," Patterson was quoted as saying. "The fact that I'm here proves that I was successful."

Chaplain's Bureau for Navy Urged by Protestant Group

By Robert Tate Allan

The Post Church Editor

Creation of a chaplains' bureau in the United States Navy was recommended yesterday by the General Commission on Army and Navy Chaplains, representing 30 Protestant bodies. It met at First Congregational Church, Tenth and G Streets Northwest.

The commission urged that the proposed bureau be headed by a chaplain with the rank of rear admiral and also that the Navy be asked to build chapels at important shore stations, both of the Navy, itself, and of the Marine Corps.

In presenting the matter of a Navy chaplaincy bureau in his report, Commission Director Dr. Arthur S. Devan of this city warned that "the Navy chaplaincy is being definitely retarded in its development by the fact that it does not constitute an independent bureau in the Navy but is simply a part of the Bureau of Naval Personnel."

Cites Present Difficulties

"Many matters of importance," said Doctor Devan, "have to pass through the hands of officers who may or may not sympathize with the chaplains' work, and have an understanding of their problems, before they can reach the final authorities."

Doctor Devan said that Bishop John Francis O'Hara of the military vicariate of the Roman Catholic Church has expressed a willingness to "take part in parallel but separate action" regarding the Naval Chaplaincy Bureau problem. Rabbi David de Sola Pool of the Jewish Welfare Board, has indicated that he will cooperate in anything the commission undertakes in the matter, according to Doctor Devan.

The commission moved that its executive committee, headed by Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, Methodist resident prelate, choose a committee to confer with Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox and other officials about the feasibility of the Naval Chaplaincy Bureau plan.

(The War Department has a separate Chaplains' Bureau, headed by Brig. Gen. William R. Arnold.)

Revision of regulations to expedite Army chaplains' appointments was revealed at the meeting.

According to a War Department communication, a candidate for original appointment as Army chaplain must be a United States citizen, or a citizen of a co-belligerent or friendly country, and must have reached his 24th, and not passed his 50th birthday. He must have acceptable ecclesiastical endorsement from his respective church body or its officially designated representative, and must pass the Army type physical examination.

Qualifications Listed

Candidates must submit evidence of the following:

A. B. or B. S. degree and B. D. or Th. B. degree, or graduation from an accredited college and seminary, together with a minimum of two years of pastoral experience, one of which must be full time, or

A. B. or B. S. degree, or graduation from an accredited college, and theological training required for ordination by his denomination, together with a minimum of three years of pastoral experience following ordination, or

B. D. or Th. B. degree, or graduation from an acceptable theological seminary and a minimum of three years of pastoral experience following ordination.

All applicants will be required to pass the Army final type physical examination. Authorization for this examination will be furnished by the Corps Area chaplain. All inquiries concerning appointment in the Corps of Chaplains should be addressed to the chaplain of the Corps Area in which the applicant resides.

Chief of Navy Chaplains Robert Workman and Chaplain George F. Rixey of the Army Chief of Chaplains' Office, gave off-the-record talks at the meeting.

Addressing the luncheon following the meeting, Dr. Jesse Bader of the department of evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches, reported steady progress in the preaching missions being conducted in Army camps and naval centers under the sponsorship of the Federal Council.

Stepin Fetchit Denies He's Father Of Dancer's Child

New York, June 10 (AP).—Stepin Fetchit, Hollywood's slow-motion comedian, shuffled into Special Sessions Court today to defend himself against charges he is the father of a Harlem dancer's 4-year-old son.

Described in the paternity proceedings as Lincoln Perry, 40, the comedian's billing in the court room drama was only slightly higher than Tap Dancer Bill Robinson, who testified against him.

Robinson told the court that Fetchit once had introduced as his wife Winnie Johnson, 23-year-old Negro dancer, who brought the action.

Fetchit vigorously denied being the father of the child, but declared that he once loaned Miss Johnson $3000 under an agreement by which she would "work it off" by appearing in shows with him.

The court reserved decision until Friday on a defense motion for dismissal of the charges.

All Men in Czech Town Slain

Only yesterday, during Heydrich's elaborate funeral rites in Berlin, Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler vowed complete revenge on his killers. The slaughter of Lidice was his macabre sequel.

The Prague broadcasts did not give the number of men of the village who were shot. It said the women had been sent to a concentration camp and the children to "educational centers."

"Other Hostile Acts" Charged

Besides being accused of hiding Heydrich's slayers, the population of the village was accused in the broadcast of having "committed other hostile acts, such as keeping an illegal dump of ammunition and arms and maintaining an illegal transmitter."

Meanwhile, it was apparent from German advices received today in Switzerland that a new wave of punitive measures was on the way, not only in Czecho-Slovakia but in other occupied countries.

Prague, Paris, Amsterdam, all Poland and Yugoslavia probably will be the first to feel the chill of this new terror campaign, it was indicated.

Of the approximately half-million Europeans already believed dead by the hand of the Nazi executioner, approximately 5 per cent were wiped out in mass "reprisal" killings of hostages. The remainder, including many women, were executed on various charges, such as sabotage, plotting and aiding the enemy.

Increased Resistance Seen

The Norwegian, Belgian and Netherlands governments and the Free French Committee here said the increased tempo of executions in the last few weeks indicated resistance to the Germans was increasing in direct ratio to the shootings.

The governments, in estimating the number killed, did not consider "the countless thousands who have died in concentration camps or from ill treatment and hunger as a result of the 'New Order.'"

The Yugoslav government estimated 350,000 killed in Yugoslavia, alone, and the Polish government said 90,000 Poles had been executed. They attributed the stupendous totals to German massacres of "entire villages in attempts to wipe out guerilla activity."

Incomplete totals picked up from German broadcasts tell a grim story of their own, with the best compilations showing nearly 7000 shootings and hangings reported by the Germans themselves.

A majority of the executions were never broadcast. Some were published in local papers which never reached London. One Czecho-Slovak official said:

Germans Don't Tell All

"A vast number of those killed was never made public at all, but we hear of them eventually via underground routes. For example, last November the Germans said nine students were executed as a result of riots in Prague, but we know of 120 who were killed."

In Norway, Belgium, the Netherlands and Czecho-Slovakia, and lately in France, the list of those shot reveals the Gestapo is following a definite pattern of wiping out "intellectual" leaders. Teachers are frequent victims in Norway, while professors, students and "liberal" officials have fallen in other countries.

Following is a tabulation of executions:

	Official Allied government estimates of number killed since German occupation	Number executions announced by Germans
Belgium	*250	83
France	†2,000	919
The Netherlands	148	148
Norway	93	93
Poland	90,000	2,000—4,000
Czecho-Slovia	†3,000	711
Yugoslavia	350,000	1,000—2,000

Helping The CDVO

A full year has now passed since the Civilian Defense Volunteer Office was opened here in the District and in one particular respect it is quite clear that public cooperation has been decidedly below par. Officials report that not nearly enough persons have registered for volunteer work. For this shortcoming there are, of course, a variety of reasons, practical and otherwise. But the fact remains that District defense efforts will continue to be severely handicapped unless many more residents sign up for emergency service.

So far about 33,000 men and women have registered and been assigned to 131 different types of jobs. This may seem to be an impressive showing—and so it is. But there are nevertheless critical shortages of personnel both in the protective services and in community welfare work. Scores of day-time air-raid wardens, typists, translators, librarians, playground supervisors, hospital receptionists, telephone operators, and so on, are needed. The CDVO will shortly open new registration offices in various parts of the District in the hope of enlisting enough volunteers to meet minimum safety requirements.

There is no question, of course, that it is asking a good deal of local residents—especially of those who have full-time jobs—to expect them to devote precious leisure hours to civilian defense work. But this is no more than workers are doing in other communities up and down the land. It is a civilian contribution to the war effort for which there is no recompense save the personal satisfaction of serving one's community.

House Balks

By a vote of 125 to 57 the House has instructed its conferees on the agricultural appropriation bill to insist that no Government-owned grain stocks shall be sold below parity except in case of deteriorated grains. At the urging of the Administration the Senate had voted to modify the House ban on sales below parity to permit the sale of 125 million bushels of wheat for feeding purposes at 85 per cent of corn parity. The Department of Agriculture has presented strong arguments in support of this Senate amendment, but its appeals have been of no avail in the House against the demand of farm organizations for parity prices.

Department of Agriculture officials point out, for example, that the House prohibitions upon sales of stored grains below parity would drive up all corn and wheat prices, thus raising the cost of feeding cows, chickens and hogs, with resultant increases in prices of dairy products and meats. It is further pointed out that maintenance of corn prices at present levels of about 85 per cent of parity will not injure the farmer, as his income will be supplemented by so-called parity payments.

Wheat growers, of course, are similarly protected. Furthermore, the problem of disposing of tremendous prospective wheat surpluses threatens to become very serious, unless some wheat can be sold at prices enabling it to compete with corn and other feed grains. Storage space for wheat is already about exhausted, and a large proportion of the new crop will have to be kept on farms, with danger of deterioration. Congressman Hope, speaking for a wheat-growing district, warns that "unless we can get rid of some of this wheat for feed we are going to have to further reduce wheat acreage and cut the average wheat farmer down to where his acreage permitted for wheat will be so small it will not pay him to produce wheat."

With a shortage of feed grains in prospect, there is no reason to believe that limited sales of wheat in competition with corn would, as Representative Gilchrist insists, "raise hell with the market for corn." The fact is that, sales or no sales, prices to the farmer will be held up by price supporting loans and parity payments. But it makes a tremendous difference to the public whether Government-owned potential feed surpluses are sold now or withheld from sale to boost market prices. In the former case our food-for-war program will be aided at a limited cost to the Treasury in the form of benefit payments to farmers. In the latter case inflationary advances in prices of many foods will be deliberately engineered by the enforced hoarding of surplus grains.

Our war effort will be impeded, in consequence, both by dislocations caused by rising living costs and by the inability of the Government to use grain reserves to stimulate production of livestock and poultry. The House has been short-sighted as well as unpatriotic, therefore, in refusing to accept the Senate modification of its ban upon sales of Government-owned stocks below parity.

Common Pool

The chain linking our effort with Britain's has been completed with the establishment of the Combined Production and Resources Board and the Combined Food Board. Already there had been set up the combined staffs for the strategical conduct of the war in common. Raw materials and shipping had been subjected to coordination as between the two national industries by another combined board. But the production of the materials of war by the two countries awaited the kind of dovetailing which is promised by the joint announcement in Washington and London. Under this regime the war production czars of the two countries will now work together as one team.

It was essential to have this machinery set up as the starting point on the road to victory. But men work machinery. And it is necessary to know what they are going to do with their new organizational tools. Their stated goal is to develop "a single integrated program adjusted to the strategic requirements of the war." How can that goal be attained? Let us start with a generalization. An "international WPB" to do the job properly requires that both countries shall produce those munitions of which they are most capable. This would be the wartime application of the old economic ideal of specialization of function. Take, for example, the vital air arm. We in this country are best fitted to concentrate on the production of long-range bombers. That is because we specialize in mass production, which to be successful requires an unchangeable model. Britain's specialty lies in what is called "batch" production. In other words, its industry is adapted to quick changes in models, such as, for instance, are required for short-range fighter planes. Aside from the native genius, moreover, the British simply cannot afford the long layoffs needed for retooling on a mass production job. Because of this adaptability in the light of combat experience the British fighter planes are the best available to the anti-Axis armies.

So far both countries have been going their own way in more or less watertight compartments. Dovetailing, in consequence, will call for a good deal of preliminary unscrambling. There must be changeovers, adaptations, and a complete overhaul of the production programs in both countries. Is there enough authority vested in the production czars to make the switch? Certainly Production Minister Lyttelton has enough authority. He is a ranking cabinet minister, senior even to the ministers in charge of the navy and the army. Our Mr. Nelson, alas, is not of equal rank. He is not even in the Cabinet—as he should be—and there always is danger that his work might be impeded by the fighting services, especially when it comes to choice of models. In making this new arrangement work, therefore, Mr. Nelson will need to be more than ever supported by the President's prestige.

Not so much change will be required on the food front. Already Secretary Wickard has thrown himself zealously into the job of insuring food for the Freedom Front out of our ample supplies. We are the granary of the United Nations. Food growing in Britain, which has never been sufficient to supply home needs, has increased, but it must always be limited by space, which, moreover, is required for military activity. For instance, you cannot travel five miles in Britain without coming to an airdrome. This construction work, which will inure to our advantage when our clouds of planes fill the British sky, coexists with vast munitions plants which enable the British still to be way ahead of this country in output. Altogether the new arrangement strikes a great blow in behalf of the Freedom Front. Under it we can get the best results in the quickest time.

Fighter Performance

So far there has been no official confirmation of a reported decision to concentrate on the production of long-range bombing planes here and short-range fighters in Britain. But if such a decision has been or is about to be made, it may be taken for granted that the end in view is the intelligent integration of American and British aircraft production programs in the shortest possible time. That is unquestionably a vital contributory reason for the presence in this country of British Production Minister Lyttelton. In the circumstances, therefore, recent British and Russian criticism of American fighter planes has a special immediacy.

Several days ago it was reported from London, and indirectly from Moscow, that the battle performance of the American Airacobra, for which extravagant claims have been made, is not quite what it has been cracked up to be. Apparently, British and Russian pilots have a certain respect for the Airacobra, but feel that neither it nor any of the other American fighter models, with the possible exception of the Republic Thunderbolt, can match the newest German fighters.

This is doubtless true in the sense that the American ships in action cannot operate with maximum effectiveness at upward of 35,000 feet, as can the Nazi Focke Wulf, for example. But the fact is that they were not intended to. The Airacobra, for instance, was designed as a fast interceptor with a critical altitude of some 15,000 feet. At that altitude it is admittedly in a class by itself. Moreover, it was built and equipped to meet British specifications, and in fact did meet them. Consequently, the British can hardly have been laboring under the illusion that they were getting a high altitude plane when the Airacobras began to arrive.

There is no question, of course, that we must build high altitude planes, capable of equaling and preferably exceeding the performance of the new Focke Wulf. For fighter supremacy in the substratosphere is indispensable to the air superiority we intend to achieve and hold. It is quite clear that Allied air requirements now necessitate the production of fighters for specific purposes. The all-purpose fighter, such as was in operation early in the war, is a phenomenon of the past.

Oh, Han' Me Down—!

Our friends who have an eye for such trifles tell us that a good many dashing young officers of the swivel chair chasseurs, the desk pad dragoons and the desk drawer hussars here in Washington have lately been seen in public carrying swagger sticks. If you are old enough to remember the previous international unpleasantness, you may recall that a a swagger stick is a sort of compromise between a schoolmaster's ferrule and a field marshal's baton. It is rather less practical than the one and rather less ornamental than the other. Doubtless the fashion has been set by the numerous British and Canadian officers now on duty here.

The swagger stick, indeed, is affected by virtually all ranks of the British army in their peripatetic moments. It has an obvious origin in the fact that the walking stick is one of the most precious, permanent and indestructible of British institutions. An Englishman without some sort of object in his hand is the equivalent of an American without some sort of covering on his legs. That is to say, such an Englishman would feel, if not exactly naked, at least immodest.

It is an ancient instinct going back doubtless to the medieval pilgrims who carried staves in one hand and rosaries in the other. But since a walking stick would be a distinctly unmilitary accoutrement, and since a sword or halberd would be somewhat awkward, the swagger stick was invented. At worst it is no more incongruous than those riding crops once affected by French infantry officers or the monocles still affected by eagle-eyed Prussian colonels.

For long, however, Americans of the male persuasion were distinguished from all other races by a singular species of self-discipline which enabled them to keep their hands absolutely empty and idle when engaged in such impractical occupations as strolling or conversation. The weaker spirits might occasionally and furtively fondle watch charms, jingle pennies, play with string, whittle pinewood, or twirl key chains, but such objects as snuff boxes, conversation beads, Tibetan prayer mills and Valois cup and ball gadgets, were virtually unknown among us.

It is said, however, that this good old self-restraint of our ancestors is disappearing. Many men of mature age, it is said, can be persuaded to take a walk over pleasant green meadows only when they are given a set of iron wands and a little ball to push around with them. It is also said that there now are American men who would feel as helpless and ashamed without their brief cases as would their wives without their reticules and powder compacts. Maybe, then, the swagger stick fills what the boys who run the English language nowadays like to call a deep-rooted psychological need.

UP THE THAMES

(A Recollection)

The day we started to look for the kingfisher
The may was in half flower, and the young-leaved quivering
Willows with roots in sky thrust up through the water.
Upstream where we moored to watch for the kingfisher,
We heard the slender note of the willow-warbler,
Aerial clear—oh where?—suddenly fading
Into the leaves like his own leaf-colored wings.
And watching there in vain for the kingfisher
We saw the nimble wagtail flash in the sun—
Dart, flirt, alight for a moment and then away—
And once a swan, full sail, aloof, alone.
All day so close to the haunts of the kingfisher,
Listening, waiting, we lived in a green kingdom
Of light and leaves, of wing-flicker and flight
Of chirp and bird-chatter and water gleaming
But putting the boat up we called it a day lost
Because we had started to look for the kingfisher.

Not Vehgeance

Undoubtedly millions of Americans felt a devout thrill when their Pacific Fleet commander sent that Midway Island message, "A momentous victory is in the making." But I suspect some hundreds of thousands of them felt themselves wince when he added, "Pearl Harbor has been partially avenged," and "Vengeance will not be complete until Japanese sea power has been reduced to impotence."

My point is, that while we welcome every victory as a step toward establishing world freedom, there are great bodies of Americans who refuse to think of the American effort as a war of "vengeance" and will not give their full support to it as such. To many the famous text in Romans xii: 19—"Vengeance is mine: I will repay, saith the Lord"—holds great significance. That's why they shrink mentally when any news or editorial writer, combat-leader, or anybody else, assumes to link them up with a war of "vengeance." And while "Remember Pearl Harbor" has been often used as a vengeful war slogan its real significance to most American minds, I believe, is, "Don't let's be caught napping again!"

Words are powerful. Let's choose the ones that say what we really mean. OSCAR L. STEVENS.

National Gallery Concert

Life at its best is none too good—and more especially when one is separated from his home and family. Fortunately, there are men in the world like Mr. Chester Dale, who do something tangible for their fellow humans.

Tonight, I had the extreme pleasure of listening to a beautiful concert at the National Gallery of Art, under the able direction of Mr. Francis Garzia, and which concert was made possible through the generosity of Mr. Dale.

That concert might have been called the rendezvous of the masters, since works of Beethoven, Mozart, Chopin, Mascagni and others were, in a way, blended in with the master pieces of Rembrandt, Raphael, Titian, Tintoretto and a host of others.

The historic fountain in the east wing, where the concert was played, seemed to gurgle and splash with joy, when its compatriot George Bizet entered—with Carmen on his arm.

May we express our apreciation to Mr. Dale for his thoughtfulness and kindness in providing the musical program that we heard this evening. EDWIN RYAN.

Bad Influence Of Relief

On Wednesday, June 3, Mr. Bernard J. Gehrman of Wisconsin, in an extension of his remarks in the Congressional Record, said, in part: "To win the peace and make that peace a permanent universal peace we must have a people free from want and free from fear. We must free our own people now; free our senior citizens from actual want and thereby free their children from fear that their parents are in want, by granting now pensions to all those over 60. The American people are overwhelmingly in favor of Government pensions. The Gallup poll of last year amazed all of us with its revelation that 91 per cent of the people consulted favored Government pensions."

If a majority of Americans are in favor of Government pensions, then God help America. Reduced to its simple terms this is a proposition to place the entire citizenship ultimately on relief. No more shameful insult was ever offered to a so-called free people. Its inevitable consequence is obvious. Statistics from the State of Wisconsin, I believe, showed that the birth rate among the pitiful recipients of relief rose 60 per cent. This measure is intended to provide relief for those above the age of 60. What is not said is that there is a class in this country that has grown under the New Deal by leaps and bounds who would feel they are no longer under any necessity whatever of exercising industry, care, or thrift, to provide for themselves when in the course of nature they have ceased to be able to exert themselves. They would feel, if they concerned themselves about the matter at all, that careless improvidence would no longer entail penalties; that the shiftless, the inefficient, the careless, are no longer subject to the corrections provided by Providence to prevent the increase of their kind at the expense of the industrious and self respecting.

Defense Expenditures

It was gratifying to note in The Washington Post of June 3 that the Navy Department was reported as being interested in curtailing unnecessary work.

The writer had hoped for a long time that your valuable paper, for the sake of real patriotism, would promote the idea of the necessity for conservation of time and material by the defense agencies as well as by the nondefense ones. Are the swivel chair officers in the Army and Navy who put their signatures to the papers that authorize the spending of the taxpayers' money experienced businessmen? Has an investigation ever been made to estimate how much is actually being spent by the defense departments that could not possibly have anything to do with winning the war and hastening the day when the atrocities committed by the Germans and Japanese will come to an end? Land Our Troops

"Western Front Now." These words are written in fire in the skies of "conquered" Europe. They burn, too, in the hearts of the people enslaved by Hitler. Is not the removal of Heydrich by the Czech patriots a sign that all Europe awaits the call to action?

Such a call can only come when British and American troops land in force on the continent.

Civilian Medical Shortages

Almost a year ago, Sibley Hospital elected to close its maternity wards to combat a fatal epidemic of infant diarrhea, thereby giving this Nation's Capital its first grim warning of an inevitable shortage in hospital beds. A vigilant press publicized the undisputable facts and demanded remedial action to no practical avail. Now we are authoritatively informed that this tragic situation will be further aggravated, by a rapidly growing shortage in trained nurses required to service these inadequate beds. This time, the municipal ox is gored and huge hospitalization investments are faced with certain bankruptcy, so some formal and organized effort is made to provide a remedy, such as the four-point program sponsored by our lawyer Commissioner, Mr. Mason.

This writer, while substantially agreeing in principle with three of Commissioner Mason's proposals, nevertheless raises the question as to their efficiency to do more than safeguard the public against a similar shortage of trained nurses in the future. Obviously these proposals fail to take into consideration the fact that insofar as community welfare is concerned, the hospital-bed shortage and the trained nurse shortage is one and the same problem and to propose to solve the one without the other simultaneously is not common sense.

Upon analyzing these proposals it would appear to be far more sensible to wipe out the protested and troublesome wage differentials now existing between equally qualified trained nurses doing comparable professional duty in military and civilian capacities, by an equalizing Federal wage-hour decision, rather than to depend upon an ephemeral Federal subsidy as an economic corrective. With the present inordinate and increasing levies upon the taxpayer, a Federal subsidy should be the last resort.

Fortunately an administrative technique has already been devised and is in actual operation, which with some modification could be equitably applied to our combined hospital-bed and trained nurse shortage. This writer naturally refers to the realistic administrative mechanism, known as the Committee of Procurement and Assignment, which under joint Federal and civilian control and cooperation, have completely catalogued and classfied the total available supply of the Nation's qualified physicians, and is purposed to use the rule of reason in rationing them according to existing military and civilian needs.

Conceivably two major objections might be argued against such centralization and coordination of authority: the first on the grounds that it would be an unconstitutional and highly discriminatory interference with one's legitimate and habitual sphere and freedom of action; second, that there is no actual, valid community of essential interest and reciprocal relationship between the hospitalization and nursing needs of civilian and military groups, such as to justify a joint plan of all-over control and cooperation, herein proposed.

The answer to the first is best phrased by the beloved liberal, Mr. Justice Holmes, in the second of his collected lectures on the common law: "No society has ever admitted that it could not sacrifice individual welfare to its own existence."

The answer to the second possible objection, springs from this writer's considered belief that current observations of modern total warfare, must convince the most reluctant that the fate and fortune of civilian and military groups are not only identical but coincident. The successful conduct and prosecution of modern total warfare means total mobilization and coordination of the Nation's total resources and energies and not their separate consideration and application as civilian production and military aggression. Why the absurdity and folly of idle nurses and doctors and empty hospital beds, ear-marked for exclusive military use, and in the same community, for no justifiable reason, civilian misery and hardship, due to their lack?

Maintain WPA

There is a great criticism of relief projects at this time, and everyone knows it is justifiable. But I am writing as one who knows the situation quite well, and I am pleading for the maintenance of WPA.

I am the widow of a captain in last war—I am almost 56 years old, and I have raked everything that was possible to find a position with no result. I had no business training and was above the age limit. Finally I resorted to the WPA. It was a terrible blow, but I finally pulled myself out. I succeeded in getting clerical work, and have been reclassified to better work since that time.

There are numberless men and women with whom I work who are absolutely dependent on their earnings for their board and food, and the distress they would undergo if the WPA was done away with would be beyond imagination. Many of these people are elderly and not in good health, and they show great courage getting to work every day—some of them on buses or streetcars 2 hours a day.

Last July, when almost every one was laid off for weeks or months, there was the most terrible situation. It took several days for me to overcome the memory of it.

The Post Impressionist

Navy Child

There are few today who would ever think of the United States Navy having any connection with such an institution as a botanic garden. And yet, it was exactly 100 years ago today, June 11, 1842, that the U. S. S. Vincennes, Lieut. Charles Wilkes commending, put into New York Harbor and thereby set off a train of events which, more than anything else, is responsible for the existence of the United States Botanic Garden, now located at the foot of the western slope of Capitol Hill on Maryland Avenue.

The Vincennes had just returned from a four-year cruise around the world. She, along with five other vesels, had set out in August, 1838, on the famous United States Exploring Expedition to the South Seas. During this period great portions of the Antarctic and Pacific Oceans had been surveyed, and a vast stretch of Antarctica still bears the name "Wilkes Land" on modern maps in honor of the commander of the expedition. At every stop along the voyage the botanists and horticulturists who accompanied the expedition had combed the countryside, collecting specimens with an avidity that has rarely been surpassed, if we may judge from old records and reports. As a result, stowed aboard the returning vessels as they dropped anchor were some 10,000 species of plants, cuttings, seeds and nuts.

Great care had been taken to keep the plants alive and many of the speciments were of the rarest kinds, completely unknown in the United States. It became imperative for the Government to provide suitable space where the plants might be placed on exhibition. For this purpose the so-called National Gallery of the old Patent Office was chosen and at the same time Congress took up the matter of an appropriation for the construction of greenhouses on a vacant lot behind the Patent Office.

This office at that time was located on F Street between Seventh and Ninth Streets Northwest, being the south wing of the building now occupied by the Civil Service Commission. The east, west and north wings of the present structure had not yet been built and it was on this portion of the land that it was decided to erect the greenhouses.

Although the United States Botanic Garden thus might be said to be marking its hundredth anniversary in 1942, efforts to create such an institution had been going on for many years prior to the return of the exploring expedition. The idea had been broached as early as 1812 and in 1820 a botanic garden had actually been established under the auspices of the Columbia Institute for the Promotion of Arts and Sciences. This garden remained in existence for 17 years when it died a desultory death due to the inactivity of the institute.

Now, however, Congress was behind the idea. The United States had made a major contribution to the sum of man's scientific knowledge and the least that could be done to show proper appreciation of this contribution was for the Government to provide a suitable place to house the collection and carry on the experiments dictated by an awakening interest in science.

So, during the two years the return of the expedition construction of greenhouses went on apace and as rapidly as there were completed the "exotic" plants were transfered. The collections and the establishments were under the overall custodianship of Henry L. Ellsworth, commissioner of patents, while actual supervision and direction of the greenhouses devolved upon William D. Brackenridge, who had accompanied the expedition as horticulturist.

In 1849 the Botanic Garden had to make way for the east wing of the Patent Office. The new location chosen was at the foot of the west end of Capitol Hill near Pennsylvania Avenue. This was virtually the same site as had been occupied by the garden established by the Columbia Institute. An appropriation of $5000 was provided for the transfer of the greenhouses and plants.

It was not until 1867 when Congres appropriated the then munificent sum of $35,000 for the erection of a "new greenhouse with central dome and wing" that the garden was able to boast a conservatory. This remained in use until the present conservatory, authorized in 1927 and built at a cost of $633,000, was opened to the public early in 1933. This latter building is located several hundred yards south of the site of the old conservatory which was dismantled after the plants had been transferred.

Soviet Policies—Domestic And Foreign

Excerpts from letter to Stephen Early

Moscow, February 10, 1937.

DEAR STEVE: The tempo with which things move here is very rapid. I have been here now about two weeks and events have crowded in so rapidly that it seems like two months.

The luncheon the Commissar of Foreign Trade (Rosengoltz) gave was unusual and interesting. We drove out over the white countryside for about 35 miles over the Stalin Road. It was a region of country estates with fences about 10 feet high, usually painted green, all with the appearance of being smartly kept up. The winding approach from the road to the dacha was attractive. The house was large and comfortable. It was well and attractively furnished after the rather heavy modern German type.

JOSEPH E. DAVIES

On the way home we passed Stalin's dacha. It again was surrounded by a high palisade of painted fence with a few soldiers about. He is almost inaccessible, but I think I will see him before I leave.

These commissars certainly treat themselves well. They live either in the Kremlin or out in their country homes or both.

They all have a very great admiration for the President and the extent of their information as to what he has done and the manner in which he has done things is quite extraordinary. They all plied me with questions and manifested the greatest interest in everything about him, expressing the opinion that he is the world's greatest figure in government.

Diary

Moscow, February 11, 1937.

THE BELGIAN Minister, De Tellier, has been here a long time. I had a most interesting discussion with him today.

The weakness of the U. S. S. R. in relations with the outside was the Comitern. Hitler, he thought, was violent against the Soviets in order to make political capital for "home consumption;" but it was entirely possible for Hitler to tie up with Stalin, if Stalin would agree not to project propaganda in Germany. Stalin, in his opinion, would "ditch" the Comitern in a minute if he were assured of peace. He holds on to it as a military defensive agency. Stalin's policy is that he must have peace for the development of the U. S. S. R.

To the Honorable Pat Harrison

Moscow, February 16, 1937.

DEAR PAT: This situation over here was a great surprise to me. The books which I have read preparatory to coming here have the defect of being too extreme either one way or the other. The truth lies somewhere in the middle.

There is no question but what human nature is working here the same old way. There are many indications of it. The bureaucracy all live very well and many have their own country houses, or dachas. Many of the workers are making more money by reason of the piece-work system which is being installed to speed up industry. There are luxury shops on the streets here in profusion: Fresh-flower shops, stores exclusively devoted to perfume, fingernail polish, and so forth for women; the old biological urge stimulating both women and men to acquire capitalistic money more than somebody else in order to indulge themselves in luxuries.

In the government itself they are swinging to nationalism, exalting the fatherland, singing their national anthem. The world revolution is secondary.

They have a strong army and think they can defend themselves against either Germany or Japan or both.

In the army, I am told, they devote as much time to political communist instruction as they do to the military and technical field. They frankly admit that they are attempting to change human nature in a generation. It is some job.

From Report to the Secretary of State

Moscow, February 19, 1937.

The visit to Moscow of Dr. R. Holsti, the Foreign Minister of Finland.

Strictly Confidential.

SIR: I have the honor to report the following with reference to the recent visit to Moscow of Dr. R. Holsti, the Finnish Foreign Minister.

There is much speculation here as to the significance and purpose of the visit. The Russian and Finnish governments now have a pact of nonaggression. Speculation has arisen as to whether this might mean that there was a possible extension of that agreement to include a pact of mutual defense. I have discussed the situation with a number of diplomats here and the consensus is that it was simply a general interchange of friendly discussions upon trade matters, with perhaps a background that Finland desired to establish to the Scandinavian countries; that the rumors which have been current that there is an understanding between Finland and Germany in connection with a possible German attack by way of the Baltic were unfounded.

The main reason for the visit was the decision of Finland definitely to assume a position of neutrality vis-a-vis Germany and the Soviet Union and to become a member of the neutral Scandinavian bloc, at present composed of Norway, Sweden and Denmark. During the last six months there had been a number of informal conversations between representatives of the Finnish government and those of the Scandinavian countries. The Scandinavian countries had given Finland to understand that before it could become closely associated with them it must first convince the Soviet Union of its neutrality. The Holsti visit was a concrete step in this direction.

From Report to the Secretary of State

Moscow, February 19, 1937.

Strictly Confidential.

SIR: I have the honor to report a conversation which I had with Mr. Litvinov, People's Commissar for Foreign Affairs, on February 15, on the occasion of a luncheon at this embassy, extended to Mr. Litvinov and his staff.

Litvinov commented upon the Runciman visit to the President and asked directly whether discussions were had with reference to participation in economic aid to Germany. To this I replied that I was not informed except through the press. He appeared to be very much disturbed about it and again voiced his almost bitter attitude that France and England should be engaging in discussions at all with Germany.

I then asked him whether he did not see an indication in Hitler's speech of a differentiation between the Russian people and the Russian government and an opening that would permit some statement from an official spokesman of the Russian government to the effect that it would engage itself not to project propaganda in Germany provided Germany would not project its propaganda into Russia and ventured the opinion that such a statement would deprive Hitler of his chief argument against Russia. His reply was negative; that Germany was concerned solely with conquest and it was a mistake to magnify Hitler's importance by engaging in discussions of the character which France and England were projecting.

IN THAT CONNECTION I wish to report that I have very carefully probed the opinion of some of the diplomats who have been here longest as to their views as to whether or not an arrangement between Russia and Germany was within the realm of possibility, despite their apparent bitter attitude at the present time, and the opinion is general that both sides might compose any difficulty if there were advantages to be gained.

The other matter which Litvinov brought up and concerning which he seemed much disturbed was the matter of pending neutrality legislation in the United States. He urged that all neutrality laws were designed as a protest against war; that at the present time such neutrality legislation from that point of view was misdirected and that it was not an agency of peace for, he urged, as in the present Spanish situation the effect of such neutrality legislation would be to project still greater dangers of war in Europe.

Enclosure to Foregoing Dispatch Prepared by Staff Members

Strictly Confidential.

On February 17, the ambassador entertained at luncheon a Soviet official, "Baron" Steiger, who is known to enjoy the confidence of the Kremlin.

With respect to the recent visit of the Finnish Foreign Minister, Baron Holsti, the ambassador's guest stated that the visit should be neither overrated nor underrated. It had been motivated on the Finnish side by the desire of the Finnish government, in the face of the coming elections, to offset the criticisms to the effect that the government was pro-German. Questioned as to the nature of the sentiments among the Finnish people which had led to the charges of pro-Germanism levied against the government, the guest replied that these sentiments were pacifistic in nature, rather than pro-Russian. The feeling against Russia in general—whether Tsarist or Bolshevik—was still very strong in Finland.

The talk then turned to Germany, and the ambassador's guest expressed the opinion that any aggressive actions by Germany at the present time or in the near future would have catastrophic consequences for Germany herself. That was particularly true of any attempt toward expansion in the east.

THERE WERE only two ways through which Germany could attack Russia. One was through Lithuania and the Baltic states. The other was by way of Czecho-Slovakia and Rumania. In either case, the lines of communication would be too long and the gateway of the attack too narrow. Furthermore, the German military machine was still not ready for major action. The planes were too slow and the tanks too light. Chances for German expansion were better at the present time in the direction of Austria, Hungary and Yugoslavia.*

(*Steiger was a kind of mystery man in Moscow. His official position at the head of the cultural bureau was not accepted as significant of his real functions. He was regarded as a kind of liaison man between the Kremlin and the Diplomatic Corps.)

(After lunch I took him off to one side and asked him confidentially, how, in the face of the purge and terror, he, himself, was faring. He shrugged his shoulders expressively and pointed his index finger to the back of his neck behind the ear. Steiger's premonition was well founded. One evening later in the season we were invited to be guests of the government for the premiere of a new opera. Steiger was in the party. After the performance, my daughter and others were invited by Baron Steiger to go for a bite to eat and dance at the night club at the Hotel Metropole. Shortly after midnight, seated at their table, Baron Steiger was tapped on the shoulder by two men in civilian dress. He left with them, excusing himself and saying he would be back shortly. He never returned and was never seen thereafter.)

His Fears Came True

Japanese diplomats in the United States since the outbreak of the Pacific war will sail from New York today aboard the Swedish liner Gripsholm on the first leg of their 15,000-mile journey homeward via Portuguese East Africa, where they will be exchanged for American diplomats from the Far East.

For six months since Japanese planes swooped over Pearl Harbor, Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura and his staff have been in closely guarded seclusion at Hot Springs, Va., and at White Sulphur Springs. Through the medium of such newspapers as were allowed to reach them, they have watched America put its shoulder to the wheel in the mightiest war effort of its history.

Nomura's first duty upon his return will be to report to the Emperor and to Premier Tojo, on America's reaction to the war and the progress of America's war effort. The picture he will draw of American unity, determination and fast-growing military might is one from which the Tokyo war clique will derive little comfort.

NOMURA personally will experience some secret satisfaction in being able to tell his government what America has accomplished during these six epic months. For, whether or not he had foreknowledge of the army-navy plan to attack the United States—and chances are that he did not—he had repeatedly warned Tokyo that a Japanese challenge would find America ready and eager to fight, and that in the end America's far superior economic strength would give her the victory.

Nomura's appraisal of this country's fighting power dates back to World War I, when he was naval attache in Washington. Talking to the writer last summer, he remarked that he had never forgotten how American shipyards then began turning out vessels at a rate hitherto believed impossible, and he added that for Japan, even today, such feats were quite impossible. Perhaps, for this reason, he was one of Japan's few admirals who remained a supporter of the 5:3 fleet ratio and looked with dismay on the prospect of a parity building race with America.

Nomura also believed, and did not hesitate to say, that America gravely underestimated the striking power of Japan's fleet. He foresaw a long, mutually exhausting struggle if war came, but he knew that in such a contest it would be the country with the greater resources, industrial power and endurance that would win. Quite naturally, he consistently opposed Japan's tying up with the Axis.

So, when he came to Washington as ambassador early in 1941, it was with determination to do everything possible to check the alarming trend of Japanese-American relations. Significantly enough, he had thrice refused the post despite Foreign Minister Matsuoka's pleadings, largely because he doubted that the policies of the ruling army and "younger" navy cliques offered hope of any successful negotiations with Washington.

Nomura finally accepted after he had wrested from Matsuoka a promise that the army and navy would do nothing to hamstring his efforts for a rapproachement. How worthless that promise was became apparent soon after he started serious negotiations with Secretary of State Cordell Hull, when Japanese troops moved into southern Indo-China.

Out of tune with both his own government and the State Department, the harassed envoy confessed privately more than once that he felt like packing his bags and going home. The only thing that kept him from doing so was a sailor's sense of duty and the slim hope that he might still keep Japanese-American peace from piling on the rocks.

IN FACT, the shortsighted, reckless war party was already pulling the strings behind the Tokyo scenes and later won full control of the government when Tojo became premier, scorned Nomura's "defeatist" attitude toward America. They thought, wishfully, that even if Japan attacked America, the easygoing American people would balk at shouldering a crushing war burden, that strikes would continue to paralyze war effort, and that democratic disunity would prevent the effective prosecution of hostilities.

Now, six months after Pearl Harbor, events have proven that Nomura was right and the warlords wrong. Anyone who knows the blunt-speaking old admiral knows that he will not mince words in telling the militarists of their blunder, and what he says will be doubly impressive because, to all appearances, Japan's riotous military honeymoon is coming to an end.

Mounting United Nations land, sea and air strength in the Southwest Pacific is making it increasingly hazardous for Japan not only to launch new aggressions toward Australia and India, but to hold what she has already grasped. General Doolittle's raid over Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya and Kobe has brought the horror of modern warfare home to the Japanese civilian population for the first time in their history, and the Coral Sea battle, even if it was given the garb of a Japanese victory, showed that American fleet units are still on the spot and able to deal serious blows.

If the present trend continues, the war situation will have become still more adverse to Japan by the time Nomura reaches home in midsummer. The moment will, therefore, be psychological for him to tell the Emperor and cabinet the plain truth about America's war effort.

To the public, unfortunately, Nomura will not be able to speak his mind, but the people already know him as a stanch advocate of Japanese-American friendship. What sort of popular reception he gets upon his return will thus serve as an interesting gauge of rank-and-file sentiment toward the war.

If the people have begun to realize the full perils into which the militarist challenge to America has plunged them, they will receive Nomura with sympathy and respect. If, on the contrary, the mad intoxication of the first few months, when Japan was everywhere victorious, still prevails, he may be greeted with jeers and insults as he walks down the gangplank at Kobe.

This almost certainly would have happened had he gone back a few months earlier. Indeed, some fanatic might even have presented him with a dagger with a white hilt and sheath, which in old Japan was the customary way of hinting that the recipient should commit harakiri to wipe out his disgrace.

Whatever reception he gets, however, Nomura can be counted upon to tell the Japanese government the plain facts about the determination and unity with which the American Nation is today tackling the mightiest war program the world has ever seen. He will tell them that Pearl Harbor wiped out overnight the last vestiges of complacency and "business as usual" among the public and made of Japan an enemy even more hated than Nazi Germany.

He will tell them, too, that the tax-hating American citizen is cheerfully digging into his pockets to pay a heavily increased proportion of his income to the Government for war purposes, and that he is taking rationing and other wartime restrictions in his stride, making a mental not that the Axis shall be made to pay for this wholesale upheaval in his customary way of life.

Finally, he will draw a startling picture of American wartime industry, where strikes are a thing of the past and where giant factories, including the new Ford aircraft plant at Willow Run, are turning out planes, ship tanks and guns on a scale far exceeding anything achieved in World War days, and dwarfing Japanese war production to Lilliputian proportions.

There is little in this picture that can give cause to rejoice to Premier Tojo and his colleagues. There is much to make them ponder whether the attack on Pearl Harbor was such a clever idea after all.

America At A Turning Point Of the War

THE FORMATION of the Nelson-Lyttelton agency, known as the Combined Production and Resources Board marks an important stage in our conduct of the war.

LIPPMANN

THEORETICALLY, such a board might usefully have been created six months ago when Mr. Churchill was in Washington. It was not created then for various reasons, among them the fact that neither here nor in Britain was there then any one with the authority over production which Mr. Nelson and Captain Lyttelton now possess. But there was almost certainly a deeper reason. Six months ago American industry had not yet been converted to war, and American production of actual weapons was still very much inferior to the British, and scarcely sufficient for mere defense and training and some contributions under lend-lease.

We have now reached a volume of production which is equal to that of Great Britain, and we now have the facilities and are tooled up for production which in the coming months will far exceed that of any other country in the world. The point has, therefore, been reached where it is possible to take the offensive. And it is, therefore, necessary to make sure that the surplus of arms we shall produce is now used directly to wage offensive war on the enemy.

THIS IS the purpose of the Nelson-Lyttelton board: to see to it that our industrial power, no longer a blueprint and a promise but an actuality, is used to wage, not a theoretical war, but this war here and now. We have come, so to speak, to graduation day in the American war effort. We are at the great turning point. Having been the arsenal, we are now able to be an ally. From "production" for "defense" we are now beginning to be equipped to wage war. From a position where for six months the best we could do was to plug the holes in defensive positions all over the world, we are now able to plan campaigns for the purpose of winning the war.

This requires an improvement in the direction of the war. The Nelson-Lyttelton board is a very important though surely not the final step. It will do much no doubt to dovetail British and American war production. An obvious example is, as regards Europe, to have Britain concentrate on the short range fighter planes and the United States on bombers which can be flown to Europe. But what is even more important, the new combined board should do much to make war production fit directly the actual plans for waging the offensive campaigns of 1942 and 1943.

THIS CALLS for another adjustment of men's thinking. Broadly speaking, during the first six months, we have had to overcome the habits of business as usual. This has given us a great arsenal. Now, speaking broadly again, we have to overcome the habits of mind which might be called "militarism as usual." These are the habits of mind, which tend to develop among professional soldiers and sailors the world over, by which they seek to wait for the theoretically absolutely perfect condition of equipment and preparedness. In actual war perfect preparedness is never attained, and the art of war consists in the wise choice of what Admiral King has called "calculated risks."

The dispositions which led to the success at Midway seem to be a shining example of this very thing. The conduct of the anti-submarine war is, on the other hand, a rather bad example of militarism as usual—in this case the unreadiness to act with all the means that can by improvisation be made available and the tendency to wait because the more desirable equipment is not ready.

IN THE LARGER operations of the war the effect of militarism as usual is to aim at the too perfect equipment of larger forces than can be made ready soon enough where they are most needed to affect the course of the war. Since unlimited equipment can never be available, the practical effect, as one competent judge of these matters has put it, is to equip 100 military units 30 per cent instead of 30 units 100 per cent. Yet it is the fully equipped units at the scene of the battles which we need now to think about—now that we have passed from the passive phase of defense and preparedness to the active business of fighting our enemies.

Fair Enough

Soldiers And Sidelines

THE CASE of Joe Louis, who owes an income tax of $117,000 and wants a chance to earn the money this summer, ere he settles down to serious soldiering, is unique and special, and calls for special treatment. He who accepts a favor from another puts himself under obligations to return the favor, and the Army and Navy have accepted two valuable favors from this young man. To grant the return favor which he asks might be to violate some Army regulations, or possibly even some law, but public opinion would be offended less by that than by the proposed violation of the unwritten law of conduct which all well-behaved people try to abide by.

Louis has fought twice in the ring, risking each time a private business asset of great value, for no reward at all, and has turned over to the Army and Navy relief agencies personal contribution of $115,000. He was under no obligation to do this and the arrangement by which the Government accepted the favor was very irregular and, taken as a precedent, would lead to very troublesome complications. Therefore, the whole affair is a special case and has no precedent, but the deal cannot be regarded as closed until Louis has had his chance to earn as much as he can in a fight for his own benefit. After that, there should be an end to such irregular dealings, and men holding commissions in any of the services should be put to service duties exclusively or, if they are unfit for any such duties appropriate to their rank, washed out.

THE COLORED PEOPLE will have no monopoly on the sense of ingratitude for conspicuous generosity by an individual soldier, if Louis is not permitted to fight once more, this last time on his own account. The further delay in the military training of one soldier would be unimportant in the whole war effort and if the question of the effect on the feelings of other service men is raised now, then it was a mistake to excuse him from some of his duties and give him leave to train and fight for the service charities on the two past occasions. But it was not a mistake. The good that Louis did outweighs any objections and the only threat of ill effects exists in the possibility that the Army will stand on a decision to refuse the return favor.

It takes no tax accountant to see that even if he be allowed to fight Louis probably will be unable to reduce his tax debt much. The new money will be taxable as new income in very high, and, perhaps, confiscatory brackets. If Congress adopts the plan first offered by the auto workers' union of the C. I. O., which, incidentally, operated the mob blockade of the North American Aviation plant in California before Hitler attacked Russia, then ballyhooed by Mrs. Roosevelt and finally transmitted to Congress by the President, the most he can put toward the payment of his old debt will be $25,000. But even if that communistic inspiration be rejected, the ordinary scale of taxation on big incomes will leave Louis little more money with which to reduce his owings. He would seem to have had bad management in his tax affairs, for most individuals with large incomes realize that a great portion of the money which they receive simply isn't theirs and must be set aside as though it had come to them earmarked for the Federal and State treasuries.

BUT if Louis is allowed to fight, then that should be an end of such business because doctors, attorneys, singers, actors and writers in the services can claim that they are capable of conducting profitable sidelines in their spare time and the difficulties which would arise should they have that privilege are easily foreseen.

No officer who had been called into active service, however fictitious and remote from the realities of war, should be permitted to conduct a newspaper column or a personal radio program, either as official duty or as a private occupation for private income. These are not military activities and the fighting forces cannot afford to confer rank on any civilian with the understanding that he shall be excused from all risk and service and merely masquerade in uniform.

The award of a commission to any individual whose sole official duty is to promote entertainments to raise money for service charities, and even that only as a part-time job, is an affront to all genuine officers and enlisted men, and the precedent has caused deep disgust and much bitterness among honorable officers, who are wholly in the service, and their families. Anyone holding a commission should be assigned to genuine military or naval duty appropriate to his rank and if he is notoriously incapable of any duty and morally discreditable to the service he should be decommissioned at once.

Kesselring Methods

By Maurice Feldman

Formation Air Attack Loses Face

IN THE REPORTS of the "Reichswehr" the name Field Marshal Albert Kesselring appears more and more frequently. For a long time already this 55-year-old man, son of a member of the Board of Education in Franconia, has been considered the best strategist in the German "Luftwaffe." When Kesselring succeeded General Wever as the first commander of the general staff of the Luftwaffe in June, 1936, he was appointed to a highly significant job. For in that year the "Luftfahrtministerium" in Berlin began to study all operative and tactical problems of a mass air attack. Kesselring as the instructor of the general staff of the Luftwaffe outlined then these new methods of attacks, which have become known after the outbreak of the war under the name "rolling attack."

It was Kesselring's principal idea not to have the single, individual pilot operate but to create a big cooperative air squadron. In his lectures he himself compared this basic change with the transition from the army of knights in the Middle Ages, in which every single heavily armor-clad soldier constituted a "fort in the battle," to the light-equipped, fast cavalry squadron of modern times, which enabled quick operations of encirclement. However, Kesselring's conception encountered resistance. The old pilots did not want to see their individual heroism sacrificed and to give way to anonymous formation. Kesselring, therefore, yielded to the opposition and resigned from his post in the general staff, only one year later to become commander of the "Luftkreis III" (Dresden, Saxonia).

The shake-up in February, 1939, that brought about a reorganization of the entire German "Wehrmacht" in favor of younger generals made Kesselring commander of the most important air force group, the air fleet I (Luftflotte I) in the "Wehrkreis Berlin." When, one year later, the command of the "Ost" (East) was added to his functions, this step indicated significant plans for the future in Germany. In the meantime, Kesselring's ideas of mass attacks by a large air force had been generally accepted. The fundamental ideas which he had laid in 1936 and 1937 had been completed. The war against Poland confirmed Kesselring's theories, so far only tested at maneuvers.

WHILE INTERFERING in the Spanish civil war the German Luftwaffe had at that time not been ready for an organized mass action. Poland brought the first great successful mass attack of the Luftwaffe under command of Kesselring. In January, 1940, Kesselring was transferred to the West Front. When, on May 10, 1940, the German bombers and fighter planes swept over neutral Holland and Belgium, it was again Kesselring who commanded the fight. Only while bombing the English troops on their retreat from Dunkirk did Kesselring's flyers encounter organized resistance for the first time. In those desperate fights of the last days the generals of the R. A. F. had finally learned to take up Kesselring's successful squadron technique; they improvised collective action, and thus covered the retreat of 350,000 men.

In the Reichstag session of June 30, 1940, Albert Kesselring was nominated field-marshal-general. This tactic of mass action of airplanes, first tested by him, (theoretically this idea had been well known by the Russian airforce back in 1930, 1931, 1932) has since become so familiar to everyone that hardly one observer considers it revolutionary or extraordinary. The situation has changed since Dunkirk. The battle of England fought in September, 1940 over the Channel saw already two equivalent opponents.

When Kesselring attacked on the Western Front in spring 1940, he not only had many but also better pilots available. For the German pilots had one great advantage over the enemy: Experience in warfare. The squadron leaders had without one exception been volunteers in the German Legion "Condor" in Spain. When Captain Balthasar returned from Spain in 1937 he reported to his friend and superior Kesselring every single phase of the airfight in Spain through six weeks. Stenographers put down every word. The experiences made in Spain were usefully applied in Poland. When the air battle started against England, Germany had already well experienced pilots. However, there are only a few left today who fought in Spain, young men in white, so-called Goering uniforms with the golden badge of Spain on their chests. Wick, perhaps Germany's best flier is listed as missing, Balthasar was shot down, Rolf Pringel was captured with his undamaged Messerschmidt ME 109F.

REPORTS from the Russian front indicate that today the Germans fly in mass formation much less frequently than before, to counterbalance the shortage of elite pilots. The training period for a flyer is being shortened as much as possible.

A certain rivalry exists between Goering and Kesselring. Georing is very intent on preventing Hitler from consulting Kesselring in his absence. Kesselring and Goering met in the last World War in which both took part as fighting pilots. Kesselring too became a morphinist and spent the years 1919 to 1921 in an asylum in Bavaria. Kesselring is a member of the NSdAP and owes his promotion to Goering like Edward Milch. While Milch remained in the background to leave Goering the success and benefits of his work, Kesselring, however, stepped into the foreground much to the displeasure of Goering. Until a few weeks ago Kesselring enjoyed Hitler's favor. In the spring of 1940 the Fuehrer called him the master strategist of the air. Since the outbreak of the Russian war it has become clear that Kesselring's squadrons and his surprise attacks are no longer invincible. The future fate of Kesselring may, therefore, be just as surprising as that of Brauchitsch. Significant for Kesselring's way of thinking is a statement in a speech the field-marshal-general delivered in the "Luftfahrtsministerium" (air ministry) on March 11, 1940, to the graduates of his school:

"When we circle over cities and fields of the enemy, we must choke any sentimental feelings. These people everyone of us must say to himself are no human beings like we Germans. An enemy of Germany is inhuman. There do not exist civil objects for the Luftwaffe, no emotional considerations. The countries of the enemy must be razed, every resistance must be broken."

Ban on Marriage Threatens Much-Desired Increase in Nurse Corps as Cupid Insists on Taking Toll of Personnel

By Ann Cottrell
Washington Bureau of Chicago Sun

Matrimony threatens to rob the Army and Navy of a tenth of their proposed increase in the nurse corps.

The services have set a goal of 1000 new nurses a month, but the net monthly gain probably will be no more than 900 if the goal is reached. A hundred nurses a month now are turning in their resignations to get married.

Although the Army and Navy Nurse Corps, through the American Red Cross, is literally begging for nurses, both branches refuse to lift the ban against married nurses. To date there are no indications that the two corps will capitulate to Dan Cupid.

If the marriage clause were relaxed the potential supply of nurses would be increased by a probable 100,000. According to figures presented today by Miss Edith H. Smith of the National Nursing Council for War Services and by Red Cross officials, there are less than 100,000 nurses meeting the two basic requirements of the Army or Navy Nurse Corps. Nurses must be between 21 and 40 years of age and single. They may be divorcees or widows.

This 100,000 is only one third of the nursing supply of the country, estimated at 300,000 to 400,000.

The first step a nurse takes in joining the Army or Navy Corps is to become a member of the American Red Cross First Reserve. So far 33,000 out of the 100,000 eligibles have done so, and 11,447 are already in service. Consequently more than 21,000 nurses who may be called up remain, but officials estimate that this number will be cut down tremendously due to recent marriages and inability to pass the rather stiff physical examination.

But if greater numbers of eligibles enlist with the Red Cross First Reserve, the ranks of civilian nurses are thinned considerably, working a hardship on the home front. However Miss Smith estimates that by 1945 195,000 young women will have entered nurses training.

Despite the Army's and Navy's urgency to obtain more nurses, none of the entrance regulations have been relaxed or the pay increased. No pressure has been put on the two corps to ease up on the physical examinations, as the heroic work of the nurses of Bataan is positive proof that a strong constitution and steady nerve are invaluable. But even on Bataan several members of the corps won the title of "Femme Fatale," as several secret marriages were reported. Military nurse officials are adamant on making any special dispensations for nurses whose husbands are away fighting. Mrs. Julia O. Flikke, a widow, who as superintendent of the corps receives the title of colonel, refuses to discuss the possibilities of allowing married women in the corps.

Although the nurses receive officers rank up to colonel, the pay scale is not corresponding, as a second lieutenant in the Army Nurse Corps is paid only $70 a month, plus maintenance.

There is a bill in Congress to increase the base pay to $80 a month, but so far no action has been taken on it. In Canada, nurses receive identical pay with Army officers of relative rank. The Navy nurses fare not so well as their sisters in the Army, as they have no relative naval rank, and a bill before Congress to establish rank has received no attention yet.

MR. AND MRS. CARVETH WELLS AND DR. MANN (RIGHT) WITH RAFFLES

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

"Hello, darling, have a bath."

Face-slapping words, those, but Raffles can get away with it—and does. Raffles is a mynah bird, probably the talkingest, singingest, whistlingest mynah bird hopping about on a perch today.

He strutted his stuff yesterday at the Zoo for Dr. William M. Mann, director, and a tableful of luncheon guests. Putting him through his paces were Mr. and Mrs. Carveth Wells, the explorer-lecturers, who plucked the orphaned Raffles from a Malayan jungle nest 2½ years ago.

A born showoff, quite unlike the precocious child who goes into a shell when company comes, Raffles reveled in the spotlight. That is good, because he is being depended upon to earn a piece of change for USO, performing before people who get a laugh out of a bird singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "America," flirting with girls, teasing waiters and catching a small ball in his bill.

The mynah has a private maid, whose wages are paid out of his earnings. In the Wells' New York apartment, he teases Rebecca by simulating to perfection the sound of the door buzzer. When she comes back, shaking a dark fist in his face, Raffles breaks into a horse laugh.

Yesterday, perched on the hand of Mrs. Wells, he went through his repertoire with the eclat of the professional he is.

"Do you have a cold?" Mrs. Wells asked.

Raffles responded with a faithful cigarette cough.

"Is someone at the door?"

"Did you have a good time at the circus?"

"Ha, ha, ha."

At the command, Raffles favored with "The Star-Spangled Banner," up to "dawn's early light," and then "America," the first few measures. Coached by Mrs. Wells, he is starting to get the hang of "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here."

When Wells threw a grape at the bird, he caught it on the fly and alighted on the donor's head. The second time he made a landing on Dr. Mann's pate. A waiter came by and almost dropped a seafood platter when the mynah admonished, "Quiet! quiet!"

Raffles has been taught only to sing and whistle tunes. His vocabulary has come entirely by the pick-up method. First words he ever uttered "Hello, Joe," acquired on his first Atlantic crossing in 1940. Joe was the cabin boy's name. Wells says he almost keeled over when, putting Raffles through customs at the New York dock, the bird suddenly called, "Hello, Joe."

The customs man, though, was even more surprised.

"How did that bird know my name?" he demanded.

Raffles loves orange juice. He enjoyed brandy, too, when he had to be given a stimulant after nearly bleeding to death in a shipboard accident. But grapes and orange juice, those are his special treats.

He has been taken to Chicago for performances. Not long ago he put on a benefit show in New York that earned enough money for a mobile kitchen to be sent to England. Once, in Connecticut, he flew off and was gone for a whole day, returning bedraggled and penitent to his cage at dusk.

Each morning, around 8 o'clock, he rings a little bell in his cage. That means he wants his cover removed. If he has been up late the night before, giving a performance, he doesn't ring the bell before 10.

The photographer was making ready to take a picture of the Wellses, Dr. Mann and Raffles.

"Come on, come on," shrieked the bird.

The showoff!

Prolong Life of Razor Blades

Modern American women, who are used to clean-shaven men, possibly were more disturbed than anyone else when the War Production Board restricted the number of razor blades that may be manufactured. However, the Conservation Bureau of OPA came to their rescue, and gave out instructions as to how the life and usefulness of the blades may be extended.

Proper shaving technique and correct care of the blade after the shave, say these Washington authorities, go a long way toward prolonging the usefulness of razor blades. Washing the face thoroughly with soap and water before shaving is one of the steps recommended not only by the OPA but also by most of the manufacturers of shaving soaps and creams. This face washing helps the lather to make each individual hair less resistant and not so likely to dull the edge of the blade. The preliminary face wash serves also to reduce the chances of infection from razor cuts.

Other suggestions for care of steel blades include rinsing in hot water before using, rinsing frequently in hot water during shaving, thorough cleansing and drying of the blade afterwards, and rewrapping in the original paper container between uses. This last recommendation is particularly important on the seacoast, as salt air tends to corrode steel.

'Rationed' Ensemble For Movie Star

Anna Neagle, just back from England where she starred in "They Flew Alone," (life story of Amy Johnson Mollison, pioneer woman flier), was guest of honor at the Hollywood Women's Press Club one day recently. She wore a "rationed" ensemble, the only one she was able to buy during her entire nine months in England, was proof you can look smart even in wartimes.

Suit was a shaggy fabric in king's blue, with straight skirt, sports jacket. Patch pockets—literally patch, made from scraps—and a hat, also made from the pieces left in cutting eliminated all waste. Miss Neagle's only jewelry with the ensemble is her treasured wings.

Married Man's Determination to Renounce Intrigue With Immigrant Girl Is Being Resisted by Latter, Who Persists in Heckling Him at Home by Telephone

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I would like your advice on a rather unusual problem. My sister recently learned that her husband had been behaving indiscreetly, during the past year, with an immigrant girl who expects to get her final citizenship papers soon. My sister's first impulse was to get a divorce. But out of concern for the children, and because her husband, whom she loves, begged her to stay (saying he was sorry and wanted to prove he would be faithful in future), she decided to give him another chance.

Now, although this immigrant girl knows that my brother-in-law is through with her, she telephones his home nearly every day—telling him that she is waiting for him to get a divorce, and generally badgering my sister and keeping her nerves on edge. This girl knew from the first that my brother-in-law is a married man. In fact, she called his home many times during their affair, and when his wife would answer the telephone and ask who was calling, this girl would say, with a mocking laugh: "Just an old friend of your husband's."

My brother-in-law has asked her to stop badgering his wife; but she merely gets mushy with him. She asks him when he is going to get his divorce. She asks him to come and see her, and insists that he doesn't love his wife and does love her. I have suggested to my sister that she notify immigration authorities of this girl's immoral character. My sister has canceled checks to give proof of the sort she is. However, my sister hesitates to do this, as she feels that the fault, essentially, is with her husband, for starting the affair.

While I agree with her, still, now that my sister and her husband are trying to readjust their relationship and live down the heartbreak, I think it is too much to bear to have the girl keeping the whole sordid affair fresh in my sister's mind. She is crushed as it is, for she had trusted her husband implicitly and is having a hard time trying to reconcile herself to what happened and go on hopefully. Please advise us as to what could be done, with a minimum of disgrace for the children.

A. F. K.

Girl Has Long Since Overplayed Her Hand

DEAR A. F. K.: You are not helping the situation in prodding your sister to take punitive action against the girl. Your sister is behaving most constructively in pursuing a policy of passive resistance to her malicious badgering. By turning her back, figuratively speaking, on the girl's shenanigans, while sanely negotiating her marriage through the crisis, your sister is indirectly conceding the vixen sufficient rope to hang herself. The greater nuisance the girl makes of herself in impudently addressing your brother-in-la (in defiance of his wish to renounce the alliance), the more will he regret having become involved with her; and the more firmly resolve to put her to rout.

Although your sister's hands-off policy toward the girl is excellent, the reason for her attitude is not so sound. In assuming that her husband was primarily responsible for the affair, she is overlooking the girl's unblushing aggression, past and present, in persistently calling herself to his attention by telephone, in his own home. Such conduct definitely labels her the pursuer—not the pursued. And the airy insolence with which she was wont to snub your sister, when transmitting messages to the husband, suggests that she was not only playing a seasoned game of man-chasing, but trying deliberately to turn your sister against her husband—for the purpose of rendering him more vulnerable to her own advances.

Indeed, her insistent telephoning to his home may, in the beginning, have been a form of subtle intimidation; even of tacit blackmail. It may have been her means of getting across to him the idea that he could neglect her only to his greater detriment. Which, is to say, that he must generously appease her with gifts and attentions, or suffer the humiliation of having their irregular relationship revealed to his wife. If such was not her motive, it is not unlikely that she would continue—after her bluff ha been called—to pester them both, in spite or bravado.

In any event, I think you may rest assured that her current efforts to keep "the whole sordid affair fresh in your sister's mind," are serving merely to doubly confirm the defeat of her schemes. She had already overplayed her hand on that day, some time back, when she forced the husband to align himself with his wife, in treating her as a common enemy of their domestic security and peace of mind. Her subsequent exertions to harass either or both can only have the effect of driving them ever closer together, in coping with the problem she presents. So, I repeat, your sister has acted wiser than she knows, in busying herself on the home front, while letting this frustrated troublemaker wear out the husband's patience with her.

These Are Days For Careful Food Planning

Less Waste Advised In Handling of Green Vegetables

By Ida Jean Kain

IF I were to ask you right to your face whether you waste food, I can just imagine your indignation. Certainly, your answer would be in the negative. But there are so many ways of wasting food, and now that times are so critical, any waste on your part means deprivation for someone.

Thrifty homemakers are learning to use every part of the vegetable that can be prepared so that it is edible and tasty. You probable know about beet tops—and they are a potent source of vitamin A. One-half cup of beet tops contains 1200 units of this vitamin. But what about the tops of turnips and young carrots? Both are good greens.

Utilize Outer Leaves

And speaking of greens, do you peel off the outer leaves of celery, cabbage and lettuce? Nutritionally these are the best part of the vegetables. You don't need any tips on what to do with the cabbage and lettuce. But you might like to try using the outer stalks of celery for soups and broths.

It is a waste of vegetables to overcook them, to add soda to them, or to throw out the water in which they are cooked. If you want to lose most of the vitamin C in tomatoes, just let them stew away on the stove. And if you want the vitamins in green vegetables not to be worth a cent, store them for a few days at room temperature.

You waste your money by making a poor choice of food. There is so little health and strength in the highly refined foods that you should demand and insist on the whole grain or the newly enriched breads, flours and and ready-to-eat and to-be-cooked cereals.

It's a waste of time and energy to worry about the sugar rationing. Do you have any idea how much sugar we have to have? None. Serve more fruits to your family. These make good desserts and they furnish their share of the day's minerals and vitamins. Sugar never furnished anything but calories.

Three Essentials

One of the most appalling wastes of food is the menu-planner's failure to buy meals that are high in the protective vitamins, minerals and protein. Those three food elements are absolutely essential to the well being of the individual and the family.

Wasting food is practically the same as wasting money itself. Most Americans would be better off if they would eat a better breakfast, drink more milk, learn to like green vegetables, have more whole grain bread and cereals and fresh fruits, and stop eating according to the whim of the moment.

Sarong Drape

Eliminating mechanical closings of war rationed materials and insuring figure flattery, the latest New York creations tie on or wrap around the wearer. One of the smartest of these new styles is the East Indian sarong drape that gives easy, graceful movement to the very narrow skirts of this season. Self-draped on a belt to fit the individual figure, it is readily adjustable and slenderizing.

Will it wash? That is one of the first questions of the canny bag buyer this summer. Answer is found in the David Lewis "Amareen" washable calf bags such as the one shown above. A light sponging with soap and water will make dirt smudges, lipstick and even ink spots disappear. These bags are sturdily made and large enough to hold all the miscellany that today's busy woman accumulates. For further information, call National 4200, Extension 259

Pick Handbag For Practical Summer Use

PRACTICALITY marks the handbag a woman selects this summer. Out of her mind is the charming, little, useless, what-not she "just couldn't resist" and bought last year. It means more to her this season to know a bag will wear and that it is washable. Popular among these types are the synthetic leather and washable calf bags.

Generally, bags are large, to hold the miscellaneous things any woman needs today. The soft roomy type takes precedence over envelope and pouch styles that are still favored. Underarm styles prevail, with handles being in the minority.

Many of the bags, whether white or colored, bear the washable label with instructions. By "washable" the label really means "spongable," for no bag should be immersed in a tub of water. When in doubt as to washable characteristics of a bag, find a concealed spot and follow these general directions for washing it.

1. Don't let the bag get too soiled. Sponge it frequently.
2. Remove grease stains immediately before they get into the pores of the leather.
3. Sponge quickly with a damp cloth dipped into rich suds or any pure mild soap or soapflakes. Wipe it off with a clean damp cloth, then with a clean dry cloth.
4. Don't rub too hard. Often leather becomes darkened from moisture which looks like soil but it will disappear when dry. Hard rubbing will only injure the leather surface.
5. Some leathers respond to sponging with a damp rag dipped into diluted ammonia water. This process works well on crushed kid. Unless a bag will not respond to soap and water, do not resort to ammonia. Since it is a bleaching agent, however, it sometimes restores a bag that has been improperly washed.

Other varieties of bags that are popular are the casual styles. Colorful materials with surface interest and roomy effects are the highlights of this group. There are numerous types of homespun bags in natural or gay woven colors. Bahama straws with raffia embroideries in multicolors are slated to be popular hot weather bags. Plastic stripes or plastic block bags in underarm styles are spice-giving to summer outfits.

Use That Dress After Graduation

By Wide World Features

America's first graduating class of the Second World War steps forth this month, diplomas in hand, to face a world of sharp new contrasts, vast new opportunities, swiftly changing values.

Because thrift is the new American credo, girls of the class of '42 are choosing their graduation dresses with an eye to practical use after the commencement ceremonies. Most popular with smart seniors all over the country are the crisp white cottons that do double duty as summer evening frocks.

The New York Dress Institute reports an overwhelming preference for white pique trimmed in white Irish crochet for graduation dresses this year. Close runner-up is the traditional white organdie, cut on simple, youthful lines.

Simple, Small Scaled Furniture Is Need of Defense Workers

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

DEFENSE workers are no new breed that has sprung full grown out of the war. They're Americans all, people we know who have special skills needed in war work.

So the fanfare about defense housing and furnishing that inspired a lot of suggestions for miniature furniture and curious extra-dimensional ideas missed the mark. For defense workers are not lilliputians . . . they want chairs big enough to settle into, deeply and comfortably . . . they want tables they can get their knees under . . . they want mirrors big enough to see themselves in . . .

The demand for furniture scaled for the compact small defense houses doesn't imply doll furniture. The need is for furniture that will tuck into the corners and under the windows to make the most of the space available. The new sizes should be scaled to both houses and people . . . this means slendered upholstered furniture instead of over-weight pieces that crowd most any room . . . but though the lines are slenderized, the piece should be big enough in frame to make an average mortal comfortable.

Defense Furnishings

As for what defense workers are buying when they furnish their new little defense houses—well, they're buying just what the rest of us buy when we're faced with the same problem. Those who moved within reasonable distance of their homes are using a lot of their old stuff. Those who had to come long distances to their new work found it impractical to move their old stuff and so are having to get new stuff. About a third of the defense workers first buy a new rug for their living rooms at an average cost of about $40. Their next purchase is a sofa at an average cost of $60. Most all of them get curtains at an average of $2 a pair, but only about a fourth have draperies for which they pay an average of $4 per window. A third of these families bought new lamps at an average cost of $10 each—higher than most of us would have imagined.

As for style, they don't like drastic departures. They choose furniture of the types most of us like. But too many defense workers—like too many of the rest of us—like things that look better than they are and don't mind crowding things up too much. So some are buying more big showy junk than they should; others are buying very wisely and with restraint.

Small Scale Furniture

Without doubt the defense housing emergency will hasten the development of better simpler furnishings for small homes. But both the designers and the homemakers will have to keep open-minded and make necessary concessions. The designers must not try to put Americans into strange new backgrounds over night; their job is to take the traditional pattern of our lives, the thing really that we're fighting for, and adapt it to fit practical small war homes. That may well prove to be a permanent American type of dwelling.

Home makers for their part must face the fact that there will be changes in our way of life and be ready to accept them; they must recognize that furniture and even houses themselves will probably be made on the assembly lines, like automobiles, after the war is over. This will necessitate many changes in structure and materials, but it will mean a simpler easier-to-keep sort of home. The prefabricated house will undoubtedly be really perfected during the war emergency, and who knows but what we may one day pack up our houses and carry them with us when we move?

Love Seat for Small Quarters

The love seat is appropriate, adaptable and comfortable in many spaces where a full-sized divan would crowd things. Here, the striped love seat, upholstered in gray-blues, white and yellow, is the center of a pleasant conversation group. This piece of furniture can fit in many places, as under a window, where a large sofa would not go, thereby lending itself to more versatile arrangements

Capital Whirl

by Hope Ridings Miller

THE STATE DEPARTMENT "did not know," the Greek Legation "could not say," and the White House decided "not to release"—the guest list for the dinner given at the Executive Mansion last evening in honor of King George II of Greece.

As closely guarded as the sailing dates of an expeditionary force were the names of those who dined with the second reigning monarch ever to be entertained overnight at 1600 Pennsylvania. In sharp contrast to the widely publicized White House dinner three years ago—for another King George—last night's party was off-the-record in every detail.

For the first time in White House history, a State dinner for a monarch was a State secret.

All the peacetime fanfare that Washington could whip up was given full play for King George and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain. Their American visit was, on the surface at least, merely a social one. No veil of secrecy shrouded any phase of it; and society reporters had a field day during the entire royal visit.

Wartime Visit for Wartime Purpose

King George of Greece, however, has every reason to desire a minimum of headlines on the social front. Representing a people who have suffered the onslaught of war at its worst, he has made no bones about being here to ask that lend-lease shipments be sent direct to Greek fighting forces. Any entertaining in his honor therefore is a mere side issue of a wartime visit for wartime reasons; and I understand that he stressed these points over and over again when plans for his trip to America were being made.

That's probably why only one brief and incomplete release about the King's Washington program has come from the State Department and why the latter maintained its mum's-the-word policy up to within half an hour of His Majesty's arrival yesterday afternoon. He would be in Washington "some time in the afternoon." Whether he was coming by plane, train or motor was not divulged until shortly before he arrived; but several hours before time for the dinner came one definite bit of news.

The guest list was not to be released.

Yet, despite the wall of secrecy raised around the event and the company enjoying it, a few shafts of light showed through the chinks. And, because by the time you read this, the dinner will be history anyway, I don't see why you shouldn't know that:

The Lincoln portrait in the State dining room looked down on quite a large, distinguished and highly official group, which gathered at the invitation of President and Mrs. Roosevelt to dine with their royal visitor promptly at 8 o'clock.

On the table, as for all dinners in honor of heads of state—Kings or Presidents—were the exquisite gold mirrored plaque and epergnes purchased by President Monroe on his trip to France; the flat service which was dipped in gold during the Harding Administration, and the gold-banded china and glassware purchased in recent years.

Greek Cabinet Members Among Guests

There were flowers from the Executive Mansion's own greenhouse, and music from the scarlet coated Marine band; and there was an all-American menu.

The guest list? Well, I can't give it in full; but reports through the usual channels had it that those present, in addition of course to King George and Emanuel Tsouderos, the Greek premier, were:

Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace; House Speaker Sam Rayburn; Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who came without Mrs. Hull (she has not completely recovered from an operation); the Greek Minister and Mme. Diamantopoulos; Secretary of War Henry Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox; Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Claude Wickard, Senator and Mrs. Tom Connally, Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin, Representative Sol Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom; Army Chief of Staff General George Marshall and Mrs. Marshall; the Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Ernest J. King and Mrs. King, and Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles.

Also present were two members of the Greek Cabinet—the Minister of Education, E. V. Sekeris, who was accompanied by Mme. Sekeris; and the Undersecretary for Mercantile Marines, S. T. Theophanidis, and Mme. Theophanidis.

Your Guess Is as Good as Mine

That much of the list is correct. Who else was there is a matter of conjecture, but I'd be willing to wager that others present included Crown Princess Martha of Norway, who has been a regular guest at all White House functions of any importance ever since she came to Washington to make her home; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, whose name invariably appears on state dinner lists when a foreign celebrity is being feted; Donald Nelson, who it seems certainly should be one of those present; Harry Hopkins, who lives at the White House.

Having been entertained at the White House, not only at dinner but also overnight, His Majesty King George today will move across the street to Blair House, which will be his headquarters for the remainder of his visit.

As I have mentioned before, his sojourn at the Executive Mansion marked the second time a reigning monarch ever spent the night there. King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, visiting here in 1919, stayed at the house which was then the home of Breckinridge Long and is now the Mexican Embassy; the King and Queen of Siam were put up at the Larz Anderson house; Queen Marie of Rumania was entertained at the Rumanian Legation.

King Edward VII spent a night at the White House, but it was during his pre-ruling days . . . when he was still Prince of Wales.

Canadian Merchants Back Price Ceilings 100%, Attache Tells Zonta Club Members

INSTEAD of trying to combat ceiling prices in Canada, the retail merchants are cooperating 100 per cent to make the plan succeed. In fact, many of the leading merchants of Toronto helped to evolve the plans. So declared A. F. Wayne Plumptre, Financial Attache of the Canadian Legation, guest speaker at the Zonta Club's weekly luncheon yesterday.

Referring to the Canadian women's part in the war effort, the speaker said smilingly: "At the moment, the Canadian military services feel superior to their sisters in the United States. The reason is that the latter are auxiliaries of the Army, while they (Canadian women) are full fledged members of service branches." Mr. Plumptre referred specifically to the Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

May Moyers McElroy

Also, the attache pointed out that once a woman qualifies as a chemist or technical expert, she is paid a salary comparable to the men doing the same work. However, women privates in the armed forces receive $25 less than the men privates.

"Women leaders in the military services were nearly all trained by the Red Cross," he declared. "Also, it is rather general knowledge that women have replaced many men in factories and other war industries."

Mrs. May Moyers McElroy, international president of Zonta Clubs, who has visited every club in Canada and the United States, was a guest at the luncheon. Vera M. Lundquist, introduced the speaker and Mrs. Helen T. Steinbarger, president, presided.

C. A. R. Seeks Funds for Ambulance

MRS. LOUISE MOSELEY HEATON of Clarksdale, Miss., is one president of a national organization who is looking at the war through practical "specs." The stately president of the National Society, Children of the American Revolution, called a special board meeting Wednesday at Continental Memorial Hall. Her immediate object—which was sanctioned by the board—is to present a project to all C. A. R. members to raise money for an ambulance. The ambulance will be turned over to Red Cross.

Mrs. Louise Moseley Heaton

Also, the board voted to continue financial assistance to the American Indians to further prepare them for a vocation or career. Mrs. John Francis Weinmann is chairman of the Indian committee. Furthermore, the C. A. R. Board passed a resolution to place a plaque at Wayside, Conn. This marker will honor Mrs. Harriet M. Lothrop, who founded the society, April 11, 1895.

When other club presidents were fuming and squawking because overcrowded Washington couldn't play hostess to conventions, Mrs. Heaton suggested to the C. A. R. Board that it call off its annual convention. So, the C. A. R. president goes on record as the first to cancel a national convention scheduled for the Nation's Capital.

Jewish Army of 200,000 This Year Is Predicted

A Jewish army of 200,000 men in the Near and Middle East may become a reality before summer's end, Peter H. Bergson, 32-year-old national director for the Committee for a Jewish Army predicted yesterday.

BERGSON

Looking much like a young businessman, Bergson met the press yesterday at the local headquarters of the committee at 2317 Fifteenth Street Northwest, and said he hoped that the formation of such an army would show the world that the Jews are brave soldiers.

"We want a square chance," he said between draws on his cigarette. "The whole thing boils down to getting a fair play."

Composed of stateless and Palestinian Jews, the Jewish army would fight under its own flag and under the United Nations' command, said Bergson. "We would be very happy if our commander were an American," he grinned.

With its nucleus in Palestine but accepting recruits from Nazi-occupied lands, the army would have its organizational work financed by voluntary contributions, and its equipment provided through the Lend-Lease Act, according to Bergson. He was born in Russia, and has lived in Palestine for 22 years.

Criticizing the policies of the British and American governments regarding the Jewish army proposals, Bergson asked:

"Why send thousands of American soldiers to the Near East, when we have 100,000 men there now eager to fight, men familiar with the desert climate, men with a fanatical urge to defeat the Nazis?"

During the early part of the present war, Bergson represented the militant section of Palestine Jewry in London. He has been in America about a year pushing the Jewish army organization, which he claims has received favorable indorsement from people prominent in many walks of life. Among them, he said, are Senators James Mead (Democrat) of New York and Senator James E. Murray (Democrat) of Montana.

Hagerstown Factories To Aid in Alarms

Hagerstown, Md., June 10.—Because many have complained that the four sirens Hagerstown purchased for its blackouts are not loud enough to be heard with windows and doors closed, Ralph Coombs, superintendent of the city's signal system, said that efforts will be made to have several local industries sound their steam-driven whistles for alerts. Coombs explained that the pitch of the sirens is fixed by the manufacturer.

Santa Fe Water Used to Christen 3d New Cruiser

Camden, N. J., June 10 (AP).—Christened with a bottle of water from the Santa Fe River, the cruiser Santa Fe was launched today—the third ship of her type to slide down the ways of the New York Shipbuilding Corp. in four months.

The Santa Fe, sister ship of the Montpelier and the Cleveland which were launched here recently, settled into the waters of the Delaware River 368 days after her keel was laid.

Fourteen-year-old Caroline Trevelyan Chavez, member of one of New Mexico's pioneer families and former president of the National Society of the Children of the American Revolution, was the sponsor.

The water she used in the christening had been blessed by the Archbishop of Santa Fe, oldest diocese in the United States.

The official party included United States Senator and Mrs. Dennis Chavez, Judge and Mrs. David Chavez, jr., parents of the sponsor; Mayor and Mrs. Manuel Lujan of Santa Fe; and Rear Admiral and Mrs. R. W. Ryden.

This Is Onion Week, Folks, So Please Don't Be Bashful

If you don't have attar of onion on your breath this week, you are not doing all—not really all—you can to help win the war.

This is National Onion Week, decreed by none less than Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard. Besides their aroma, onions are saturated with Vitamins B-1, B-2 and C, iron and calcium, but the point is that they are plentiful right now and you are supposed to be eating them instead of salmon, pork and other foods needed for lend-lease and the Army.

It's all part of the Victory Special drive Uncle Sam is putting on. The idea is to encourage housewives to splurge on fruits, vegetables, fryers and whatnot as they come into season and are plentiful. Farmers, shippers, wholesalers and retailers are cooperating.

Lettuce Started

Any day now you will be seeing the Victory Special symbol on display in groceries and in food advertising. Just out, it depicts a well laden market basket with a big black "V" in the foreground, with the words "Victory food special" running across its base.

Lettuce started off the campaign last month. Although the national crop was unusually large, running a quarter over the previous year's, the demand was stimulated to such a degree by the Victory Special plug that prices went up instead of down, as had been expected.

Last week was eat-spinach-and asparagus-for-victory week. The Department of Agriculture is proud to announce that the response was so good the wrinkles haven't disappeared yet from a million little boys' noses.

The tomato crop will be at its peak June 29-July 4 and you're going to be pressured then to put an extra slice on that sandwich, serve a salad a day and put tomato a la tomato on the table (that's when you hollow out a tomato and stuff the cavity with the tomato giblets).

Once Called 'Love Apple'

"A century ago, the tomato was known as the 'love apple.' Today, it is one of the most popular of vegetables," says the Department of Agriculture, at the risk of getting ahead of interest schedule. (This is still Onion Week, remember.)

"Originally, the tomato came from tropical America. Since then it has knocked about considerably."

Many is the ham actor who can testify to that.

From July 16 to July 25 broilers and fryers will be merchandised coast to coast as Victory Food Specials. A peach program is probable for late July.

But did you know that the onion has been eaten since early times and its cultivation in the New World can be traced back to 1634 in Massachusetts and 1648 in Virginia?

All right, folks, call it out good and loud:

"One hamburger, and make its scented blanket thick!"

New Playground Director

Fredericksburg, Va., June 10.—R. Bruce Neill, member of the James Monroe High School faculty and former athletic director at the school, has been appointed director of playground recreation for the city this summer. He takes the place of Ben Plotnicki, who resigned to enter the Navy.

$50 Army Pay Bill Nears Enactment

House Passes Measure Unanimously; Senate Approval Expected in Vote Today

The soldier-sailor pay bill, with its $50 minimum monthly provision for enlisted men in all branches of the armed services, yesterday started around the last lap to enactment.

By a vote of 363 to 0 the House stamped final approval on the conference pay agreement, after an unsuccessful effort to send the bill back to committee for the third time.

Final Senate approval is expected to come on a routine vote today, with only the President's signature then needed to make it law.

As finally approved by the House, after a prolonged conference battle, privates and corresponding grades in the Navy, Marines Corps and Coast Guard, will receive $50 basic pay, instead of $21, as at present. First-class privates and similar rank in the other services will get $54 instead of $36. Increases are provided for all noncommissioned ranks, but among the commissioned officers, only second lieutenants and ensigns get a pay raise. Their present $1500 annual salary goes up to $1800. The increases are effective from the first of this month. All officers receive increased living allowances.

The motion to recommit the bill was presented by Representative Faddis (Democrat) of Pennsylvania, who objected to a provision increasing the retirement pay of approximately 120 first World War officers, retired under section 24B of the National Defense Act. Faddis also sought to confine the pay bill increases to the "duration of the war." Under the bill, they are permanent. His motion was rejected 317 to 36.

Soldier Stands Trial in Killing Of Taxi Driver

Johnny Rathbun, 20-year-old private attached to Bolling Field, went on trial before Justice F. Dickinson Letts in District Court yesterday charged with the fatal shooting February 23 of Conrad L. Steele, taxicab driver of 411½ Fifth Street Northeast.

Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz asked in his opening statement for a conviction on a charge of first-degree murder.

Rathbun first went on trial May 18, but the case was declared a mistrial when one of the jurors became suddenly ill.

According to police the youth attempted to hold up Steele while riding in his cab. He shot at the driver as Steele jumped from the car at Eleventh and East Capitol Streets. Passersby said Rathbun then commandeered a private car, which he later abandoned for a second taxi.

Rathbun confessed to the shooting, police officers asserted, but the soldier was quoted as saying that he was drunk at the time. He had left camp, it was said, after taking a gun from a fellow soldier.

Clearing House Planned for D. C. Trucking Concerns to Enable Carriers to Haul Full Loads in Compliance With ODT Order

A clearing house for District trucks is being planned by the D. C. Trucking Association to carry out the ruling of the Office of Defense Transportation that all trucks must be loaded to capacity on outgoing trips and to 75 per cent of capacity on incoming trips.

There will be an eight-man board of directors, four of whom will be elected from the ranks of common carriers, two from contract carriers and two from private carriers, at a meeting next Wednesday at the Washington Hotel.

The organization of the clearing house was initiated by a special committee composed of W. E. Humphreys of the Jacobs Transfer Co., chairman; Otto Ruppert, Davidson Transfer Co.; S. C. Massey, Horton Motor Lines; L. P. Waring, American Storage Co.; Randolph Barbee, Federal Storage Co.; John Slocombe and Francis J. Kane, Kane Transfer Co.

Nature Study

Fort Devens, Mass., June 10 (AP).—A corporal's visit to his girl's home in nearby Lowell was canceled suddenly last night—while she waited impatiently, the corporal scrubbed vigorously in a small, lonely stream outside the city limits.

He returned to camp for reveille today, tired and disgusted. His explanation—"Skunks."

No Place to Plant

Detroit, June 10 (AP).—To Sheriff Andrew C. Baird, who came in a hurry when he started plowing up a county road adjoining his farm, Julius Wyslosky said: "Uncle Sam says to plant everything."

The sheriff patiently explained that plowing up its surface was a law violation. "Okay," replied Wyslosky. "I just wanted to help feed the soldiers."

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Klutz

3 Interior Bureaus Still Not Moved

On December 19, 1941, the President announced that 12 Federal agencies, among them three Interior bureaus—National Park Service, Fish and Wildlife Service, and the Bureau of Indian Affairs—would be moved out of Washington within 30 to 60 days. The other nine agencies have long since moved along with half a dozen more subsequently ordered to decentralize. But the Interior agencies haven't budged an inch and next week it will be six months since the announcement. About two months ago the Government signed a lease with the Merchandise Mart in Chicago. Treasury and Interio units were ordered to move into it.

Treasury's move will be a much larger and more complicated job. It will involve more than twice as many employes and about three times the space. More than 2300 positions are being transferred but only about 1400 employes are going to Chicago. It will take 150 railroad cars to move Treasury's equipment and files. Treasury employes were informed of the transfer the day after the lease was signed. Next week the move will take place. Interior, ordered to move out its bureaus four months earlier, is still sitting tight. At Interior officials laughingly remark that Secretary Ickes has held out longer than MacArthur.

It is not a laughing matter to the employes, however. Some of them have been living in make-shift conditions for weeks waiting to be moved. They have been kept in the dark on all moving plans. Morale is low and if they could get other jobs it is a safe bet that many would quit in disgust. The employes have been told they must move, but for six months they have not had the faintest idea when and no one at Interior will give them any information on the subject. Interior officials lay the blame at the door of Public Buildings.

Tentative moving dates now are Bureau of Indian Affairs, July 15; Fish and Wildlife Service, August 1, and National Park Service, August 15. However, Interior officials say it won't be possible to meet these deadlines unless PBA snaps out of the doldrums. All this isn't helping the reputation of Harold L. Ickes who is widely regarded as one person who can get things done. But perhaps that means things he wants to get done . . . The President will make those District court nominations in a day or so. Judge Nathan Cayton will be appointed presiding officer of the lower court. Judge Walter Casey tried hard to get it. Alex Holtzoff, the Justice official, will be nominated for a judgeship. He was able to beat off the New Deal opposition but it was a tough fight. No one from Maryland or Virginia will be named.

Priority Ratings

War Man Power Board has been given a Class 2 priority rating. National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics has been raised to a Class 1 priority . . . The Society for the Advancement of Management will discuss duplication in the Government tonight at a dinner meeting at the Y. W. C. A. New officers will be elected.

Chairman Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee today will ask the potent House Rules Committee to give clearance for House consideration of the Administration-sponsored bill that would raise the salaries of all custodial and sub-professional employes in the Federal service. The bill would set a $1200 minimum for Federal workers and it would make necessary adjustments in the upper brackets. Hearings on the bonus and overtime bills also will continue tomorrow before Ramspeck's committee. Yesterday employe union representatives continued to urge the passage of both bills.

Witnesses were Col. Charles Stengle of the American Federation of Government Employes; M. P. Alifas of the National Association of Machinists; William Horner of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks; Mrs. Herman H. Lowe of the woman's auxiliary of the NFPOC; W. C. Doherty of the National Association of Letter Carriers, and Millard Rice. In general, the witnesses objected to the $3800 ceiling in the overtime bill, argued that the Government should pay for all overtime worked regardless of "official" hours, and urged that full time and a half be provided in the overtime bill rather than time and one-twelfth as the Government now figures it.

D. C. Police To Use More Auxiliaries

Kelly and Young Prepare to Bolster Force Crippled by Mass Enlistments

The Metropolitan Police Department will rely on auxiliary police to bolster its personnel, seriously crippled by heavy enlistments in the military services, it was indicated yesterday following a conference between Police Chief Edward Kelly and District Commissioner John Russell Young.

Although protesting that he would never discourage any police officer from enlisting in military services, Commissioner Young said that the recent number of enlistments from the force presents "serious problems" to the District.

Hopes to Avoid Army Aid

He said that he hoped that it would not be necessary to have the Army to police Washington, and indicated that there would be an attempt first to use the auxiliary police. However, he pointed out that the police must receive rigorous training before they can be given full responsibility, and that the firemen, whose ranks are also being depleted, require even more specialized training.

Young said that he would be "the last person in the world to try to dissuade anyone from serving under his country's colors." At the same time, he said that Washington is numerically "not much better off" now than it was this time last year, when an inadequate police force was held contributory to a major crime wave that lasted throughout the summer.

"The police department was at such a low ebb last June that a crime wave resulted, leading to a Congressional investigation. From that we were authorized to put on first 100 then 95 new police officers. We also have put on about 250 special policemen drawn from the auxiliary police ranks and paid from the blackout fund.

Shy 130 or 140 Men

"But we are still shy 130 or 140 men. Although we have the authorization it is difficult to get new men for the police force—and they are leaving at as fast a rate as we are getting them."

Young expressed the situation as a "sort of dilemma." The District cannot stand in the way of either the Selective Service or of any man's conviction that he should serve his country in the armed forces. At the same time, Young said, "Washington is now the most important city in the world, and with the increase of workers there is unfortunately a corresponding influx of criminals, Washington must be protected."

Young had no comment to make on the proposed cut in the police retirement benefits, saying that the proposal was still only an acturarial report, and had as yet received no official action.

Commenting on the morale in the Police Department, Young said that the department had shown much improvement in every way in the past year. He said that serious crime had shown a marked decrease, and that there was an almost 100 percent record in tracking down perpetrators of crimes.

"Yet," he said, "we may just be running in good luck this year, as last year we may have been running a streak of bad luck."

Cabby and Wife Held as Police Probe Drowning

Police last night were holding a cab driver and his wife for investigation in connection with the drowning Monday night of Richard Lane Lynch, 20, of 421 Seventh Street Southeast, who either jumped or fell from the Wilson Line excursion boat, Mount Vernon.

From witnesses, police learned that Lynch had represented himself to be a soldier while talking to chance acquaintances, who said he told them he was "down in the dumps because his girl had just married another man." It has since been learned, however, that Lynch was not a soldier, police said last night. His body was recovered Tuesday.

What connection the cab driver and his wife had with the incident could not be learned last night.

Md. Boy, 12, Killed When Soldier's Gun Goes Off

A 12-year-old Maryland boy was killed instantly by an "unloaded" pistol in the hands of a soldier yesterday while the latter was showing the weapon to the boy on an Army reservation in Montgomery County.

The boy, Billy Wilcox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey Wilcox of Rockville, Md., was pronounced dead by Dr. A. F. Passarelli.

According to Capt. W. A. Cox, jr., U. S. Army, the boy had become friendly with Pvt. Peter J. Cain, 22, who was demonstrating how the pistol should be whipped from its holster, Cain, Capt. Cox said, thought he had removed the bullets from the gun. As he pulled the pistol from its holster, it suddenly discharged.

Cain was taken into custody by military authorities. Capt. Cox said, however, that a certificate of accidental death would be issued.

Hampshire Heights Youngsters Drill as Raid Messengers

With snap and precision that would do credit to any Army recruits, 36 boys from 11 to 17 years old are bringing a military air to the Hampshire Heights neighborhood as they hold weekly drills as part of their air raid messenger training.

Only four hours of drilling are required officially for messenger service, but these youngsters, provided with an excellent parade ground in the spacious entrance to Rock Creek Cemetery, march to keep their ranks unified for real service.

So in brisk military style go ranks of earnest-faced youngsters on their weekly maneuvers, some of them so small that they have a hard time remembering which is left-face and which is right.

Capt. Don Williams, 16, 220 Allison Street Northwest, learned the drill manual in his cadet corps at Tech High School. Then he passed his knoweldge on to a hand-picked group of officers—First Lieut. Tobe Fedder, 15; Second Lieut. Warren Slaby, and Top Sergt. Charles Handy.

After the officers drilled for two weeks, they organized all the boys in the neighborhood who wished to serve as messengers and began actual drilling. Junior messengers are from 11 to 13, and regular messengers are 14 and over.

Lieut. Fedder, who is in charge of the platoon of smaller boys, shouts his commands and "wipes off" smiles with the stern demeanor of a hard-boiled Army sergeant. Capt. Williams, well versed in cadet drilling, is a patient commander, occasionally exasperated by the inability of some of his small charges to keep in step.

During air raids or air raid drills, the boys are dispatched to various headquarters over the Zone A Post and run back and forth with messages from one warden to another. They are permitted to be on the streets during blackouts.

Capt. Williams is particularly proud that his little band is one of the few posts in which many of the boys have had first aid training.

Group Asks Milk Delivery Change

The Logan-Thomas Circle Citizens Association last night adopted a resolution asking the District Commissioners to study possible changes in the new milk delivery system in some sections of the city. The unit pointed out that in some areas the system is not satisfactory because many families do not have adequate refrigeration facilities to keep milk two days.

Another resolution recommended that the area on P Street between Fifth and Sixth Streets Northwest be converted into a playground for children.

Blast Hurls Policeman 20 Feet High

Freak Accident Injures Him When Gas Seeps Into Electricity Main

D. C. traffic deaths this year .. 50
Deaths this date last year 37
District total last year 95

A policeman was injured early last night when he was blown 20 feet into the air by an explosion which occurred after gasoline from a wrecked bus had seeped into an underground main carrying electric cables.

The officer, William D. Barnett, 29, of the First Precinct, was treated for shock at Emergency Hospital, where he was said to have severe head and possibly internal injuries. He was unconscious when admitted.

The freak accident occurred at Fourth and G Streets Northwest, where Barnett was standing on a manhole cover over the main. Earlier, about 6 p. m., two persons suffered slight injuries and trolley traffic on G Street, both east and westbound, was delayed 20 minutes when a streetcar struck the bus at Fourth and G Streets.

Firemen Standing By

Firemen were called when gasoline from the tank of the bus flowed out into the street. They flushed it down a sewer and were standing by when the explosion occurred. It was surmised that some of the gas had come in contact with unguarded wires, touching off the explosion.

The bus, which was traveling south without passengers, on Fourth Street with Driver Julian J. Clatterbach, 39, Takoma Park, Md., at the wheel, was almost cut in two by the impact of the streetcar and ended up sideways across G Street, blocking both the east and west car tracks.

The streetcar, operated west on G Street by Herbert Fellingham, 25, 1235 Neal Street Northeast, was knocked off the tracks, but only slightly damaged.

Of the trolley's eight passengers, two reported injuries. They were W. J. Hawley, 68, 1915 Kalorama Road Northwest, who was taken to Casualty Hospital with a leg injury of undetermined severity, and Helen Brodginks, 1512 Isherwood Street Northeast, who received first aid treatment at the scene for a cut on her right arm.

Death Laid to Negligence

Earlier in the day a coroner's jury decided that Raymond H. Beach, 47, of 1233 K Street Southeast, the District's latest traffic victim, died "due to his own negligence."

The jury deliberated less than 15 minutes before returning the verdict which exonerated Marshall A. Pickett, 20, of District Heights, Md., driver of the car which struck Beach.

It was testified that Beach was knocked down while crossing the street in front of his home last Saturday. He died at Providence Hospital Monday, the fiftieth local traffic fatality this year.

MacLeish Reads His Own Poems for Thrilled Audience

The happy meeting of a poet and his work took place last night in the Phillips Memorial Gallery, 1600 Twenty-first Street Northwest, where Archibald MacLeish, who said he did not learn until he was 50 that the title "poet" could be an insult, gave a reading of some of his poems for a small but enraptured audience.

Introduced by Mrs. Eugene Meyer as "an outstanding example of democracy become conscious of itself," the distinguished Librarian of Congress and director of the Office of Facts and Figures read several groups of his works, among them some about "places I have loved" and others "not about this country, but about America, which is a very different thing."

Included in the representative selection were "Return," "Yacht for Sale," "Too Late Born," "Cinema of a Man," "Against Illumination," "Memorial Rain," "Landscape as a Nude," "American Letter," "Empire Builders" and "America Was Promises," the latter perhaps the best as to timeliness, content and interpretation.

Endowed with a voice as happily adapted to the reading of poems as is his superb talent to their creation, MacLeish's performance last night was, to the layman, notable chiefly for the facility with which he transferred to his audience the various moods of the poems he read and for the frequent evidences which his work gave of Whitman's gusty, passionate love of America and Sandburg's feel for time, events and people.

Last night's reading was arranged as part of a local drive to save the magazine, Poetry, which has announced that it will be forced to suspend publication unless financial aid is forthcoming. The little magazine has been the first, since its founding in 1912, to publish the first work of many outstanding writers, among them Mr. MacLeish, Carl Sandburg, Ernest Hemingway and many others.

Mrs. Richard Whiteley, at the conclusion of MacLeish's reading, explained Poetry's predicament and called the publication "the only authentic poetry magazine in the world."

Earlier, Duncan Phillips, introduced by Mrs. Meyer as "our host" and "one of the really critical artists in Washington," had declared that "never was there a time when great poetry was more possible than now."

Discussing "The Place of the Arts in Wartime," Phillips said "art is a beacon light which never yet has gone out in any of the storms of war" and declared that of all artists, "those best able to serve in great crusades are the poets."

Art, he said, far from being "an escape, is an essential in times like these."

In presenting MacLeish, Mrs. Meyer, who presided, traced a kinship between the Librarian of Congress, and Lincoln and Whitman, and said that "just as the Civil War brought to birth our democratic culture, so this war must be fought to defend its maturity."

About 50 persons attended the reading.

Second Jury Saves Oden From Chair

Youth Is Convicted Of Manslaughter; Verdict Brought In After 3½ Hours

Twelve District Court jurors yesterday spared the life of 20-year-old Guy E. Oden who shot his schoolgirl sweetheart to death in a fit of jealousy last July 19.

Convicted of manslaughter, the youth will be liable to a maximum of 15 years in prison when he is sentenced by Justice F. Dickinson Letts.

Oden, a theater usher, was the boy friend of Ellen Reid Cannon, 15. He testified that there was no objection to their affair until Ellen was about to become a mother, and that then her relatives thwarted his desperate proposals of marriage and forbade Ellen to see him.

Oden climaxed a row over the situation by firing four shots through a screen door at the home of Ellen's sister, 114 O Street Southwest. One killed the girl. Oden gave up a few minutes later and signed a four-page confession, which was used against him at the trial—to rebut his claim that the shooting was an accident.

Last September 30, Oden was convicted of first degree murder, with death in the electric chair the only sentence the law allowed.

However, he was granted a new trial a month later, because Ellen's sister made misstatements under oath about her marital status.

For nearly two weeks, Oden has sat pale and quiet, while Attorney James J. Laughlin fought for his life. When the one woman and 11 men jurors gave their verdict yesterday, Laughlin jubilantly flung his arm around the youth's shoulders. Oden responded with a faint smile.

Former Favorite Stars Speak Across the Atlantic

Bebe Daniels, Ben Lyon Voices of A. E. F.; A New Summertime Camp of the Arts; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

BEBE DANIELS AND BEN LYON, once among the most popular of the Hollywood stars, haven't been around these parts much of late, either "in the flesh" or as screen images—"substance or shadow," as Paul Vincent Carroll probably would not say. In fact they haven't been around at all, except for that one visit to this country several months ago, which, somehow, omitted Washington from its formal itinerary.

BEBE DANIELS

Where they have been is in London and the British provinces. Playing theatrical engagements on the other side when the war broke out and the Nazi air blitz started, they rendered such yeoman's service to the Crown that Britain graciously and gratefully, and with great immediacy, virtually adopted them. And they, sentimentally and only for the time being, virtually adopted Britain.

But now, here they come again to occupy the ear, if not the eye, of their native land. Ben and Bebe are the masters of ceremonies on Mutual's new air show, "Stars and Stripes in Britain." This is designed to be a colorful and timely picture of the activities and daily habits of the members of our armed forces in England, Scotland and Northern Ireland. It is carried from England to this country by shortwave.

Those with that sort of receiving sets—especially those who know them—should get a genuine "bang" out of hearing once again the voices of two of the most talented and delightfully companionable players that ever tramped a stage or hit a screen.

As if everyone capable of interpreting the signs of the times didn't already know it, it is now officially announced that "In This Our Life," at the Earle, and "Reap the Wild Wind," at the Metropolitan, both will go sailing sensationally along into their second weeks tomorrow. It is worth noting that this will make four downtown weeks for "Reap the Wild Wind," Cecil B. De Mille's thirtieth anniversary production and sixty-sixth personally directed picture. By the time the Ellen Glasgow study in feminine cussedness has completed its inevitable repeat run at the Met., it is a sure shot to have hung up the same record.

To Combat the Dog-Days Doldrums

Realizing how overcrowded Washington's summer recreational facilities for children and young people are, the Jewish Community Center, always alert to the artistic needs of this rapidly expanding metropolis, is adding a new hot-weather department to its many established enterprises. Camp JCC, a summer arts colony for boys and girls from 5 to 16 years of age, will begin operation July 6 and continue for six weeks, through August 14, with both morning and day schedules, five days a week. Teen-agers and children will find available a full-program correlating classes in the dance, music, arts and crafts, dramatics, knitting, make-up, sun-bathing, swimming, morning snacks and athletics. The mental, physical and cultural development of the individual enrollee will be the prime concern of Flora B. Atkin, Nathalie Sherman and Florence Miller, the three directors, all experienced teachers in the arts. Registration is now open at the Jewish Community Center, Sixteenth and Q Streets Northwest.

By the way, wasn't that Brock Pemberton, the celebrated Broadway producer, sneaking into the Willard Room with Sam Wheeler, of Twentieth Century-Fox, the other night under cover of the bright street lights? Sure it was. Or else we've finally arrived at the bifocal point.

Mrs. Rose Robison Cohen, director of the Children's Studios of Speech and Drama, will entertain at an al fresco supper at her home in Chevy Chase, tomorrow evening in honor of two of her graduate students who have signed contracts with Max Gordon to appear in the touring company of "Junior Miss," opening in Chicago in the fall. The honor guests are Joel Marston, just back from a season in stock on the West Coast, and Sid Conrad, recently seen as The Professor in the Children's Studios' production of "Growing Pains," in Roosevelt High School Auditorium. Congratulations all around.

Now that Felix Ferry's Beach Club has successfully reopened, Ferry is opening his Monte Carlo Room next door, as an "Allied Service Club," only for men in uniforms. . . . Johannes Steel is the new American correspondent for the Free French newspaper in London, "La Marseillaise." . . . Teddy Lynch, the former night club singer who returned last week after having been interned in Italy, was away from New York for over two years. The first thing she did, on arrival, was to don an evening dress, and go to El Morocco to see lights and dancing, and have cereal. "I haven't seen an evening gown, cereal, lights or dancing since I left America," she explained. . . . Burton Turkus, who prosecuted Murder, Inc., tells of his talk with "Kid Twist" Reles about world events. "The Axis powers," said Reles, "do just what we did in Murder, Inc.—except they do it on an international scale."

Father Ambrose Hyland of Dannemora recently completed the prison chapel there, after encounteing great difficulty in getting the necessary funds. One of the prisoners, Charley "Lucky" Luciano, heard of Father Hyland's efforts, and offered to help finance it. Father Hyland thanked him, but said he preferred outside help. . . . "How about doing this," Lucky suggested. "I get the New York papers every day, and I know how to pick horses. Take $300 of my money, and bet on my selections." This offer also was rejected. . . . Lucky, nevertheless, sent his selections to the good Father Hyland, who, merely out of curiosity, kept a record of them. His tabulations showed that if he had followed Lucky's tips, he'd have won $50,000.

Warden Clinton T. Duffy of San Quentin Prison received a suggestion concerning scrap iron salvage from a group of his prisoners. Their letter read: "All of us here, although in a way Isolationists, are all-out for all-out war effort as urged by the President. The Government needs all the metal here. Just look at those bars. One of them alone weighs 400 pounds. And all those steel doors. And those big padlocks could be junked, too. . . . You might as well throw in the keys."

Arthur Gershwin, Stanley Adams and Doris Fischer are writing a song which will be used in the forthcoming movie, "Follies Girl." A lady visited them and was shown the freshly completed lyric. "Say, that's terrific," she stated. "Who wrote it?" . . . Stanley Adams," Gershwin informed. "You like it?" . . . "Yes, it's terrific," repeated the lady, still studying the manuscript. "Such a lovely handwriting!"

Private Julie Oshins of the vaudeville team of Oshins & Lessy now is at Camp Upton. He filed his application for a role in Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army" revue, and listed his experience and qualifications. CHARLIE CHAPLIN AND GEORGIA HALE as they appear in the new edition of "The Gold Rush," all tricked out with words and music, opening this morning on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater. The audible embellishments are said greatly to have intensified the hilarious fun of this old classic of the cinema's silent era—if such a thing is possible, even with Chaplin himself doing it

A Notable Revival at the Little

By Ernest L. Schier

Fully 10 years after its original release, Ernest Hemingway's "A Farewell to Arms" still stands up as one of the best war pictures of all time.

Like so many of its contemporaries, "A Farewell to Arms" didn't make its appearance in the field of war novels until a good many years had elapsed after the close of World War I. It immediately climbed to the top of the best-seller lists and stayed there for some time to come but not, however, without receiving severe criticism for both the subject matter and its treatment. It dealt, it will be recalled, with the love affair of an English nurse and an American soldier in the Italian ambulance corps, against a background of war-weary Italian soldiers at Camporetto, who had lost all desire to fight and only wanted to return home to their farms and families.

The making of the picture presented the problem of retaining the essence and truth of the novel without giving cause for objection to any individual or organization. This was done, due chiefly to the choice of Helen Hayes, America's "First Lady of the Stage," to play the part of the nurse. Her delicate and sensitive portrayal ranks favorably with anything she has ever done on stage or screen. Gary Cooper is seen as the American soldier, a role which established him as a screen actor of great potentialities, which culminated with his winning of the Academy Award for his work this year in "Sergeant York."

Frank Borzage's masterful direction is highlighted by some scenes of pure cinema magic—the lovers' first meeting in the garden of the hospital; the calm and confidence of the Italian major, as he performs a miracle of surgery to the accompaniment of artillery and machine-gun fire; the Italian priest turning his back on the lovers in the hospital room, where Lieut. Henry Cooper lies wounded, and reciting the marriage ceremony.

The supporting cast includes Adolphe Menjou, who is superb as the Italian surgeon, who hides his emotions behind a bottle of wine, and Jack La Rue, known chiefly for his gangster roles, who plays the friendly priest with sympathy and understanding.

Its showing at the Little Theater, where it opened yesterday, is the first since its initial release that "A Farewell to Arms" has been screened in Washington unaccompanied by protests from the Italian Embassy. Because much of the picture's action is placed at Camporetto, where the Italian army failed to give a good account of itself, its showing heretofore always has been marked by diplomatic objection. This time no such problem exists.

Laughton on the Line

Hollywood, Calif., June 10.—Strange that after all these years Charles Laughton signs a long term contract with Metro. I say strange, because he's done some of his best pictures there. The first was a horror thing called "Payment Deferred," which few people saw. That was in the pre-Frankenstein age, before our audiences grew to love horror. Charles' first for Metro this time will be "Cargo of Innocence," which title, of course, will be changed. His next "The Man from Down Under," an original by Bogart Rogers and Mark Kelly. All Laughton ever needed was a good story. I always felt it was a waste of time, making him up to look like the hunchback of Notre Dame, when nature had been so prolific in its endowment.

PAULETTE GODDARD

Eddie Anderson, Jack Benny's Rochester, is the envy of all. Has five pictures lined up this year. Gets $25,000 per. His next will be "Cabin in the Sky," with Ethel Waters, for Metro.

Between times he shuffles back and forth across the country, keeping an eye on his 18 race horses and a 35-foot power boat, which, when finished, he'll turn over to the Government. For amusement, he has as fine a collection of miniature trains as you'd ever want to see. And in Central Avenue and Harlem he's booked as "the man who discovered Jack Benny!" Could anyone ask for more?

The young lad picked up near Atlanta, Ga., after a Nation-wide search, three years ago, who was to costar with Spencer Tracy in "The Yearling," has a perfect alibi if he ever wants to use it. He's outgrown the part. Sure, he's gone back to Georgia brokenhearted, but with a bank account that would choke a horse. And the studio has an investment of a million dollars—but no picture.

After 40 years of chain-smoking cigars, W. C. Fields has quit. Doesn't want to become a slave to the habit. The late O. O. McIntyre described W. C.'s comedy characters as "a frightened bully."

Just for luck, he now signs his letters "W. C. T. Fields."

It's a well known fact that many hit tunes from the movies are little accidents. When "Two Sleepy People" was brought on the set to Bob Hope and Shirley Ross, director said, "Can't use it—no time." There happened to be a piano standing by, and composer started playing the tune. Hope said, "Hold on a minute—what is that?" "'Two Sleepy People'—just been kicked out of your picture." "Wait a minute—let me try it." He did. They did. It was a hit.

"Jingle Jangle Jingle," which Paulette Goddard sings in "Forest Rangers," was dashed off as a bit of mood music. Now every band in the country wants to do a recording of it.

Maureen O'Hara was guest of the Second Marine Division down San Diego way last Thursday to receive her title of "sweetheart," climaxing three weeks of heavy balloting by the entire personnel. Up to the final day, Jane Russell and Lana Turner were running neck and neck, when all of a sudden Maureen passed them both and galloped in for a flash finish!

When Virginia Van Upp went to the hospital, Paramount sent her a crystal ball, with a book of same title, just as a suggestion. She came out with a complete script of it.

No flies on Bob Taylor. He's got an option on "Falling Through Space," all about a wounded R. A. F. pilot, which he wants Metro to buy. And the best part of it is that Bob can really fly.

R. K. O. couldn't find a boy to replace Tim Holt, so they're looking around for a likely cowgirl. They're pretty smart changing from male to female. They may settle for that pretty blonde, Barbara Moffitt, from Pasadena, who's not only a crack shot but can handle a pony as well as Tim.

When Roz Russell wants anything she uses the wolf call she picked up from boys in the Army camps, and she says she gets faster action than if she blew a police whistle.

When Jack Oakie ran into an extra, who, by his appearance, had drowned his sorrows the night before, Jack said, "You sure got rid of your sorrow last night." "I don't know about that," said the friend, "but I gave it a mighty good dousing."

Three in a Row Changes Tune

Hollywood, June 10 (INS).—John Garfield has changed his tune since I saw him at Lake Arrowhead a year ago, when he was trying to be sent abroad as a foreign correspondent. He intimated then he was through with movies. But now everything is different.

ERICH VON STROHEIM

John was very happy over "Tortilla Flat," at M-G-M. He liked "Dangerously They Live," at Warners and now he has a role, Sergt. Joe Minocki in "Air Force," that delights him.

The "Air Force" opus by Dudley Nichols deals with the current war and the lads who keep them flying. Howard Hawks, whose "Dawn Patrol" was a hit, is directing this timely thriller. A new boy makes his debut, one Bill Crago whom Hal Wallis saw in Washington in February. He was a radio announcer and Hal, impressed with the boy's voice and personality, signed him.

I am not surprised Samuel Goldwyn thinks he has a big coup in acquiring the title of Bob Hope's book, "They Got Me Covered." The book sold three million copies in one year. Bob gave it away at so many of his radio brodcasts, and I saw it for sale at many drug stores. Sam will call his Bob Hope picture (formerly "Washington Story") by the name of Bob's book, although I don't see what relation they can have to each other, since the book is the story of Bob's life and the other is a story laid in Washington. Still, the title is familiar to so many people it will undoubtedly prove a big selling point.

Word of the very serious and painful operation Eric Von Stroheim had on his jaw in Philadelphia has been brought back by Laura Hope Crewes. He has been in "Arsenic and Old Lace" with her for the last year and a half and she said his bravery during the last few weeks when he was in constant pain won the admiration of everyone in the cast. Laura is happy as a lark at being here for a few weeks. Then she returns to reopen with the same play in New York.

Good old-fashioned vaudeville is coming back in a big way—particularly in the East. And one of the first to get on the band wagon is my friend, Gregory Ratoff, who left Monday for Chicago and New York with a cameraman to catch some of the bigger acts for the Columbia picture, "Through Thick and Thin." In fact, Greg says this movie will be a glorified vaudeville show with a strong dramatic story, and although the papers aren't actually inked to borrow Don Ameche from Twentieth for the opus, Don is the hero Ratoff has his eye on.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Dorothy Sebastian is in Hollywood Hospital, taken there for a serious emergency operation; George Sanders and Mona Maris, an interesting mocambo duet; that girl with John Shelton the other eve was Jean Longworth, a Florentine gardens lovely; the Dick Purcells, rumors says, are not seeing eye to eye. She was formerly Ethelind Terry, and they were wed only a few months ago.

The cutest boy-meets-girl twosome in town is Edith Fellfellows and Bobby (Dead End) Jordan.

High and Low Join in Tribute To Brian Bell

By the Associated Press

A Supreme Court Justice and an office boy and persons of all ranks in between paid a last tribute yesterday to Brian Bell, chief of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press, who died of a heart attack Monday at the age of 52.

The funeral rites at St. Mary's Episcopal Church in the nearby Virginia countryside were short and simple—no eulogy, just the reading of some psalms and a hymn, and a prayer to God.

Bell never cared for excessive words, being a newspaperman. When the long Scopes evolution trial at Dayton, Tenn., which he covered, ended in a bout of oratory and the judge asked if Bell cared to make a speech for the record, he just said, "No Sir, Judge," with a friendly grin and a twinkle of the eye that spoke more warmly than words.

Members of the AP staff which Bell had directed here since January 1, 1939, attended along with other newspapermen of the Capital—men whose "by-lines" are famous, others the public never heard of, but befriended alike by Bell. Supreme Court Justice Byrnes headed a long list of noted people present. William D. Hassett of the White House secretariat represented President Roosevelt.

Steve Early, press secretary to the president, "put the lid on" at the White House, holding up any news to "break" there until after the funeral to permit the White House correspondents to attend. The President knew Bell as well as Early did, and expressed sorrow at his death.

But all news could not be held up—the Navy announced that a medium-sized British merchant vessel had been torpedoed in the Atlantic; word came that Justice Frank Murphy was taking a temporary leave of absence from the Supreme Court to serve in the Army.

So not all the AP staff attended the funeral. Reporters clattered their typewriters, bells on the telegraph printers jangled for "bulletins" and the news "by the Associated Press" went out to the world, as Bell had arranged. That was a memorial service too.

About that time the casket, covered with a blanket of flowers "from AP men everywhere," was taken out of the rustic stone church to be interred in Columbia Gardens cemetery. The lights in the church (it was a gloomy, gray day) were turned off, the people departed.

The AP men went back to the office and resumed their work. Into the busy news room at the close of the afternoon came no friendly, kind-eyed bureau chief, tamping tobacco into his pipe, to scan the baseball scores and tell a funny story—not in the flesh, that is.

Jittery Nazis Aim Maginot Guns West

(Copyright by Chicago Sun)

London, June 10.—German fears of an United Nations invasion of France have increased to the extent of over-hauling the Maginot Line and reversing its guns and mountings to point to the West, a Free French spokesman said tonight.

Quoting "a reliable source in recent contact with occupied France," the Free French spokesman added that the Germans had succeeded in removing only a few of the line's largest guns to the Nazi channel coast batteries before reconstruction of the Maginot Line fortifications was started.

Soldier Stabs Himself in Hotel Lobby

A 22-year-old Army private, a former French soldier who escaped from a German concentration camp in his homeland in 1940, was confined to Emergency Hospital last night with a stab wound in his right chest.

Roger Prevost, 22, attached to the service command at the Office of the Coordinator of Information, was taken to the hospital from the lobby of the Raleigh Hotel where, police said, he inflicted the wound with a pocket knife.

It was learned that the youth sent a note to a couple identified only as "Lord and Lady Moore," who are guests at the hotel. He was sitting in the lobby and the Lord and Lady were near him, it was ascertained, when he stabbed himself with a 4-inch blade of a pearl-handled pocket knife.

Mrs. Edward Watson, a nurse from Boston, saw the youth slump over and went to his aid, pulling out the blade.

Lord and Lady Moore went immediately to their rooms and would make no statement to reporters. It could not be learned whether they were acquainted with the young soldier.

Army authorities said Prevost came to America in the latter part of 1940, after escaping from a concentration camp. A previous attempt to escape had failed, it was said.

Prevost joined the United States Army about three months ago and has been stationed here for about eight weeks.

His relatives are all in France.

Bainbridge Colby's Divorced Wife Dies in New York

New York, June 10 (AP).—Mrs. Nathalie Sedgwick Colby, author and former wife of Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State in the Wilson Administration, died today at the Harkness Pavilion.

She divorced Colby at Reno, Nev., in 1929, after a controversy over her first novel, "Green Forests," which she published in 1927 after 32 years as a society matron and a leading Washington hostess. The book had a political background.

Despite her protests that "there is not a single thing in the book which could possibly be construed to apply to Mr. Colby—he's much too colossal a person to be encompassed in a single book," Colby brought suit in Paris for a divbrce in 1927. They had married in 1895.

A decree was refused by the French courts on the ground of lack of jurisdiction, and in October, 1929, Mrs. Colby went to Reno.

Her later books included "Black Stream," published in 1927; "A Man Can Build a House," 1928; "For Life," 1935, and an autobiography in 1938.

'Higher-Ups'

2 Girls Hope To Form Tall People's Club

Two attractive, 6-foot girls who fear that most of Washington was created with midgets in mind have a path to solution of the problem of short beds, telephone booths, dresses, shoes and all the other discomforts of tall people.

Georgia Weller and Laurine Weaver, formerly of Los Angeles, Calif., want to start a club here that will compare with their own Tip Toppers Club back home.

That organization, a thriving one with 12 active members, was created for girls 6 feet and over (in their stocking feet, mind you; no shorties permitted) and for men 6 feet 4 inches.

Georgia and Laurine each served a term as secretary to the California group, but they don't think that the West Coast name needs to be carried on here unless the prospective members so desire. Their own suggestion is "Washington Higher-Ups," in the spirit of the times.

The two girls, who have been working in the Navy Department here for only two months, believe that those who meet the requirements of the club could cooperate to provide opportunities for social contacts, thus allowing them to capitalize on their unusual characteristics.

Dead set against slouchers who would disguise their height, Georgia and Laurine are enthusiastic about the chances of improving 6-footers' morale. The 4-inch discrepancy between minimums for girls and men was put in, by the way, to allow for the ladies' 3-inch heels.

Laurine and Georgia may be reached after 6 p. m. at their home at 3608 Whitehaven Parkway Northwest, Ordway 0275.

Reservoir Bid Tops Estimate by $200,000

Norfolk, Va., June 10 (AP).—A low bid approximately $200,000 greater than advance cost estimates has been submitted for the building of a dam to enlarge the Lake Burnt Mills city water reservoir.

F. J. Gannaway of Norfolk bid $523,540 for building the dam. M. S. Hudgins and McDowell and Wood of Roanoke gave a figure of $690,760, the only other proposal received yesterday at the department of public works.

The dam is part of a $2,240,500 water supply expansion project, including a new pipe line from Lake Prince to the city.

Army Shows Doctors Its Blitz Hospitals Built on Circus Idea of Quick Knockdowns

By the Associated Press

Atlantic City, June 10.—The Army Medical Corps exhibited for the first time today its new equipment to save the lives of thousands of soldiers during the present war.

Surgeon General James Magee, Gen. Larry MacAfee and Maj. L. C. Shellenberger of Washington, and Maj. A. B. Christie of Carlisle Barracks, Pa., showed the newest material developed to handle any emergency from a cut finger to a mangled leg in any area from the tropics to the Arctic Zone.

The Army has developed field hospital units which can be set up and torn down faster than the circus moves in and out of town.

One of the chief components is a new type ambulance capable of carrying a maximum of 21 men in comfort at speeds up to 50 miles per hour. It also carries along a trailer which can be used to delouse clothing or sterilize surgeons' gowns and instruments.

The equipment was demonstrated to physicians at the ninty-third annual meeting of the American Medical Association.

The Army medical officers said that within a short time sulfanilamide or sulfathiazole powders may become a standard part of the first-aid equipment of every soldier so that when wounded and lacking the aid of a physician he can immediately treat a wound and cut down the danger of the progress of infection.

The Army's panzer medical units are going to require increasing quantities of blood plasma in the war effort, Dr. Earl S. Taylor of the American Red Cross told the association and as many as two million Americans may be asked to give their blood in the war effort "just as our soldiers are giving it on the battlefield."

The Army and Navy have already requested blood for 1,250,000 units of dried plasma which has already saved the lives of thousands of soldiers and sailors, he declared, and 357,566 pints of blood have already been donated. At present 18 blood donation centers have been established and others are planned to meet the need as fast as laboratory facilities can be found to convert whole blood into dried plasma.

Atlantic City, June 10.—Evidence that weather conditions may be an important factor in determining whether a child will be born a boy or a girl was presented to the section on pediatrics of the American Medical Association today by Dr. William F. Petersen and Dr. Alvin Mayne, of the University of Illinois College of Medicine.

The doctors said their observations indicated that in general boys are conceived in "periods of increasing cold" and girls in "periods of greater warmth."

The weather, seasons, and sun spots, through their influence on the mother at the time of conception and at critical periods during pregnancy, also effect the future stature and health of the child for the whole of his life, they said their studies indicated.

Indians Beat Nats in 12th of Wild Game, 4 to 3

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Up on the dais of the Mayflower's huge ball room, white-haired Clark Griffith sat dewy-eyed and humbly grateful as 600 Washingtonians heaped tributes on his name.

POVICH

At each successive testimonial—from the men of Walter Reed Hospital, the Boy Scouts, and the oldsters from the Soldiers Home—the old gentleman shuffled to his feet in embarrassed acknowledgement. For them, they said, the Griffith Stadium gates had always swung open, and Mr. Griffith looked very happy.

He blushed when Representative Joe Martin called him "a leader of men, who with his abilities could have been a leader in industrial, mercantile or any other calling." He beamed when Representative Martin declared that "baseball is a safety valve of our Nation in times of emotional stress, and men like Clark Griffith have made it our great national game."

And then in a voice choked with sentiment, Mr. Griffith spoke. He was apologizing, he said, for his inability to express completely his gratitude to "you, my friends." Even if blessed with all of the vocabulary of all the learned men, he said, he would be unable to convey adequately his deep gratitude.

But from the heart the words came, with poetic simplicity and loaded down with sincerity. He said he was proud of such distinguished friends. He wondered why he deserved such honor. He begged that none might feel themselves omitted from his thanks if he could not mention them by name. He called upon his old ball players—Walter Johnson, Bucky Harris, Roger Peckinpaugh, Joe Judge, Clyde Milan, Ossie Bluege—to stand up and share his pride of this day.

Gratitude punctuated his every spoken sentence, and his voice broke a dozen times. With pride he mentioned the name of Mrs. Griffith and her sister, Miss Jane Robertson, "who in my life have been my greatest inspiration and encouragement," and then he mustered a pun. "Not the least of the encouragement I have received from these two fine ladies has been the fact that in their 40 years with me, they have gained no knowledge of baseball. The ball game we played in the afternoon, I never took home with me at night."

He asked the indulgence of Toastmaster the Hon. Edward Curran that he might read his prepared speech of the occasion, and he sounded a patriotic note on baseball in wartime. A bit stiffly, in contrast to the easier flow of his extemporaneous talk, he gave baseball's pledge to the war effort.

He said "the grand old national game has entered, along with everyone, into another war period, and Uncle Sam can depend on baseball people and its players to give their full-hearted support to the winning of this war . . . The program outlined by President Roosevelt, which advised that baseball should continue for the duration, and that all of its players should stand ready to answer the call to the colors when it comes, suits baseball and its players to perfection . . . we are following out this program.

"You will hear," he said "People say 'can baseball carry on? My answer to them is 'Yes.' While many of our players will be called from time to time . . . and there are now 800 ball players in the armed service, we are still going to have many of them left, to which we can add either youngsters or oldsters who will help make good baseball teams.

"General Hershey and Chairman Paul V. McNutt have said the Army will not break up established families . . . this means married men with children, which would leave baseball with the nucleus of teams for every major league club . . . Of course, if the Army wants us all, we will gladly go . . . it is my belief that it is the desire of the Army for baseball to function if possible . . . for the Army knows full well the value of baseball to the morale of the people back home . . . I am not making these assertions because I am a baseball man, but as a citizen who believes that all of our American institutions should carry on in wartime, if at all possible."

He finished his speech, looked again at the faces that swam before him . . . Senators, Congressmen, high men of the judiciary, businessmen and plain baseball fans, and he said he hoped he hadn't forgotten to thank everybody, and he sat down a little bit weakly.

A stoutish, baldish gentleman walked out of the Griffith Testimonial luncheon at its conclusion yesterday, murmuring to a friend, "it's wonderful to be completely forgotten like I was."

Here was his story: He had walked up to Roger Peckinpaugh, shook his hand. "Hello, Roger," he said, "or perhaps you don't remember me."

Peckinpaugh admitted as much. "Sorry, but I don't seem to remember you. What's your name?"

The big, fifty-ish fellow, smiled. "You'll remember me when I explain that I'm the fellow who threw you that 2-and-0 pitch you banged for a two-bagger in the seventh game of the world series in 1924 between Washington and the Giants."

"Jack Bentley!" ejaculated Peck.

"Right, and it's wonderful to be forgotten."

Roy Cullenbine's Wild Base Running Hurts Nationals In Long Night Game

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Buck Newsom, one pitch away from a sparkling shut-out victory over the Cleveland Indians, made a mess of a 2-0 lead with two out in the ninth, and eventually the Nats last night took a painful licking in 12 innings by a 4-3 score.

Alex Carrasquel was the losing pitcher, and there was no applause, either, for Outfielder Roy Cullenbine who ran the bases like mad and we don't mean angrily.

It was a wild night at the stadium for the 9000 customers who saw Newsom strike out eight Indians along the way and then get himself showered with hits that wiped out the Nats two-run lead in the ninth.

Three Runs in Ninth

The Indians scored three times in that ninth inning, but George Case delivered the Nats from defeat at that point when he rammed a last-ditch single to center with two out that fetched home the run that made it 3-3 for the Nats.

Cleveland scored the winning run in the twelfth after Mack and Denning hit consecutive singles to left. Denning scored from this by beating Carrasquel's throw to the plate on a slow tap by Pitcher Charles Embree.

Jeff Heath was Newsom's nemesis in the ninth. Weatherly singled with one out, but Newsom fanned Hockett. Keltner followed with a single to center. The count was two strikes and two balls on Heath when he whaled one of Newsom's pitches to the wall in deep center to score the two tying runs. Heath scored from third when Fleming lined a single off Pofahl's glove. The Indians got five hits off Newsom in the inning.

Case Gets Hit

Case was the Nats' ninth-inning hero. With two out and Clary on second base after Boudreau's fumble and a steal, Case dropped a single into center to get the tieing run home and send the game into extra innings.

Cullenbine, making his debut with the Nats in the game, was the hero of the early innings. He singled to produce the first Washington run and he walked in the sixth to score the second run of the Nats. But he was no help with his base running late in the game.

With a bright chance for the Nats to score the winning run in the tenth, Cullenbine, after leading off with a single, made an absurd attempt to go to third on Repass' scratch single and was thrown out, removing the innards from the rally. In the twelfth, he singled with one out to renew hopes for the Nats, but for no reason at all he tried to take two bases on a wild pitch and was thrown out as far as, well . . . From here to there.

FIRST INNING

CLEVELAND—Weatherly struck out. Vernon made a one-handed stab of Hockett's hot grounder and threw him out to Newsom who covered first. Keltner struck out. Nothing across.

SECOND INNING

Jockey Root Injured, Two Horses Killed

Charles Town Track Accident Sends Rider to Hospital After Race Pile-Up

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 10.—One jockey was injured and two horses lost their lives in a sensational spill that marked the running of the fifth race this afternoon. Jockey Ruddy Root was rushed to the Charles Town General Hospital with undetermined back injuries as the result of a pile-up at the first turn of the 7-furlong race that saw four horses and as many boys go down in a struggling mass.

The riders who miraculously escaped serious injury were Willie Dufford, whose face was bruised and cut; Joe Cowley, who was badly shaken up and canceled his mounts for the remainder of the program, and Clarence Wright, who was uninjured and returned to ride in the next race.

C. M. Feltner's Meadow Gold died instantly from a broken neck and G. Funk's Ebonito broke a leg and was mercifully destroyed. The other two horses, Mrs. H. R. Jenkin's Miss Soot and S. M. Boyle's Grape Vine were not injured and arose to run riderless behind the four horses still in action.

Meadow Gold, ridden by Root, appeared to be first to fall. The mare was on the outside of the pack going into the clubhouse turn when she tripped and went down, carrying Ebonito, ridden by Dufford, with her. Miss Soot, with Cowley in the saddle, and Grape Vine, with Wright aboard, drove into the fallen horses and also went down.

Try Flying Wins

The full extent of Root's injuries will not be determined until X-ray pictures are developed. He suffered a fractured vertebrae three years ago in a spill at Marlboro but resumed riding after six months. He is a veteran jockey and the father of two young children.

John C. Ellis' Tensleep proved the winner of the ill-fated race. The daughter of Jock was behind the horses that went down but was not impeded. Joe Smokey was second, beaten a length and a quarter, with Scarlet Flame third and Paso Grande fourth and last. The winner paid $8.80.

The program was marked by several victories by heavily played favorites but the backers of public choices lost by a head margin in the day's feature event, the Dr. J. L. Luke Purse. Mrs. A. B. Evans' Try Flying proved a head better than P. H. Faulconer's strongly backed Roman Boy, the pair battling it out from start to finish.

Last Bet was third in the test of four and a half furlongs which drew six starters. Try Flying paid $6.80 and ran the abbreviated route in the fastest time of the meeting, being clocked in :49 2-5.

Red Sox Rout Browns, 10-3; Hughson Stars

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 10.—The Boston Red Sox maintained their newly won grip on second place today by slaughtering the St. Louis Browns, 10-3, behind the eight-hit pitching of Cecil (Tex) Hughson.

All the Brownie tallies came in the third inning with Mike Chartak, playing his first game in a St. Louis uniform since being traded by Washington, punching a Hughson serve into the right-field bullpen with two mates aboard.

Boston, which came from behind to tie the score in the fourth and go ahead in the fifth, put the game beyond redemption with a five-run outburst in the sixth.

Johnny Pesky opened with a double and Lou Finney beat out a bunt. Tony Lupien's double sent Pesky and Finney home. Jim Tabor doubled to score Lupien and Bill Conroy lofted his second homer in as many days. Niggeling satried, but was chased in the fifth, being charged with the defeat.

Harris' 3-Run Homer In 11th Beats Yanks

Cramer Gets 3 Hits, Enters 2000 Class As Benton Goes Route for Detroit, Wins, 4-1

By the Associated Press

New York, June 10.—Ned Harris slammed a home run into the right field stands with two mates on base in the eleventh inning today to give the Detroit Tigers a 4-to-1 triumph over the New York Yankees and steal the spotlight from several other noteworthy efforts.

One of the players from whom attention was distracted was his teammate Roger (Doc) Cramer, who made three singles to bring his lifetime total of hits to 2000 and enter a select group of hitters that includes only six others now active in the major leagues.

In previous major league history 76 players have made 2000 or more hits and of these the only ones still playing are Paul Waner of the Boston Braves (now four hits from his 3000 goal), Lloyd Waner of the Phils, Mel Ott and Dick Bartell of the New York Giants, Jimmie Foxx, newly acquired by the Chicago Cubs, Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox, and Charley Gehringer, coach and pinch-hitter for the Tigers.

Bloodworth Homers

All of these players have been in service longer than Cramer, who is in his fourteenth season and came to Detroit last winter after playing with the Philadelphia Athletics. Red Sox and Washington Nats. He has made 64 hits this season.

Cramer's blows today, however, had nothing to do with the outcome of the game. All the eleventh Detroit's only run was a homer by Jimmy Bloodworth in the fifth.

Al Benton, who went the whole route for his third victory, scattered 10 hits in a pitching duel first with Marv Breuer and later with Fireman Johnny Murphy, who was charged with his first defeat of the season after three winning relief performances. They held the Tigers to eight safeties.

The Yanks tied the score in the eighth when Frank Crosetti beat out a bunt and went on to second as Pinky Higgins overthrew first, then came home as Tommy Henrich singled.

Joe Gordon extended his batting streak to 27 games, but did not get his single until two were out in the last of the eleventh.

Giants Beat Cincinnati, 6-1, Tie for Third

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, June 10.—The New York Giants beat the Cincinnati Reds for the fifth straight time tonight, 6 to 1, to draw up into a third-place tie with the losers.

With Johnny Mize and Harry Danning knocking in two runs apiece, the Giants had no trouble disposing of Johnny Vander Meer, even though he fanned eight men.

Mize started the scoring in the second inning with the first of his two doubles, an infield out and a passed ball, and Micky Witek's single and Willard Marshall's triple made another in the third.

Mize's second double and Danning's single brought the third in the next inning, and in the eighth the Giants iced matters with three runs on two singles, an error and an infield play.

The Reds avoided a shutout in their half on singles by Lonnie Frey, Max Marshall and Bert Haas, but a double play ended the threat, and although they filled the bases in the ninth, Ace Adams relieved Schumacher and wound up the game quickly.

Sewell Beats Braves, 3 to 0, For Pirates

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 10.—With Rip Sewell permitting but four singles and letting but one man get as far as second base, the Pittsburgh Buccaneers tonight took their sixth straight triumph by beating Boston 3 to 0. It was the Braves' ninth straight setback.

A crowd of 11,533 witnessed the game.

Sewell clinched his own game in the eighth when he lined out a single with the sacks loaded to score two runners. Rookie Johnny Barrett had given Rip a first-inning margin of one run by doubling, moving to third on a passed ball and scoring on a long fly by Elbie Fletcher.

Big Jim Tobin fanned six and held his former teammates well in hand excepting for the eighth. He had struck out Sewell twice before the clinching hit was made.

Babe Phelps, still nursing a spiked hand, returned to the line-up for the Pirates and slashed out two singles in three official trials.

Only 31 men faced Sewell, who walked two and was aided by two double plays, the last one coming in the ninth frame after Waner singled with one out.

Blozis Seeks Record From New Base Ring

By International News Service

Lincoln, Neb., June 10.—Al Blozis, the Georgetown giant, will better the NCAA shot-put record by almost 12 inches, Ed Weir, University of Nebraska track coach, predicted tonight.

Weir based his prediction on the new asphalt base ring from which Blozis and his competitors will work Friday and Saturday.

Nebraska weight men have been using the new ring the past week, Weir revealed, and have added a foot to their puts or around 50 feet with the 16-pound iron ball.

Blozis, who will be after his third straight NCAA shot-put title, will crack Jack Torrance's record of 57 feet 1 5-32 inches by almost a foot, if he adds 12 inches to his best mark of 57 feet one-half inch.

The Georgetown star is favored to win the discus throw as well as the shot-put.

Haight's Airing Of 4-Horse Spill A Masterpiece

Russ Hodges, WOL sportscaster, reported last night he'd received 17 phone calls extolling Walter Haight, Post racing editor, within a few minutes after Haight had broadcast yesterday's fifth race at Charles Town.

Four horses went down on the clubhouse turn, injuring a jockey and killing two of the thoroughbreds. Haight, according to the praising listeners, kept on calling the race faultlessly, but, at the same time, gave running fill-ins on the four horses and jockeys down, rescue efforts and so on.

"It was the greatest piece of graphic sports reporting I've ever heard over the air," said Hodges, who handles the afternoon sports parade from WOL's studio here.

Armour Gets Hale America Golf Invite

By the Associated Press

New York, June 10.—Tommy Armour, the "Silver Scot" of the links, will play in the Hale America Open golf tournament at Chicago starting June 18 after all.

Armour, who failed to qualify for one of the 14 places open in the sectional qualifying rounds at Chicago, today was invited to compete in the tournament proper by Francis Ouimet, chairman of the joint tournament committee.

The invitation was based on Armour's record, which includes victories in the United States and British Opens and the P. G. A. tournament, among scores of others. He also is in golf's Hall of Fame.

His selection boosts the total of entrants who were invited to compete without qualifying to 25 and increases the total field to 107. The total entry list before the qualifying rounds was 1541.

Two Teams of Army Football Stars to Meet Professionals

East, West Squads Play For 6 Weeks

Redskins and Western Team Are Scheduled In Los Angeles; 1500 Eligible

By the Associated Press

Two of the most powerful football squads ever put together, chosen fromthe cream of the Nation's gridiron stars now in the Army, will startiraining August 22 for a whirlwind six weeks' campaign against teams of the National Professional Football League.

Six games already have been definitely scheduled—at Los Angeles, Cleveland, New York, Boston, Brooklyn and Madison, Wis.—and there probably will be five or six other appearances of the Army All-Stars, including one at Denver. Entire proceeds of all except one contest thus far scheduled will go to Army Emergency Relief.

One team will be known as the "Eastern Army All-Stars," the other as the "Western Army All-Stars," the latter probably making its headquarters in the vicinity of Chicago. It is not planned that the two Army Goliaths shall meet in the course of their spectacular careers, but it would not be surprising if they yield to popular demand and stage an "Army Championship" after they have finished batting the professionals about.

1500 Eligibles

There will be no distinction between amateurs and professionals on the Army teams. College stars who entered the service fresh from the campus will play alongside vetesans of the money game. The Army already has compiled a list of 1500 elgibles for the two 30-man squads.

"We should win every game," predicts Col. John Thomas Taylor, assistant director of the Army public relations office, who is handling details of the pigskin project. "We don't have any idea yet, of course, what particular stars will be on each team. That will be left to two coaches. But I think we are safe in saying they will be the best football teams anybody ever saw."

The coaches have not been definitely decided upon, though Colonel Taylor hopes that Maj. Wallace Wade, who coached Duke University before joining his machine gun battalion, will be available for the Eastern post. He hopes to get an Army coach of national reputation for the Western squad, too, but might be forced to settle on a civilian. The coaches will choose their own training sites.

The star-spangled squads will have only six days of training before they plunge into their schedules. On August 28 the Western Squad plays the Washington Redskins at Los Angeles, and on the same day picked players from the Eastern team probably will join the College All-Stars in their annual classic against the Chicago Bears at Chicago. This game is the promotion of the Chicago Tribune.

Games To Be Added

On September 7, Labor Day, the Army's Western team meets the Cleveland Rams at Cleveland; September 9 the Eastern team plays the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds in the New York Herald Tribune's annual benefit game, with part of the proceeds going to the Fresh Air Fund; September 13 the Army Western team plays the Green Bay Packers at Madison, Wis.; September 15 the East tackles the Chicago Bears at Boston, and September 20 the East meets Brooklyn at Ebbets Field.

Games have yet to be arranged with Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Detroit and the Chicago Cardinals of the professional circuit. The Cardinals game, Col. Taylor said, might be played at Denver. Ray McCarthy, sports coordinator for the Army Emergency Relief fund, is at present ironing out the details with Elmer Layden, president of the National Professional League. George Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins, is acting as chairman of the professionals' committee on arrangements.

Pitcher Ken Jungels Sent to Jersey City

Pittsburgh, June 10 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates announced today the outright release of Right-handed Pitcher Kenneth Jungles to Jersey City of the International League, a farm club of the New York Giants.

Jungles' release brings the Pirate roster down to 24, one below the limit. He was drafted from Wilkes-Barre of the Eastern League last year.

With Otis Prinz and Bud Jennings holding Center Market to eight scattered hits, Cameo won an 8-to-6 Industrial League game yesterday on the Ellipse.

Both teams scored early, Center Market tallying three in the first and Cameo four in their half of the initial stanza. The game was halted in the last of the eighth because of darkness.

Cooper and Schwab led the winners' attack with a homer and triple, respectively. Today Cameo plays Little Tavern at West Ellipse at 5:30 o'clock.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

The Olympics Go On, Anyway

New York, June 10.—Well, we're going to have the Olympic Games after all. Tokyo gave them up, to conserve the stadia steel for a little job the bums had planned for December 7, 1941. Helsinki gave them up because Mother Russia rushed in to defend the Volga and used the Olympic stadium there as a substitution for the bomb sight, since attained.

CONSIDINE

Then Buenos Aires was "it," but a Nazi sub reared its ugly snoot off Aruba, sank a tanker or two, and the A. A. U. decided not to risk sending a boatload of its breadwinning athletes down that way to compete in the Pan-American Olympics. Canada had decided earlier. Mexico followed the United States and pretty soon all plans for holding the Pan American Olympics were dropped. Incidentally, a melancholy late mail brings us a handout from Buenos Aires, telling us in Spanish double talk what a great sports event the 1942 Pan American Olympics will be. It was mailed in January, two months before these games were doomed

But all is not lost, at least for New Yorkers. Come Sunday, at the Polo Grounds, a strikingly varied sports show will be staged by Publicist Bert Bachrach for the benefit of the Army Emergency Fund and the Navy Relief Society.

The Program Is Far More Varied

It differs from the Olympic Games only in that it will be better. For the games never had a fighter as good as Joe Louis, a middle distance runner as fast as Greg Rice, a pole vaulter as towering as Corny Warmerdam, a ball player as good as Bob Feller, tennis playes as good as Don Budge and Alice Marble, or a shot-putter like Al Blozis. Golf was never a part of the Olympic curriculum, so it's a cinch that the games never had golfers like Craig Wood and Corpis. Vic Ghezzi, Jim Turnesa and Ed Oliver.

We weren't at the Berlin Olympics, and thus didn't see Hitler flounce into his box, hand on hip, and offer his better profile to the lens of Henrich Hoffman. Or Fats Goering giving out with his field marshal's baton.

But nothing there could have been any funnier than Al Schacht will be at our own Olympics on Sunday. The great clown, whose stuff is still hilarious to us though we first saw him in Washington a full generation ago, will be one of the stars at the Polo Grounds. As for the music, it will be furnished by some pretty fair silver cornet bands—Fred Waring, Tommy Dorsey and bands from the Army and Navy. If Schacht ever palls, there will be Ray Bolger and Olsen and Johnson, which is enough said.

War Hurt a Fine Olympic Team

All of which leads us to think that if peace had continued to break out in the world, a most unhistoric state to be sure, we would have had an Olympic team this year that would have been simply tremendous. Forgetting the pros who will make the Sunday show sparkle, we would have had a great crop of amateurs more than fit to bring further fame to this country as a breeding place for superb athletes. The war has ended, perhaps forever, the rights of Warmerdam, MacMitchell, Rice, Ewell, Blozis, Jimmy Carollo, Gloria Callen, Torger Tokle, etc., to take their places among the Thorpes, Owens, Barbuttis, Sheppards, Nurmis, Henies and McGraths of Olympic fame.

Ace Costs Smathers Two Strokes

Frank Smathers has the exasperating experience of making a hole-in-one—too late, yesterday at Congressional Country Club on the 192-yard par 3 third hole.

Smathers stepped up on the elevated tee of the difficult one-shooter and shanked a two-iron shot out of bounds, penalty, one stroke.

He teed up another ball and this time knocked it straight and true into the cup, but with the penalty stroke it was good only for a birdie deuce.

Dr. Noah Pomeroy, John Agur and Dr. H. C. Smathers were his playing partners.

Pairings for the first round of match play in Congressional's President's Cup tournament were announced yesterday by Pro Willy Cox: The flight of 16 will start Saturday at 1 p. m.

1 p. m., C. C. Concannon vs. H. P. Hallsteen. J. M. Trice vs. Marvin Johnston; 1:05, J. F. McCarron vs. D. L. Moorman, O. T. Smith vs. T. E. Conlyn; 1:10, G. G. Fitton vs. A. E. Maryland Golf Events Near Deadlines

District golfers have a little more than a week to file entries for the Maryland State Golf Association's Amateur and Women's championship tournaments which will both be held in Baltimore this year during the same week.

The women's is scheduled for the Country Club of Maryland, June 23 through 27, and the men's amateur at the Five Farms course of the Baltimore Country Club, June 25-26-27.

Transportation difficulties will limit the field from clubs in the vicinity of Washington, but both defending champions from the city, Mrs. Betty P. Meckley, Kenwood, and Volney G. Burnett, Indian Spring, will lead small District delegations.

Those playing in the championships will probably take advantage of rooming accommodations in Towson, just outside Baltimore and a short distance from each club. Due to the closing of the Maryland State offices in Baltimore, the entries will be taken at the host clubs for each event.

Other events scheduled that week include a Pro-amateur at Bannockburn on Monday, June 22, and the District Junior at Washington, June 23.

Competition for the local links devotees next week will be confined to the Federal Golf championship Monday and Tuesday at Prince Georges at the District women's all week at Chevy Chase.

Sing Sing Nine 'Recalls' Batting Star, .450 Hitter

By the Associated Press

New York, June 10.—The Sing Sing ball club's batting average ought to hit a new high this summer—its star slugger of former years is rejoining the team under a long-term contract.

The heavy hitter is Jerome Milner, 40, who was sentenced to from 15 years to life as a fourth offender in general sessions today on his plea of guilty to robbery.

Joseph C. Thomson, Milner's attorney, told Judge Owen W. Bohan that his client had a life-time batting average of .450 with the Sing Sing baseball team.

Police records showed Milner had served time in 1918, 1922, 1926 and 1934.

Podgajny's No-Hitter Turns To Cub Victory

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 10.—Usually a Cub nemesis, Johnny Podgajny was just that for six innings while he pitched no-hit baseball today, but something happened in the seventh and before the smoke cleared Chicago had five runs—enough to beat the Phillies, 5 to 2, in the opener of the series.

During the seventh-inning uprising the Cubs bunched four hits—three off Podgajny and another off Ike Pearson, who came in to clean up the mess.

But it was during Pearson's regime that Stanley Hack delivered the blow that cleared the bases and gave the Cubs their margin of victory.

By pitching an eight-hit performance, Bill Lee managed to win his eighth victory of the season.

Podgajny allowed only four men to reach first base during the first six innings. Two got there on a walk, another as a hit batsman and the fourth on an error by Nick Etten.

The Cub drive in the seventh began when Bragan made a bad throw on Jimmy Foxx' grounder. Singles by Russell and Nicholson followed and the bases were full. Novikoff was hit by a pitched ball and Foxx scored. McCullough scored Russell with a single to left and Podgajny was removed.

Pearson then came into the game and made Bill Lee pop to Murtaugh. The next hitter, Stanley Hack, smacked one down the right field line and three runs came home to settle the issue.

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 10.—Robert W. Collins' Irresistible became a threat for Saturday's $5000 added Constitution Handicap, when he tore off the fastest three-quarters of the New England season today at Suffolk Downs.

Irresistible won by 2¼ lengths in 1:10 3-5 with J. H. Loucheim's First Son second, one-half length in front of E. R. Bradley's Best Reward. S. W. Shapoff's Mixer ran fourth.

Last for almost a half mile, Irresistible came with a tremendous rush, saved a large amount of ground by hugging the rail and came on to overtake the field inside the eighth pole. He galloped out the mile in 1:39 3-5.

Irresistible paid $20, $3.80 and $2.60, while First Son returned $2.40 and $2.20 and Best Reward $2.60.

A pair of long shots, Marty Madden's Girlette and Miss Gwen Rossiter's Zelleen Zee, paid $537.80 on 38 tickets, one of the largest daily doubles of the New England season.

Jack Knott was batted out of the box in six frames by the Sox. Johnny Humphries, Sox hurler, tripled the first score home in the third and scored on Appling's single. Base knocks by Moses, Kolloway and Wright, plus an error, clinched the decision for the Chicagoans in the fifth.

Dogpatch Wins Shevlin Stakes At Aqueduct

By the Associated Press

Aqueduct Racetrack, N. Y., June 10.—Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Dogpatch won the fifteenth running of the Shevlin Stakes for 3-year-olds at Aqueduct today by three lengths over the highly favored Fairaris from the barn of R. S. McLaughlin. William Woodward's Trierarch was third, two lengths farther back and a length in front of A. G. Vanderbilt's Rascal.

Dogpatch, coming from behind after W. W. Crenshaw's Zaca Rosa and Fairaris had cut out all the early pace, clicked off the mile and a sixteenth in the slow time of 1:44 2-5 under Jockey Albert Schmidl's handling to pick up the winner's purse of $5,050.

Dogpatch returned $24.20 for each $2 win ticket, $4.50 for place and $3.40 for show. Fairaris, knocked down to 1 to 4 in the win pool by the 14,761 fans who turned out for the card, was $2.40 and $2.20 to place and show. Trierarch paid $3.20 for show supporters.

Dogpatch, winning his first race in eight starts this year, carried 114 pounds, compared to Fairaris' topweight of 120.

Chandler Turns Back Rice in City Tennis Tourney

Courtney Wins Over Bill Breese

Welsh, Lynch, Bensinger, Royal Also Advance At Edgmoor Club

By Jack Munhall

Tall, taciturn Bud Chandler yesterday continued to be the big news of the City of Washington tennis championships at Edgemoor as the quarterfinals round was filled with the District's top four men's singles players and four unranked contenders.

Chandler, 37-year-old employe of the Undersecretary of Navy's office here and one-time nationally famous player, led the quartet of unseeded survivors. The lanky, bespectacled stylist had no trouble in disposing of eighth seeded Austin Rice, 6—1, 6—3. Another "upset" was the elimination of flambouyant fifth seeded Bill Breese, the $1-a-year Red Cross worker, by Jerry Courtney, late of New England. The other two unseeded players in the round of eight are red-headed Bobby Bensinger, the local junior champ, and Doyle Royal, long one of the city's better young players. Both had reached the quarter-finals earlier.

Defending Champion Barney Welsh, the Rockville barrister, and third-seeded Hugh Lynch won yesterday to claim their berths in the round of eight there to join second-ranked Don Leavens and fourth-seeded David Johnsen, who got in Tuesday. These four hold tournament seedings the same as their D. C. rankings.

Gets Strong Opposition

Welsh overcame unexpectedly strong opposition from Igor Cassini, the newspaper columnist, 6—2, 6—3, while Lynch polished off Bill Reynolds, 6—1, 6—2.

The fact that Welsh was not impressive in victory or that Lynch was impressive held little interest for the tournament fans who at this point are busily engaged in their favorite pastime—speculation on who is going to upset Welsh.

Every year, it seems, there comes from somewhere a dark-horse entrant in local tournaments who, insiders whisper, is the guy who's going to end Welsh's long monopoly on all the titles. Always, this dark horse is bleached in defeat with varying degrees of ease when finally Welsh gets hold of him.

This year the guinea pig for the noble Welsh experiment is the scholarly-looking Chandler, who 15 years ago could probably have spotted anyone in town a set and won in two out of three. Now, at 37, Chandler still has the picture-book strokes that carried him to national fame and a No. 4 ranking in 1926, but whether he retains the stamina and competitive spirit to cop the honors is the moot question.

Chandler Faces Johnsen

The answer may be provided today when Chandler vies with young Davie Johnsen for one of the semifinal berths at 6 p. m. in the feature of a three-match schedule. Johnsen, former District junior champion and occasionally a very fine player capable of extending the best, should prove beyond doubt whether Chandler has the strength to go two or three tough sets at top speed. Davie's driving forehand and backhand should force Chandler to hustle. If Johnsen's strokes don't succeed in making the old boy step lively, then it is doubtful if Welsh could do it either.

Today's card opens at 5:30 with Leavens tackling Bensinger in another match carrying plenty of interest. Welch and Courtney play at 6:30 and Barney is expected to win as he pleases. The fourth quarter-finals, between Lynch and Royle Royal, will be played Friday.

It was decided yesterday to hold a doubles tournament limited to eight teams, with play starting Friday and ending with finals Sunday, when finals in the singles also will be staged.

Yesterday's Results

Second round—Cassini defeated Evans, 6—1, 6—2.

Third round—Welsh (1) defeated Cassini, 6—2, 6—3; Lynch (3) defeated Reynolds, 6—1, 6—2; Courtney defeated Breese, 2—6, 6—4, 6—4; Chandler defeated Rice (4), 6—1, 6—3.

Today's Pairings

Quarterfinals—5:30, Leavens vs. Bensinger; 6:00, Johnsen vs. Chandler; 6:30, Welsh vs. Courtney.

Jamaica Turns Over $125,000 To War Relief

By the Associated Press

New York, June 10.—The Jamaica race track, which had promised to equal the $107,420.38 contribution of Belmont to service organizations, has surpassed that amount by nearly $20,000.

Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the Turf Committee of America, announced today that Jamaica has presented its check for $125,000, and that 50 per cent of the Belmont purse won by Shut Out, as well as 50 per cent of the earnings of Trainer John M. Gaver and Jockey Eddie Arcaro, has been donated to relief funds.

Shut Out's share of the purse came to $44,520, of which Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney, owner of the Greentree stable, gave $22,260 to three service organizations. Gaver donated $2296 of his $4452 share, and Arcaro gave $1436, which is 50 per cent of his $4452 share less commissions and expenses.

Forty per cent of the $25,922 donated as a result of Shut Out's victory is given to Army Emergency Relief, 40 per cent to the Navy Relief Society, and 20 per cent to the USO.

Preston Drew Meets Hanbury In 6-Rounder

Promoter Joe Turner will offer a pair of former amateur stars Monday night in his first outdoor boxing show at Griffith Stadium, when he pairs Lew Hanbury with Preston Drew in a special six-round featherweight scrap.

The main attraction brings together Joe Baksi, young Pole from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and Jabbo Kenner, 220-pound colored heavyweight. The eight-rounder will mark the second appearance of Baksi, who licked Jimmy DeChard in his initial showing two months ago at Riverside Stadium.

Hanbury, winner of the Golden Gloves championship and a finalist in the sectional trials at New York, will be making his professional bow. He is managed by his father. Drew has had six professional fights.

In another six-rounder Clint Conway, New York colored fighter, faces Lou Jones, a local boy. The four-round opener will pit Eddie Kane, another former Golden Glover, against Leon Kennedy of Pennsylvania. An opponent for Gus Mirman, former Columbus University light-heavy, is being sought. Mirman has won five straight.

Jabbo Kenner, tabbed as the No. 1 District heavyweight by the Boxing Commission, won a technical knockout verdict over Joe Carilli in his last start. In that scrap, Kenner is credited with staging his best fight since turning professional. He managed to hold Carilli safe in the early rounds and then went on to outslug him. The bout was stopped by the referee when Carilli's eye was badly cut.

Tickets for the show are on sale at Turner's Arena, Fourteenth and W Streets Northwest. Service men will be admitted for 25 cents.

Inverness Host to 16 Pros in $7650 Event

Round-robin, Best Ball Tournament Opens Today; Hogan, Demaret Defending Champs

By the Associated Press

Toledo, Ohio, June 10.—Sixteen top-notch golf professionals had their last free ride around historic Inverness today—one last chance to find the answers to the questions the course will ask the next four days in the eighth annual $7650 round-robin best-ball matches.

Lawson Little, winner of the American and British amateur tournaments in 1934 and 1935 and the 1940 National Open king, and his partner, Lloyd Mangrum, appeared to have most of the answers in today's practice round. They ripped nine strokes off par with a brilliant 33—29, 62 effort, although both had bogies on the opening hole.

All 16 entrants toured the layout today but most played more than one ball and did not keep a medal score.

One Round Today

Tomorrow's opening round in the 126-hole best-ball event will be preceded by a clinic in which each of the professionals will demonstrate his favorite shot for the gallery.

Thursday's play gets underway late in the afternoon, with Horton Smith and Melvin (Chic) Harbert meeting Jimmy Hines and Herman Barron; Henry Picard and Sam Byrd vs. Herman Keiser and Chandler Harper; Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, last year's champions, vs. E. J. (Dutch) Harrison and Denny Shute, and Byron Nelson and Jimmy Thomson vs. Mangrum and Little.

All Pros Meet

The pros shoot a single round tomorrow and two rounds on each of the next three days, with each twosome meeting every other duo for 18 holes. Match winners are given a plus score equal to the number of holes they finished ahead and the losers get a corresponding minus.

The team with the largest plus score at the end of 126 holes of play takes top money of $1650 in cash and $500 in war bonds; the second place duo gets $1000 in cash and $300 in bonds, third $750 and $200 in bonds. One hundred dollars less is given for each of the remaining places, eighth placers receiving $300 in cash and $250 in bonds.

The big tourney is a guaranteed money maker for the entrants, each getting a share of the purse, while the club pays hotel and board bills.

Orioles Pound Bob Feller, Beat Norfolk Nine, 3-2

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, June 10.—Baltimore's Orioles touched Bob Feller, former Cleveland Indian twirler, for four hits in a big fourth inning tonight to eke out a 3-to-2 victory over the Norfolk Training Station nine in an exhibition ball game.

Feller, who hurled five innings, yielded five hits, four of them coming in the fourth frame when the International Leaguers scored all their runs. The former Cleveland ace, relieved by Freddy Hutchinson, former Buffalo pitcher, also walked a man, uncorked a wild pitch and had a base stolen on him.

The Naval Training Club scored its two runs in the fourth when Ace Parker singled and Jim Carlin blasted out a homer. Russ Niller went the route for the Orioles, holding the Tars to six hits.

Harry A. Parr Elected Head Of Pimlico

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, June 10.—The Maryland Jockey Club announced today selection by the board of directors of Harry A. Parr 3d of Baltimore to be president of Pimlico race track, succeeding Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, now in the Navy.

Parr, 37, is a member of an old Maryland family identified with racing for many years, and has served as Pimlico treasurer since 1937.

In March at Chicago, Parr was elected to the Turf Committee of America and to vice presidency of the Thoroughbred Racing Associations of the United States.

He is a nephew of the late Maj. Ral Parr, whose racing stable he took over several years ago.

Saratoga Oval Hopes to Run Despite 'Times'

By the Associated Press

New York, June 10.—The board of directors of the Saratoga Racing Association decided today to hold the Saratoga meeting on the scheduled date, July 27 to August 29, in spite of gasoline and tire rationing and a growing transportation problem.

George H. Bull, president of the Spa track, told the directors he hoped details could be worked out later to have the meeting run "in the usual way."

Chief problem at the moment, in addition to the motor transportation of the usual New York City fans who make the more-than-100-mile trip to the Spa, is a substitute for the weekly Saturday special train from Manhattan to Saratoga. This was placed on the banned list several days ago.

"Saratoga has been one of the racing capitals of the country since the Civil War," Bull said later, "and we are going to continue in spite of handicaps. After all, we have had meetings in the past in which we made no money. If we were to call off the meeting now, we would also have to abandon the annual yearling sales, which are important to the breeding industry.

"As a matter of fact, we expect to have a pretty fair meeting. Certainly, we realize there is a transportation problem, but we expect the spectators to get there by all the regular means, even though there is a curtailment in special facilities."

It was pointed out that although some special trains have been discontinued, there are several regularly scheduled runs by both trains and buses from New York to the Spa.

Soccerists Called Back to Mexico

New York, June 10 (AP).—All players and officials of Mexico's championship Atlante soccer team have been ordered back to Mexico City by June 21 because of wartime conditions, thus forcing the team to call off the rest of its United States tour after Sunday.

Games scheduled for Washington, Detroit and St. Louis have been cancelled by the order, which came from Gen. Jose Nunez, chief of police of Mexico City and president of the club. The final game of the tour will be played here Sunday against a New York all-star squad. The Navy Relief Society will receive 25 per cent of the gross receipts.

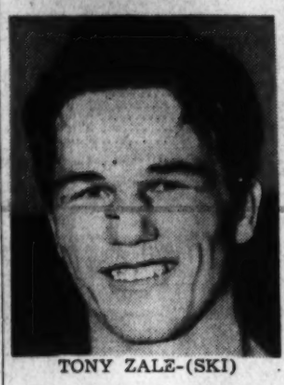
Zale Answers For Prowess Of Zaleski



TONY ZALE-(SKI)

Petty Officer Puzzled While Quizzing Boxer Under Real Name

By International News Service

Great Lakes, Ill., June 10.—A petty officer who couldn't understand why Tony Zale wasn't among the imposing list of boxers Anthony Zaleski had fought, told the story on himself tonight.

Interviewing inductees at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, the petty officer came to Zaleski.

"So you're a fighter?" he said. "Who'd you ever fight?"

Zaleski recited an imposing list.

"Not bad," conceded the petty officer.

"But I suppose you lost to most of them. Say, we're getting a real fighter in here this afternoon, Tony Zale, the world's middleweight champ. How come you never fought him?"

Anthony Zaleski is Tony Zale, the champ.

Shadows Pass Scores in Bowers Purse at Delaware Park

Bieber Mare Is Favorite, Pays $3.40

Eddie Wielander Rides Winner; Detroit Bull Runs Second, Ginoca Third

By the Associated Press

Delaware Park, Stanton, Del., June 10.—Isadore Bieber's Shadows Pass, a beaten favorite in her previous start here, atoned for that setback when she raced to an easy victory over five rivals in the featured Bowers Claiming Purse here today.

In hec prior start, Shadows Pass was sent postward an odds on choice and again today she was solidly backed by the majority of the 7000 fans in attendance. Her straight playoff was $3.40 and she completed the mile and a sixteenth route in 1.45 1-5 over a fast track. Today's score gave the Bieber colorbearer two scores out of three starts at the current meeting.

Eddie Wielander had the mount on Shadows Pass and it was the lad's second score of the afternoon to give him the imposing total of 21 winners to date. Wielander followed closely behind Williamstown's early pace and sent his mount to the fore midway on the last turn. Shadows Pass was never challenged once he took command and he came to the wire three lengths in advance of Detroit Bull. The latter moved up to chase the winner from the head of the lane but could not close the gap. Detroit Bull beat Ginoca a neck for the place.

WORTHOWNING was forward factor for mile and was faltering at close.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

Martin Bletzacker, Somerset, Ohio boy who has been riding his third season at this track, was the champion rider of the regular meeting which ended Tuesday. "Bletz," as he is called around the jockeys' room, piloted 23 winners with Buddy Root in second position with 20. Willie Dufford and Sammy Palumbo tied for third position with 18 while Willie Kelly was next in line with 16. Clarence Wright turned in 14, Carson Kirk 13, Joe Cowley 13, Al Bocson 11, Frank Moon 9, Wayne Weber 8, and George Acosta 8. Bletzacker came to Charles Town a saddle "unknown." Earl Auld, the Washington trainer, interested the boy in the West Virginia track after they met in Florida. Martin's first winner here was Randle's Queen. Bletzaker is now 26 years old but did not ride for three years. He was severely injured in a fall at New Orleans as an apprentice and his injuries included a badly broken leg. He can make 110 pounds. Harold Bester, general manager of the Hagerstown track, came over from the Hub City yesterday with good news for the horsemen. Hagerstown's session which following the "Victory Meeting" here, will have purses of $600. Eddie Brennan will be racing secretary as usual and Donald Hay again takes charge of the mutuels. W. C. Shea will be the steward representing the track. Favorites did fairly well during the Charles Town meeting. There were 66 winning choices in 223 races for a percentage of 30. This was an excellent showing when it is taken into consideration that more than half the races were run over off tracks. "Mookie" Glassman, of Jack's Green Card fame, writes from Camp Blanding that he likes the Army but he misses the horses. They better watch "Mookie" because I suspect he will try to make book on tank races. Jockey Danny Scocca was released from the hospital yesterday. Mrs. L. E. Crowell claimed Who Reigh from Mrs. Dan Chamblin out of Tuesday's race for $1200. Who Reigh won that race and it was his fifth victory in five tries and stamps him as the champion of the meeting. See you on the rail.—BILL.

First race—LINDEN GIRL has plenty of speed and may have the right spot in the field. I'm going to string along MERCILESS ran a good second in one outing and is dangerous. TIME GOLD could be third.

Second race—MAN AT ARMS was off poorly last out and ran a good race. With better racing luck this one should score. BALKANESE is formidable and should be no worse than second. HIGH ROSE for the minor award.

Third race—GLITTER GIRL and CRUSAND, both on the reserve list, are the speedsters of this field. I prefer them in the order named if they see action. SCOOTIE and HAPPY HOSTESS probably are best of the eligibles.

Fourth race—JEAN C galloped in front of a recent field and deserves the call in this event. MICROPLAY is rounding into form and is dangerous. SUN SALVADOR has speed and should be close.

Fifth race—I'm going far out on the limb and try to get CHILLEVALEE home at long odds in this test. That last was a good effort. HIGHLAND SONG likes a shorter route but is dangerous. MYRTLE M to take care of the others.

Sixth race—NEW FACE gets in light and is a possible surprise in this distance test. I'm going to take a shot at this one. IDLE KNIGHT did everything asked last out. PHANTOM PLAYER could awaken.

Seventh race—JUMELUS seems the best suited of those gathered for this battle. Chief opposition should come from LADY DEVINE. KAMARI has a chance out of that No. 1 gate.

Eighth race—STRUMMING gets my call in this field. Gets the inside post and is fit and ready. UNITED FORCE, if taken off the reserve list, would be a keen factor. LYDE to take care of the others.

Substitute race—If this event is used, I'll take BRONX II, BLOX and JUSTA JIMMIE.

Best bet—Strumming.

TVA Acquires Properties of 2-State Utility

Louisville, Ky., June 10. — The board of directors today dissolved the 19-year-old Kentucky-Tennessee Light & Power Co. after transfer of most of its properties to the Tennessee Valley Authority.

At the same time, officials of five western Kentucky municipalities—Bowling Green, Hopkinsville, Mayfield, Russellville and Murray—and of four rural electrification cooperatives, representing 30 Kentucky and 7 Tennessee Counties, purchased from the T. V. A. electric distribution systems of the K-T.

While the city and rural cooperative officials were busy signing stacks of contracts, checks and deeds, R. H. Ferguson of Bowling Green, president of K-T, which was a subidiary of the Associated Gas & Electric Co., called a directors' meeting at which the board resigned in rotation with new directors, being named quickly by the T.V.A.

Old Firm Dissolved

After the TVA directors had been elected to the board they then voted dissolution of the concern.

Directors of the K-T replaced were Ferguson, J. J. Dugan, Bowling Green, secretary-treasurer of the utility; B. J. Sauppee, Bowling Green; P. R. Lawson, New York, president of the Associated Gas & Electric, and A. T. Gardner of New York.

New directors were Gordon R. Clapp, Knoxville, TVA general manager, who served as president of the utility during the brief period of time it took to effect dissolution; William C. Fitts, jr., Knoxville, TVA general counsel; G. O. Wessenauer, Chattanooga, TVA acting power manager; Joseph C. Swidler, Knoxville, TVA counsel, and Philander P. Claxton, Chattanooga, TVA attorney.

TVA purchased K-T's properties under the terms of the Public Utilities Holding Company Act for a total of $3,538,000. A check for this amount was presented the old K-T board of directors today.

Bought By Cities

In turn the mayors of the five Kentucky cities turned over to the TVA checks for a total of $2,122,000 for power distributions systems in their respective localities.

Officials of the four rural cooperatives transferred checks totaling $473,500 to the Authority for their properties.

The TVA retained former K.-T. properties valued at $942,500 including transmission lines, generating plants and substations.

Rail Seeks to Buy Back New $5,000,000 Issue

New York, June 10 (AP).—The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad wants to buy back five million dollars of equipment trust certificates sold last year to finance rolling stock as it was delivered and which has been seized by the War Production Board.

The amount sought in the recall was part of $9,387,000 in certificates publicly disposed of last July bearing 1½ per cent interest and maturing serially from 1942 to 1948. If owners of the certificates insist on keeping the paper, the road will have to pay the regular interest for the life of the contract and see the money lie idle in a bank. The use of the funds is severely restricted by the indenture.

Several other large railroads have faced this problem lately.

Retailers Are Promised 100 Million Albums

New York, June 10 (AP).—The 16,000 chain stores having membership in the "Retailers for Victory" drive to sell war bonds and stamps have been asked to devote part of their regular newspaper advertising to this campaign and to display posters and other advertising in their windows and on counters.

The Treasury Department has promised to make available to the retailers 100,000,000 new stamp albums when the campaign gets under way July 1.

War Plant Would Make Big Stadium

World Wide News Service

New York, June 10.—Imagine, if you can, an airplane engine factory "somewhere in the Midwest" so large that under its roof;

All 16 major league baseball teams could play 8 simultaneous games before crowds of 30,000 each.

And there would still be room enough left over for a full-sized football game before an additional 30,000 spectators.

That is just one of the war plants that I saw during the "Production for Victory" tour of war industries in 21 different cities recently.

Even that engine factory is exceeded by Henry Ford's new Willow Run bomber plant which Army censors have allowed to be described as covering 37 acres or more than 1,500,000 square feet.

Then remember that there are several former peacetime industires, now engaged exclusively in war production, whose payrolls will total before the end of 1942 more than 100,000 persons each—bigger than Duluth, or Utica or Charlotte, N. C.

That will give you an idea of just how big this war production industry really is—in the big figures, without taking into consideration the thousands upon thousands of smaller plants whose principal job is to supply parts and accessories that will "Keep 'Em Rolling" and "Keep 'Em Flying."

"It is the biggest thing we (the United States) have ever undertaken," commented K. T. Keller of the Chrysler Corporation. "It is so big that we cannot measure it and it gets bigger every day.

"e are ready to make a million of anything if they will let us know what they want."

U. S. Utility Reports Heavy Loss in Manila

New York, June 10 (AP).—The Associated Electric Co., a unit of the Associated Gas & Electric System, has received no word concerning its Manila properties since the Japanese occupation, the annual report for 1941 issued by the trustees disclosed today.

Associated had investments of $21,500,000 in the Manila Electric Co. and Escudero Electric Service Co., income from which constituted roughly 25 per cent of its total corporate income.

The trustees said difficulties in the Philippines had been anticipated and a substantial cash balance had been built up to partially offset loss of income from this source.

The trustees reported substantial progress in achieving corporate simplification during the year.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 10 (AP).—One of the strongest general advances in weeks today carried wheat prices up as much as 2 cents a bushel, with other grains and sorbeans following.

House refusal to accept a Senate provision of the Agriculture Department appropriation bill to permit sale of 125,000,000 bushels of Government wheat at prices below parity touched off the advance. Later, there was improved demand from professional and commercial interests, including mills, and covering of previous short sales.

Auto Industry Hits Stride in War Output

By David J. Wilkie.

Wide World Automotive Editor

Detroit, June 10.—Measured as to quality and volume of output, the Nation's one-time automotive industry has found its stride in the production of the instruments of war.

This is the conclusion reached in a survey of what has been done in converting factories that once made passenger automobiles and trucks for peace time pursuits and suddenly were called upon to halt such activities and swing almost over night into the job of armament manufacture.

In place of passenger cars and trucks the factories now are turning out tanks, marine and aircraft power plants, airframes for Army and Navy, complete planes, guns and shells and dozens of other implements.

Aircraft Engines Pour Out

Probably in no particular phase of the war implement production work is the industry's effort as amazing as in aircraft. Seven former car makers already are producing airplane motors, two others are tooling plants for similar work and another has just broken ground in a Midwestern city for a great aviation engine factory.

Facts and figures assembled by the industry-organized Automotive Council for War Production and approved for publication by censorship authorities disclose that of the companies already in production, one has been supplying all the engines for some of the most potent fighter planes now in the hands of the United States forces and their allies.

Aircraft engines in carload lots now are rolling daily from these factories to warplane assembly plants.

The hugh bomber planes being built by the former car industry are capable, says the War Production Council, "of flying from the factory airport to any military airdrome on the face of the globe."

Started From Scratch

The amazing thing, of course, is that the former car industry has been able to put aviation engines into volume production. It started virtually from scratch and early learned that many practices common to automobile engine production would not fit when applied to aircraft motors. The aircraft motor, for one thing, just couldn't be "roughed up," and it had to be handled much more delicately on the assembly line.

But the aviation industry admits it has learned something from the automobile builders, too. Most, if not all, of whatever professional jealousy may have existed at the outset of the war effort between the two vital forces in the production battle has disappeared.

Something like a year ago the car industry developed centrifugal casting equipment to make automobile pistons in a new way. This machinery now is whirling out cylinder barrels for an air-cooled, radial power plant for pursuit ships.

Fourteen Billion in Contracts

Perhaps one of the most significant disclosures is that contracts placed with the former automobile manufacturers for instruments of war now exceed 14 billion dollars—a jump of approximately 10 billion since the attack on Pearl Harbor last December 7.

How much more will be assigned to the automobile industry in the next six months is not even being guessed at among the former car makers. So far this year they have delivered nearly $1,500,000,000 worth of arms and munitions. By the first anniversary of Pearl Harbor the production level will be well above one billion dollars worth a month.

In normal times the automobile industry's production volume averaged less than $275,000,000 monthly in value.

Power Output Gains 9.6% Over Year Ago

New York, June 10 (AP).—The Edison Electric Institute reported today energy distributed in the week ended June 6 totaled 3,372,374,000 killowatt hours, 1.5 per cent more than in the previous week and 9.6 per cent above the like period of 1941.

The increase was less than seasonal since war production over the Memorial Day had held output at a relatively high level.

$1,000,000 Settlement For R. C. A. Approved

New York, June 10 (AP).—An offer of one million dollars by the General Electric Co. and the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. to the Radio Corporation of America in settlement of an RCA stockholders accounting suit was approved today by Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy.

The stockholders had charged that RCA had suffered losses through a series of financial transactions in the period before 1932, when General Electric and Westinghouse held large blocks of RCA stock.

Copper Conference Slated Here Next Week

New York, June 10 (AP).—Spokesmen for the domestic copper industry expect to confer with Government officials at Washington next week to determine whether it will be necessary to increase refining capacity to meet war and other needs, it was disclosed in trade circles today.

The industry has refining capacity of about 130,000 tons a month but it never has been fully utilized. Thus far in 1942 refining operations has been running at about 120,000 tons a month.

WPB Aide Asks U. S. 'Subsidy' For Little Firms

By the Associated Press

New York, June 10.—Government expenditure of possibly 200 million dollars annually to preserve 24,000 small manufacturing plants which may be closed by war restrictions by October 1 was urged tonight by Philip D. Reed, chief of the bureau of industry branches, War Production Board.

"The future of thousands of small communities is dependent upon the existence of these plants," the General Electric board chairman asserted in a prepared address, "and if they cannot be preserved during the war and revived when it is over, a tremendous and imponderable change will occur in the structure of the social and economic life of America."

He spoke at the commencement exercises of the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn.

Reed said one suggested remedy is creation of a Government agency to:

"Defray, during the period of enforced shutdown, the minmum fixed charges and maintenance costs of those plants which have been or will be closed.

"Make loans at favorable interest rates to those plants which, although not completely closed down as a result of war production orders are unable to operate at a profitable level.

"Make loans, up to the fair value of frozen inventories, to those plants which have not unreasonable inventories of fully or semifabricated parts that cannot be finished and assembled into completed products without additional amounts of critical raw materials, and which are in need of and unable to obtain financial assistance."

Reed said the closing of approximately 24,000 plants, whose sales in 1939 amounted to four billion dollars, is estimated by the Bureau of Industry branches. This is 13 per cent of the 184,000 manufacturing establishments. He based his estimate of 200 million dollars annual Government payments to the plants on a covering of fixed charges averaging 5 per cent of their business.

For the year to date shipments amounted to 8,729,439 net tons, compared with 8,384,240 net tons in the like 1941 period, or an increase of 345,199 net tons.

Stock Market Unsettled by 4-Point Slump In A. T. & T.; Most Losses Fractional

New York, June 10.—Influenced by weakness in American Telephone, stock market prices today receded a little more from the recently established May-June rally peaks.

Telephone fell about 4 points in the first hour and retrieved only a small part of the loss in the later dealings. Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, Philip Morris and Union Carbide closed 1 to around 3 lower. Elsewhere the declines were fractional and a few issues had small final gains.

On the basis of its action Tuesday market followers were prepared for some further retreat in prices as a technical adjustment after a fairly long advance. This came as expected and possibly it gained a little impetus from the deep slides in the higher priced leaders.

Wall Street attributed the fall in Telephone to selling touched off by yesterday's late announcement by Western Electric Co., Bell Co. manufacturing subsidiary, of a dividend of 25 cents a share, half the disbursement of three months ago. Since virtually all the stock is owned by American Telephone the reduction raised once more the question of dividend policies of the parent company. A few weeks ago American Telephone removed a lot of stock market tension by declaring the usual $2.25 quarterly disbursement.

The Associated Press 60-stock average declined .3 of a point to 35.8. Transactions totaled 313,300 shares against 397,680 the previous day.

Bonds lost ground on balance and commodities mostly were higher.

New Machinery Set Up by WPB On War Orders

The War Production Board created mandatory machinery yesterday to tell shipyards, arsenals and war plants, in terms of pounds and tons, the maximum amount of critical material they can obtain to fill their wartime orders.

William L. Batt, chairman of WPB's requirements committee, said the order, priorities regulation No. 11, would prevent industry from "writing rubber checks" on the country's dwindling supplies of metals and other raw materials.

The new action was announced by Batt and J. S. Knowlson, director of industry operations, at a press conference. It requires every company using more than $5000 worth of metal in a calendar quarter to file for all priority aid under the production requirements plan by June 30.

Applications under the production requirements plan, known as "PRP," furnish the Government with exact information on how much material each plant used in past months, what new orders have been received, and what future production schedules call for.

Bumper Crops For War Needs Are Predicted

By the Associated Press

Reporting that crop prospects have rarely averaged better at this season of the year, the Agriculture Department said yesterday that if weather conditions continued favorable, the country would be assured of a record output of farm commodities for war needs.

The forecast was based upon the department's monthly survey of planting operations and of weather and growing conditions throughout the country.

"While definite forecasts of total crop production can hardly be made till plantings of later crops have been completed and growth of early crops is further advanced," the report said, "present conditions fully support earlier expectations of increased planting and light abandonment (of previously seeded acreages).

"Growing conditions are so generally favorable that another year of heavy production of crops and livestock seems probable. If the weather continues favorable, previous records of agricultural output may be considerably exceeded."

The department made preliminary forecasts on the production of a few major crops, principally small grains. It is estimated a total wheat crop of 868,059,000 bushels, including 646,931,000 bushels of winter wheat and 321,128,000 of spring wheat. While 8 per cent below last year's harvest, a corp of this size would be substatially above the 1930-39 average of 747,507,000 bushels. Supplementing this year's crop will be an estimated record reserve supply of 630 million bushels carried over from previous years.

'07 College Golf Champion Leads Seniors

Rye, N. Y., June 10 (AP).—Ellis Knowles of the host club took the lead in the U. S. Golf Association Senior Championships with a record 36-hole total of 143 today as play was completed by half of the field.

Knowles matched par with a 72 after setting a new 18-hole record for the tournament with a sub-par 71 yesterday. His total clipped five strokes off the record of the 36-year-old tournament, set in 1932 by Findlay Douglas and tied by Richard Doughty in 1936 and by Charles H. Jennings in 1939.

Knowles, who won the National Collegiate title as a Yale senior in 1907, is just over the minimum age limit of 55 and is playing in his first senior tournament.

The other half of the field will play 18 holes tomorrow and the last 18 Friday.

Other leaders among the 149 who have completed their 36-hole rounds are Joseph Miller of Old Oaks, 150; Sam Graham of Greenwich, 152; Robert Stranahan of Toledo and Archibald Brown of National Links, 154, and Ralph Brooks of Providence, 155.

Zell Layton and Left Anderson had 272 for game and a 652 set in winning two tilts from Marguerite Blackman and Clarence Johnson. Anderson had 152 and Johnson 135. Mr. and Mrs. John Akey won a pair from the Leo Sorrells and Jimmie Harding and Blair Mullican won two from the John Freemans when Mullican had 136-369.

Beaumont's Boy Wonders Face a Break-Up

Youngsters Making Shambles of Texas Pennant Race

Army Will Likely Get Many Before The Big Leagues

By the Associated Press

Beaumont, Tex., June 10.—They're calling Beaumont's Exporters the greatest young team in baseball history.

It's a shame the little Tigers won't be able to perform as a unit in the big show—or even finish the Texas League season together and thus earn the title of outstanding team in the annals of that ancient circuit.

Jack Zeller, general manager of the Detroit system which owns the Exporters, was here the other day and remarked: "Next time the fans want to see these boys they'll have to pay $1.65 to do it."

Which is just half the story.

Some of the youngsters will go to the big leagues all right, but others will be in the armed services. In fact, Les Mueller, star pitcher, has already gone and several more are ready to pack.

J. Walter Morris, a Beaumont scout who has been in baseball over 40 years, labeled the little Tigers the greatest young team he ever saw. President J. Alvin Gardner of the Texas League said it was the greatest team, young or old, the minors ever had.

Yet four months ago Beaumont had to wage a ticket selling campaign to have a club at all. They sold the tickets. Detroit gave them a $100,000 team which has become as much discussed as that sensational outfit of 1932 that sent such stars as Hank Greenberg, Schoolboy Rowe and Pete Fox to the Tigers.

And Beaumont fans have gone through the turnstiles more in two months than all last season.

The Exporters lead the league in about everything—Pitcher Stub Overmire has won ten games. Outfielders Hoot Evers and Dick Wakefield are hitting between .350 to .400, Shortstop Johnny Lipon, only 18 and youngest of the outfit that averages under 22 years, is called the best prospect of them all.

Yep, it's a shame the boys won't be together long enough to find out just how good they really are.

Virginians Told to Stay Off Streets in Blackout

Richmond, Va., June 10 (AP).—John J. Howard, State chief of air raid precautions, suggested today that as an extra precaution against accidents during Virginia's all-night blackout June 17 persons who do not have business to be attended to remain off the streets.

Part of the dusk-to-dawn test, Howard announced, will be keeping telephone channels as clear as possible, just as if a strategic blackout were in effect because of the approach of enemy aircraft. He urged that telephone patrons hold their calls to the minimum. The reason for this lies in the need during an actual or impending raid for quick transmissions of information from aircraft spotters and fast relay of raid alarms to centers throughout the State.

After 35 Years

Chief Judge Forsythe Asks Another Term

By the Associated Press

Ellicott City, Md., June 10.—Chief Judge William Henry Forsythe, jr., who has served on the Maryland Bench for the past 35 years, announced today he would be a candidate for reelection in the Fifth Judicial Circuit.

Judge Forsythe was appointed Fifth Circuit associate judge, December 23, 1907, by Gov. Edwin Warfield to fill a vacancy created by the election of Judge William H. Thomas to the Court of Appeals. Forsythe was elected associate judge in November, 1909.

At the expiration of his term in 1924, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie appointed him to fill the interim period until the next general election in 1926, when he was reelected.

When Judge F. Neal Parke retired last year, Governor O'Conor appointed Forsythe chief judge, February 10, 1941.

Forsythe will reach the retirement age of 70, May 16, 1944. The Fifth Circuit embraces Anne Arundel, Howard, and Carroll Counties.

Judge Forsythe was born on a farm in Howard County near Sykesville, May 6, 1874. He attended public and private schools and graduated from Western Maryland College at Westminster, in June, 1894. He took post graduate work at Johns Hopkins University, and graduated from the University of aMryland Law School in 1897. Several weeks ago, Western Maryland College conferred an honorary degree of doctor of laws on Judge Forsythe.

His first law practice was in the office of Gen. Stewart Brown, prominent member of the Baltimore bar. The only political office ever sought was in 1901, when he was elected to the House of Delegates, serving during the 1902 legislative session.

TORTURED UNMERCIFULLY, A PEASANT KNOWN TO HAVE CONTACT WITH THE FREE FRENCH AND UNITED NATIONS FORCES HAS BEEN FORCED TO GIVE INFORMATION TO THE HUNS.
WHAT TIME WERE THE COMMANDOS TO ARRIVE?
HE SAID TWO-THIRTY. I GUESS WE'RE THROUGH WITH THIS DOG NOW. MIGHT AS WELL HANG HIM!
THIS TIME WE WILL BE WAITING TO RECEIVE THEM. AND WE OUTNUMBER THEIR FORCE TEN TO ONE.
WE'RE LUCKY--ER--I MEAN--UH WE'RE LUCKY TO HAVE THE INFORMATION MY COLONEL. THE FOOLS WILL ARRIVE IN FIFTEEN MINUTES.
AN ALLIED OBSERVATION PLANE IN ADVANCE OF THE COMMANDO RAID.
GOOD NIGHT--- DID YOU SEE THAT EXPLOSION!
THE WHOLE COAST IS LIT UP. LET'S TAKE A LOOK.
HE SAYS THE BEACH IS FULL OF TANKS AND TROOPS. THEY WERE WAITING FOR US.
WELL, WE WON'T LAND THERE. SOME FRENCHMAN GAVE US A GRAND WARNING. BLESS HIS HEART.
THE NEWS IS RELAYED TO THE DESTROYER BEARING COMMANDOS.

This is to be something of a success story!

It deals with a gentleman, name of Arch McDonald, who, as you no doubt know, is one of WJSV's triple-threat men, as good an ad libber before the mike as can be found around these here or any other parts.

You know him, of course, for his distinctive reporting of the baseball games every afternoon and you know, accordingly, that he's among the best in that line. But this is to point out that he's also as good in other lines. Take the Red Cross show, "Thus We Live," in which he's heard over the entire C. B. S. network from coast to coast every Thursday and Friday. In this he serves as the Red Cross reporter, bringing you human interest stories about the vital work the Red Cross is doing these days, telling you how you can best aid the Red Cross in the war effort and interviewing guests who have important information to give about same.

The proof of Arch's success lies in the reports which have just been turned in from a survey made cooperatively by the leading sponsors of daytime radio shows. In them, "Thus We Live," is rated as the fourth most popular daytime serial in the land. This, despite the fact that it's only been on the air since April 2 of this year, while the other three have been around much longer.

The ratings were: "Road of Life," 7.80; "Vic and Sade," 6.00; "Stories America Loves," 5.20, and "Thus We Live," 4.10. The average rating for the remainder was 1.30.

We hold Arch to be personally responsible for all this!

Contract Bridge

Most bridge players are familiar with the Blackwood method for reaching slams, but few, we'll wager, know and practice certain corollary rules of the convention which make it efficient and successful.

It is easy enough to sail into slam with all the high cards, and in that case, it could be accomplished without the aid of Blackwood. What to our mind is the most important contribution of the convention to skillful slam bidding is that it keeps you out of a slam when you lack aces. Today we offer two questions in which a correct application of the rules will direct you to the right contract. You may not be acquainted with these features of the Blackwood bid, but never mind, the answers follow:

1. Sitting South, you hold these cards:

♠ A J 6 2
♡ K J 10 3
◇ A Q 9 4

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♡	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	?	——

What call do you make?

2. Sitting North, you hold these cards:

◇ A K Q 6
♣ A 4

1 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	5 ♠	Pass

Answers to Quiz

1. Despite a strong hand and a singleton, South must pass his partner's five-spade sign-off. The player who starts the four no-trump convention is always in charge of the final contract except when he follows with a bid of five no trump which indicates the pair has all four aces. In this case the responder may decide to bid six or seven if he has added values in distribution or undeclared high cards.

In today's question, North has not said five no trump, showing four aces and an interest in a grand slam, so he alone may decide the final contract.

2. Five no trump; this is a forced reply. When the four no-trump bidder mentions an unbid suit at the five level after partner's response, he signals that there is no slam and the responder must call five no trump, which becomes the final contract.

In this case, the three no-trumper had no aces, and after North's bid of five hearts, he knew his side would have to lose two. Of course, South is barred from bidding five no trump over five hearts, as that would be the start of the Blackwood five no-trump convention asking for kings, and North would be forced to a six bid. South, therefore, bids five spades, an unmentioned suit, and can then pass his partner's forced response of five no trump.
